Convention Gives Solid Support to Choice Of Party

Prominent Businessman Will Contest East Edmonton Federal Seat Made Vacant By Death Of Dr. W. S. Hall

At one of the most enthusiastic nominating conventions in the history of Edmonton, R. C. Marshall, prominent business man, president of the Alberta and North-West Chamber of Mines, and resident of Alberta for 35 years past, was the unanimous choice of East Edmonton Liberals to contest the by-election caused by the death of Dr. W. S. Hall, Social Credit member.

The convention, presided over by A. R. McLennan, president of the East Edmonton Federal Liberal Associatoin, was attended by more than 1,000 supporters of the party, including 325 accredited delegates for the 80 polling divisions of the riding.

The Liberal nominee is no newcomer to public life, having been an alderman on the Calgary city council for a number of years, mayor of the same city for two terms and Liberal member of the legislature for five years. He has also been president of the Union of Alberta Municipalities, and has been prominent in the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, the Builders Exchange, the Chamber of Mines and the Rotary club since coming to reside in Edmonton over ten years ago.

Eulogized by Chairman A. R. McLennan as "an alert and efficient public man and administrator," and named as "the best candidate any party could get," Mr. Marshall was given a rousing reception by the large audience as he took the platform after receiving the nomination. Delegates and supporters rose to their feet and sang, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and it was several minutes before the ovation subsided sufficiently to enable him to thank them for their confidence.

TRAGEDY OF YOUTH

In a short but ringing speech, which was cheered to the echo, the candidate stated there must be found a solution to end the greatest tragedy facing Canada—the tragedy of youth, at present seem-

Hon. James G. Gardiner Lauds Fine Qualities Of Two Edmontonians

James A. MacKinnon, Liberal M.P. for West Edmonton and Alberta spokesman in the federal government, is "worthy of sitting in any cabinet in any country," Hon. James G. Gardiner, Federal minister of agriculture, told the Liberal nominating convention Thursday night as the assembled delegates cheered the popular local parliamentarian.

Hearty praise of R. C. Marshall, Liberal candidate selected by the convention to contest the election on March 21, in East Edmonton, also was sounded by the energetic cabinet minister.

"I think it is a blessing that Alberta sent us at least one Liberal in 1935 and that that Liberal happened to be James A. MacKinnon. In all my twenty-five years in politics I have never known a man who has devoted himself so conscientiously to his constituents and brought so many honored gifts to the service of the state.

"He is worthy of sitting in any

JAP INFLUX IS TOUCHY TOPIC HOUSE DEBATE

By THOMAS WAYLING

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, Feb. 18—The Japanese infiltration into British Columbia brought parliament face to face Thursday with a situation which leaders and backbenchers alike agreed to be the most serious problem before the present session.

A. W. Neill (Ind., Lib.) sought second reading for his bill to put the Japanese on the same basis as the Chinese—virtual exclusion.

The proposal received the unanimous sympathy of the house. It brought support from every party and group in the house.

Yet the bill failed; for the shadow of international crises fell across the commons and the prime minister side-tracked the bill by moving its adjournment.

Mr. King was definitely in sympathy with British Columbia's problem which he declared to be more than British Columbia's; it was a grave problem for the whole of Canada.

Yet he could not give government support to the bill, because it was Hard Surface for Big Road Possible From Debt Charge

Annual interest payments on Alberta roads debts are sufficient to pay costs of hard surfacing a highway from Edmonton to Peace River, declared Hon. W. A. Fallow, Minister of Public Works, in an address in Edmonton Thursday. "In addition," he asserted, "it costs us about $800 a mile to keep these old gravel roads in passable shape."

The minister was supported by Premier William Aberhart and Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, in his address, which was in the form of a round table discussion.

"According to the books," Mr. Fallow continued, "$76,000,000 has been expended by previous governments on roads. Of this sum, $35,000,000 remains as part of the provincial debt, on which interest must be paid."

In reply to a question by Premier Aberhart, Mr. Fallow stated that the cost of hard surfacing the whole of Alberta's 7,000 miles of government roads by the blotter method would be in the neighborhood of $18,000,000. "With only $8,000,000 we could hard-surface every main highway in the province and the benefit would be cumulative, because once hard-surfaced, the maintenance charges are greatly reduced."

Mr. Fallow said that between the years 1931 and 1932 the previous administration borrowed the latter sum at 5 per cent. for main and secondary construction and maintenance. "You may well ask me what was done with this $8,000,000 on which we are still paying interest. I am sorry I cannot tell you. It is difficult to find any evidence of what was done."

ADEQUATE SYSTEM

The Alberta government "could and would" provide an adequate system of highways very rapidly if only Ottawa and the financiers

Low and Duggan In Sharp Clash Over Questions

Sharp clash between Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer and D. M. Duggan, Alberta Conservative leader, over questions asked by the latter on costs of Social Credit Board broadcasts and associated matters, featured the Thursday sitting of the legislature.

Mr. Low, while answering Mr. Duggan's questions, charged that they were "insolent," "impertinent" and "profoundly foolish" and although the Conservative leader protested, Hon. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs repeated the descriptions given by his front bench colleague, amid no little thumping of desks from the right of Mr. Speaker.

The clash, coming at the opening of the sitting, enlivened the proceedings.

SEVEN QUESTIONS

Mr. Duggan asked a series of seven questions, one of which was divided into six parts.

It was private members day in the house and they were entitled to have their business taken up at the outset.

As the questions asked pertained to Mr. Low's department, he rose to answer them. He declared that so long as information was desired and sought by members, the government stood ready to answer any questions, but the questions submitted by Mr. Duggan were in an "insolent and impertinent way."

Mr. Duggan protested and there were some cries of "order." Mr. Duggan added that the minister was out of order in debating the questions. According to the rules, he said, the minister should either answer the questions or decline to answer them, but he should not debate them.

Endorsing the stand taken by his colleague, Mr. Maynard rose and branded the questions as "insolent and impertinent." He declared that in the house of commons ministers frequently took the position that certain questions should not be asked and would not be tolerated. He instanced cases within the last week, where ministers at Ottawa had refused to accept questions. He

Dominion Minister of Agriculture Electrifies Huge Audience in Dealing With Issues Confronting Canadians Today

BETTERMENTS TO APPEAR THIS YEAR

Making a dynamic defence of the principles of progressive Liberalism, principles which, he said, were even now working out to the betterment of conditions throughout the Dominion, the results of which would be even more apparent during the coming year, Hon. James G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture in the cabinet of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, former premier of Saskatchewan, and one of western Canada's most noted and energetic leaders for the past two decades, electrified a huge audience at the Memorial Hall on Thursday night.

In a fighting speech in which he declared that national prosperity depends upon Alberta keeping step with Canada's march of progress, and not wilfully shunning policies of advancement and reform endorsed by Canadian electors from Halifax to Vancouver, the federal leader dealt with the issues confronting Canada and Canadians today.

Mincing no words, and making no apologies, he spoke as a westerner to westerners, and his straight-from-the-shoulder utterances evoked burst after burst of applause as he told of the matters which had been undertaken by the Mackenzie King government, especially in regard to Alberta, and of their reception by the provincial government. He was also enthusiastically cheered as he referred to the record of the Liberal party in Canada and the reform policies it was now undertaking.

"It's a winning convention. It's in the air. This is a fighting crowd listening to a fighting speech and they're on their way right now to a victorious election," declared one enthusiastic stalwart who said that the convention reminded him "of the old Frank Oliver days."

AN OLIVER LIBERAL

It was a fitting comparison, as only a few minutes before Mr. Gardiner had evoked cheers from the crowded convention as he car-

RODESSA, La., Feb. 18.—Rodessa counted 22 dead, scores injured and property damage of perhaps $500,000 today as the toll of a tornado that lashed this oil boom town for two minutes last night.

Some of the 22 known dead remained unidentified and it was impossible to get an accurate total of injured but it was expected to exceed 100. For some of the more seriously injured death seemed near.

Torrential rains raised incipient flood threats in the south and southwest.

Rains of three to four inches fell in eastern Arkansas and western Tennessee. U. S. engineers stood by with sandbag supplies to meet threatened flood conditions on the White and Black rivers in north central Arkansas. Flood waters closed a school at Newport, Ark., and rendered nine Arkansas highways impassable.

MECHANIC HELD IN CONNECTION WITH SLAYING

Magnus Ewenson, Dominion Motors Employee, Placed Under Arrest

Magnus Ewenson, mechanic at Dominion Motors garage, was arrested by city police at 9:30 p.m. Thursday and is held on a technical charge of vagrancy for questioning in connection with the murder of Fred Oliver, 55-year-old nightman at the garage on the morning of Friday, February 11.

Ewenson was arrested by Detectives Percy Appleby and Alex Bremner, accompanied by Constable Douglas Fraser, in a rooming house in downtown Edmonton. They discovered him when other members of the block phoned to police complaining of the presence of a drunken man in the block. Ewenson was, according to police, very intoxicated when arrested. Police said he had not appeared for work at the garage on Thursday.

Ewenson, according to police, was too intoxicated when taken into custody, to give any statement to police, but Friday morning he was being questioned by Chief of Detectives Robertson Sutherland.

Meanwhile police are continuing to check the clues they have in an effort to discover something that will enable them to make a definite decision concerning the crime.

Ewenson appeared before Magistrate A. H. Gibson in police court Friday morning on the vagrancy charge. An adjournment until February 26 was ordered.

LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE IS BEING SOUGHT

Establishment of the Edmonton Stock Exchange was sought in a petition placed before the legislature on Thursday by Fred C. Anderson, S.C., Calgary. Petitioners seek "all the rights and privileges" of a stock exchange.

While not stated by Mr. Anderson, it was stated outside the house, that formation of the exchange, which in fact is a restoration, as there was at one time an exchange operating here, was in response to requests coming in as a result of the widespread mining development throughout the province.

FOUR PETITIONERS

In the petition submitted to the legislature, the following were listed as the petitioners: John Henry Crowley, Winnipeg industrialist; Kenneth Duggan, Edmonton; Garnet W. Chambers, Edmonton broker and Ralph J. Samuels, Edmonton barrister.

Outside the house, it was stated that the four petitioners would be provisional directors of the exchange, if the right to incorporate was granted.

The last stock exchange to operate here was in 1929.

OBJECTS LISTED

Objects of the exchange are listed as follows:—"To compile records and publish statistics, acquire and distribute information respecting stock, shares, bonds and debenture, to provide and regulate a suitable building or room or rooms for a stock exchange and office in the city of Edmonton, to promote the observance of such regulations and requirements as may be by law established."

Last year the legislature enacted legislation prohibiting a joint stock company from operating as a stock exchange except under special consent conveyed in an act of the legislature.

National Attack On Intoxicated Drivers Proposed

SEVERITY FOR ROAD KILLERS IS HOUSE PLEA

New Penalties For Autoists' Negligence Are Urged By T. L. Church

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—A national attack on drunk drivers and highway traffic killers was proposed in the House of Commons Thursday by T. L. Church (Con., Toronto - Broadview) through far-reaching amendments to the Criminal Code.

Suspension of a hit-and-run driver's license for six months, a year in jail for racing on the highway or cutting in and out of traffic, highway killers to be barred from driving for two years, no drivers' licenses for anyone under 18 years of age, confiscation of cars for some offences and re-wording of sections dealing with drunk-driving, where some of the provisions of a bill sponsored by the veteran Toronto member.

TIME TO STUDY

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, moved adjournment of the debate on the bill to give him time to study its terms before presenting a government measure. He said the government bill would incorporate many changes in the criminal code, some of them dealing with automobile traffic.

Meanwhile, the justice department would give careful consideration to the terms of the Church bill, Mr. Lapointe said. He pointed to administration difficulties because of provincial traffic laws which might conflict with federal legislation.

The minister agreed with members from all sections of the House that stringent methods must be adopted to stop the annual toll of lives and damage to property on the highways. Perhaps a conference with provincial officials might lead to uniform legislation of sufficient strength.

USE OF CODE

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, urged use of the Criminal Code in attacking Canada's highway traffic problems.

Young children up to 15 or 16 were not strong enough to handle a car on the highway, Mr. Bennett said. To allow them to drive was carelessness on the part of those charged with responsibility.

Licenses were not suspended enough in Canada, continued Mr. Bennett. The law in this respect should be universal and not left to the provinces. In England, for instance, licenses had been concelled for life in extreme cases. The criminal code was an ideal means of making it a crime to endanger human life on the highways.

DRASTIC LAWS

There should be drastic laws against drunk drivers, Mr. Bennett said, because of the relation of alcohol to accidents. A few penitentiary terms to drunk drivers would have a deterrent effect on others. Statistics showed that most accidents were caused by alcohol.

It was difficult to get jury convictions in manslaughter cases, Mr. Bennett said, but it should not be so difficult on charges of culpable negligence.

cells by Turnkey W. Lamb and Constable J. McMurray. He was not handcuffed.

NO SIGN OF EMOTION

Calm and collected, he showed no sign of emotion, and his dark eyes roamed about the courtroom as though he were looking for someone. Once, when he apparently recognized someone he knew, a slight smile crossed his face.

First witness called by the crown was Dr. J. J. Ower.

Questioned by Mr. McClung, Dr. Ower stated he had examined a pair of trousers which he had received from the police. He said that he found human blood stains on them. The stains looked as though they had been splashed on, and were around the lower part of the legs, he stated. The trousers were then entered as an exhibit.

UNDER INFLUENCE

Detective William McDonald stated he had seen the accused shortly after his arrest, about 5 a.m. on the Sunday morning. He was, he said, more or less under the influence of liquor at that time, so no attempt was made to question him.

Later in the afternoon, the accused, after being properly warned, had voluntarily given a statement to Detective McDonald in the presence of Chief of Detectives Sutherland.

FELT BETTER

"I asked him how he felt, and he said 'Better.' I then told him that there had been a murder, warned him, and asked him for an explanation of his movements on the previous evening," said Detective McDonald.

The officer than produced the statement which is alleged to have been given to police and signed by the accused. It was entered as an exhibit.

The statement is as follows:

"Mike Martinink, aged 21, residing at 12007 66 street, states I have been warned by Detective W. McDonald and I understand the warning.

WENT UPTOWN

"On Saturday, January 29, I left my home at about 12 noon. I went uptown. I think I caught the 12:30 noon car from North Edmonton. I went to see my sister, Rose, at Foster and McGarvey's funeral parlors, that would be about 3 p.m. They were holding a service in the parlors and I had to wait until the service was over. I asked one of the men there if I could see my sister, Rosie (who was lying dead there). He said not until 5 p.m. I then went out and walked around for awhile. I returned to the undertaking parlors at about 5:30 p.m. I was allowed to see my sister then.

"I left and walked down Jasper avenue to catch a street car and caught the 6:15 p.m. car at 97 street and Jasper avenue for North Edmonton and went home. I went home and shaved and cleaned up. At this time it would be about 8 p.m. I then went back to North Edmonton and stayed there for about 15 minutes around the poolroom and cafe. I caught the 8:30 p.m. street car and went back uptown.

WENT TO A CAFE

"On reaching uptown I drank a few beers at the Queen's hotel and left there at about 10. I then went to some cafe on Jasper avenue and had some coffee. I then went to the Club pool room and stayed there for about 10 minutes, and then went to the liquor vendor's. I purchased a bottle of rye whisky for which I paid $1.10. I purchased a liquor permit under the name of Spike McLean. I then went around the back and drank half of the bottle of whisky. It was a 13-oz. bottle. I could not say what time that was.

"I then walked down to the Haddon hall. I gave some fellow a drink, I don't remember who it was. After this man left I drank the rest of the whisky in the bottle. By this time I was pretty drunk. I think I went up the steps and entered the dance floor of the Haddon hall. I did not dance. I don't know how I got back to North Edmonton. I think I was walking around the streets for a while with some person. I don't remember how I got to North Edmonton but I got there.

WENT TO ROOM 17

"When I got to North Edmonton I went up to the New Deal Apartments to get a sleep. I went to room 17 occupied by Bill Lotoski and Steve Ivanchuk. When I went into the room Bill Lotoski was not there. Steve Ivanchuk, who was lying on his bed said, 'What do you want here.' I was more or less drunk and did not care and said, 'I want to sleep.' Steve Ivanchuk got out of bed and was going to put me out of the room. As I had slept in this room often I did not want to be put out and Ivanchuk and I started to fight. He grabbed hold of me and was going to put me out.

"I started fighting with him. I don't know what I struck him with but I think it must have been something I picked off the floor. I don't remember where I hit him but all at once he fell down on the floor. The fight would last about five minutes. I left the room and went home. Then the police came and arrested me.

"Steve Ivanchuk has been sore at me for about two weeks as I had played a game of pool and was not able to pay for it. I was owing him 15 cents. I was pretty drunk and don't remember how I got out of Ivanchuk's room.

WAS SO MAD

"I was so mad when I was fighting with Ivanchuk that I did not know what I was doing.

"I have been told by the police that a gent's watch, property of Steve Ivanchuk, and the keys to Ivanchuk's poolroom at North Edmonton, were found in my possession.

"I don't know how I got a hold of them.

"I have read over this statement and declare the same to be true.

(Signed) "MIKE MARTINIUK."

Witness:

(Signed) W. McDONALD.

Cross-examined by Hugh Calais Macdonald, the detective admitted that no attempt had been made to take a statement from the accused at the time of his arrest "because he was more or less under the influence of liquor."

That concluded the evidence offered and the magistrate, after warning the prisoner, asked him if he had anything to say. After a brief consultation with Mr. Macdonald, his counsel, the accused replied, "I have nothing to say."

At the inquest evidence was deduced to show that Mike had been seen near the murder room at the time the murder had occurred, and when police visited his home an hour later he had put up a fierce resistance to capture. Police at that time had found keys and a watch, believed to be the property of Ivanchuk in Martiniuk's possession and had discovered him wearing blood-stained trousers.

cabinet in any country," stressed Mr. Gardiner amid applause.

"Whenever he has spoken in the House of Commons, he has done so with dignity and distinction, and with an insight into our problems that few could hope to duplicate.

"He has taken all Alberta as his constituency and carried on a terrific correspondence. I know what that work is, for it has sometimes fallen to my task to look after that work temporarily, when Mr. MacKinnon is away from Ottawa, during the intermission between sessions. He has made an admirable job of an onerous task.

"I am hoping," Mr. Gardiner continued, "that Mr. R. C. Marshall, experienced, sound, fearless, progressive, will be elected on March 21, as I am confident he will be, and that he will take at least half this burden off Mr. MacKinnon's shoulders.

OTTAWA NEEDS BOTH

"Ottawa needs both Mr. MacKinnon and Mr. Marshall," Mr. Gardiner concluded his tribute as volleys of applause rang through the crowded hall.

Following the election of Mr. Marshall, when the nominating convention proper was over, provincial Liberal members took seats on the platform. They included E. L. Gray, provincial leader, J. J. Bowlen, Calgary, Gerald O'Connor, Dr. Walter Morrish, both of Edmonton, and J. H. Tremblay, Grouard. None of them addressed the meeting or took any part in the proceedings of the federal convention.

AGENTS TAKING CARE OF NORTH INDIAN CASES

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—Any needs that exist among the natives in the Fort Simpson district, North West Territories, are being taken care of by its agent there, the mines and resources department announced today. He was issuing supplies and other necessities of life as the situation warranted.

The department's statement was in reply to reports from traders and others at Fort Simpson the native population was suffering distress because the North West Territories administration would not open earlier the season for taking beaver under permit and also increase the bag limit from 15 to 30.

MIGHTY INDIAN HUNTER SLAYS EIGHT WOLVES

BELLA COOLA, B.C., Feb. 18.—Eight timber wolves shot single-handed was Domas Squinas' claim today for standing in his father's tribe of Chilcotin Indians.

According to the story of the exploit which reached here from Anahim lake, 100 miles east of this coast settlement, Squinas encountered a pack of nine wolves while riding through a forest.

Squinas approached the pack, feeding off a dead moose, and opened fire. He felled four of the wolves and then ran out of bullets.

Dodging behind nearby trees he evaded the animals until he had time to obtain shells from his saddle bags then shot four more of the animals.

The survivor fled.

Beer Credit To Be Made Taboo By Legislation

REGINA, Feb. 18 — If any beer stores in Saskatchewan have been selling beer on credit that practice is to be stopped.

Whiskers Are Compulsory In Oil Metropolis

CALGARY, Feb. 18.—Whisker growing is a popular sport in Little Chicago, bustling Turner Valley oil town, today. It is compulsory until February 23, when a "whisker king" will be crowned at an ice carnival.

A "kangaroo court" has been established to deal with violators. One man who shaved was fined $1.50.

"I had a date with a Calgary girl," he explained to the court, but he failed to gain clemency.

B. C. LABOR AIDE OPPOSES CHANGE IN WAGES PLAN

VANCOUVER, Feb. 18. — Hon. George S. Pearson would not be in favor of amendment to the British North America Act which would give the Dominion government complete power to regulate wage standards in all provinces.

The British Columbia Labor minister expressed his views in an address to the junior board of trade here. He said that if such amendment were put in force, "British Columbia's standard of living would go down."

"We want to regulate our own standard of wages," he said.

The provincial government, however, had no objection to a uniform minimum standard of wages."

"If a change is made to the B.N.A. Act which will provide for a uniform minimum standard of wages in Canada, no province should be deprived of the right to go above that standard," he said.

Law Aides To Assist Probe Loan Sharks

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — Attorneys-General of all Canadian provinces will be invited to Ottawa to give information to the House of Commons banking and commerce committee on what is being done toward the regulation of small loan companies and prosecution of money lenders, whether private or corporation, who make exhorbitant charges.

The committee decided this on Thursday after it heard Hon. Charles Dunning, minister of finance, say: "I don't believe we want to give up this question without an effort to get a nation-wide control over this form of business."

CITY CONTROL OF EDUCATION NOW PROPOSED

Ald. Casselman Has Four Plans For Edmonton School Policy

Seeking to bring education under the control of city council, particularly with respect to expenditures, Ald. F. C. Casselman has filed a notice of motion with City Clerk Alfred Russell designed to give council the proposed control.

Before this policy could be adopted, the Alberta School Act under which the Edmonton Public and Separate School Boards operate, would have to be amended. This whole question is scheduled to be considered by city council shortly.

ALTERNATIVES

Ald. Casselman is proposing four alternatives, any one of which would bring Edmonton schools under the direct supervision of the council. These alternatives are:

1. To make city council, with the consent of a majority of the electors, the board of trustees for school districts within the city. If the school boards were abolished and aldermen took over their duties, the number of aldermen would be increased, if thought advisable.

POWER TO APPOINT

2. Or to give council power to appoint boards of trustees in same manner in which council now appoints other civic boards which are not elected. School trustees are at present elected to office.

3. Or to give council power to control the amount of money school boards can raise for educational purposes.

4. Or to permit council to pay over to the school boards only that portion of the school taxes which is actually received by the city.

In connectiaon with 3 and 4, Ald. Casselman explains that under the existing set-up council is required to pay the boards the full amount needed for operating schools, regardless of whether city tax collections justify payment in full.

Man Arrested In Big Forgery

MONTREAL, Feb. 18—Police said Thursday they had arrested Gabriel Ostiguy, alias Ouimet, 26, of Ottawa in the main office of the Imperial Bank of Canada on a charge of attempting to pass a forged cheque for $5,000. Production and Trade Said Only Way to Prosperity

Betterment Will Appear This Year Gardiner Claims

Liberalism Needed in Provincial as Well as Federal Politics, Minister Tells Gathering.

nestly eulogized the memory of Hon. Frank Oliver, founder of The Edmonton Bulletin, and minister of the interior in the cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. In his remarks Hon. Mr. Gardiner pointed out that he had been initiated into politics 25 years ago by the Edmonton statesman, who, he said, would have been "one of the most enthusiastic supporters and approvers of the reform policies the Liberal party is advocating today."

"I was introduced into politics 25 years ago when I was asked in June 1912, to act as a curtain-raiser for a meeting at Wolseley, Saskatchewan, to be addressed by Hon. Frank Oliver," said Hon. Mr. Gardiner.

"When I finished, I was told to go to the Conservative meetings in the constituency for the next week, ask for time, and speak there in favor of the Liberal candidate. And that is how my Liberal career began," Mr. Gardiner said amid cheers.

ALBERTA SITS APART

"Do you realize that you have been sitting apart, in groups unknown outside Alberta since 1921?" the Liberal cabinet minister asked.

"We urge you, at the coming East Edmonton by-election, to organize for Alberta, to organize for Canada. Get behind the Liberal party and sit with us in the council of Canada to urge the claims of the land of Oliver," Mr. Gardiner urged amid another outburst of applause.

The Albera government could obtain "within 24 hours," a debt settlement similar to the Saskatchewan one which wiped out 100 million dollars of debt for farmers in the drouth areas of that province, he emphasized.

All the Alberta administration had to do, he submitted, was ask that this Saskatchewan scheme be applied and Alberta would receive "as fair tratment as any province in the dominion."

"Alberta only has to ask for this treatment to get it. It has never asked to have this plan examined or put into effect. I repeat that —it has never asked us for that action," said Mr. Gardiner with emphasis.

BANK OF CANADA

Defending the Liberal party's policy concerning the Bank of Canada, Mr. Gardiner pointed out that Premier King had given the dominion a bank in which the government had a majority on the board of directors and also could control policy by the power derived from its ownership of 51 per cent of the bank's stock.

Mr. Bennett, he charged, wished the Bank of Canada to be "privately controlled with a government check; Mr. King wanted it to be government controlled with a private check."

"If it is true, as some charge, that Premier King has departed from the position he once occupied on this question, it was not a retreat but an advance. In other words, it was an advance to the position taken by the man who argues today that the bank should be publicly owned and controlled."

RELIEF NOT ISSUE

Relief is not a "party issue" in Canada, Mr. Gardiner stressed in painting vivid word pictures of suffering in the drouth areas and the determination of the Liberal government to deal with relief in a spirit devoid of party politics.

Criticizing those who place their faith in recovery in "new-fangled theories of monetary reform," like that of "scrip which circulated in Alberta for a while and then passed out of the picture," Mr. Gardiner said the only way to prosperity lay in production and trade on a mutually profitable basis.

LIBERALS IN PROVINCE

Declaring that there was need of Liberalism in provincial as well as federal politics, due to the fact that Canada "was a federated form of government" in which some things could be done only in the provinces, Mr. Gardiner indicated the value of the Liberal viewpoint in provincial politics by lauding the record of Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario.

"When the Conservatives were in, Ontario spent 80 millions a year, and had a revenue of 50 millions, for a deficit of 30 millions. After Mr. Hepburn was in power for three years, Ontario had a revenue of 80 millions, an expenditure of 71 millions, for a surplus of 9 million instead of the former deficit," he said.

"I think it is hardly necessary for me to say that it is a great pleasure to have the privilege of addressing this convention called to select a candidate for the East Edmonton federal by-election on March 21 and to see such a representative gathering of Edmonton Liberals here," said Mr. Gardiner in opening.

DESIRE FULFILLED

"Perhaps I may add that I have always desired to make a political speech in Alberta while a campaign was actually in progress. I have, of course received many invitations in the past to do so, but never until today have I been able to avail myself of the opportunity.

"Even then it seemed as if the fates were still against me. The train in which I was coming to Edmonton was derailed at a small town in Ontario and if I were to have waited for the next train, I would not have been able to come to this convention tonight.

"So I flew by plane the last 500 miles in order to make sure that I would not miss the privilege of addressing this great Liberal convention.

HON. JAMES G. GARDINER

LIBERAL IDEALS

"What is Liberalism? What is the principle upon which it rests and the ideals to which it is devoted?

"There are some people who will tell you, I know, that there is no difference at all between Liberalism and Conservatism, those 'two old-line parties,' as they are fond of calling them.

"These people are correct if they mean that Liberals and Conservatives agree that the resources of this country, or of any country, can best be developed in the interests of the people when that development is carried out under private initiative.

"Insofar as both parties are opposed to state socialism, to systems which crush individualism, and to panaceas that are supposed to correct as if by magic all the economic ills to which the world is heir, it may be true to argue that there are no differences between the two groups.

IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE

"But in point of fact there is a basic, important difference that distinguishes the principles of Liberalism from those of Conservatism.

"The Conservative party believes that the control over industry and the benefits from the development of our natural resources should remain with the private individual or corporation.

"They believe that the government of the country should be entrusted to the men who have been successful, who have made a success out of their own callings, and that there should be no government interference or control over their development of natural resouces.

"They believe, perhaps quite sincerely, that obedience to such a policy will result in greater efficiency and the employment of more labor and result in higher wages.

WHERE LIBERALS STAND

"The Liberal party, on the other hand, is convinced that a considerable part of the profits from the development of natural resources should return to the state, to be used in giving greater services to the masses of the people, which of course means the great majority of working class people.

"Conservatives usually object to having any of these profits diverted to the state treasury; Liberals wish to see it thus diverted, so that the revenue may then be employed in giving increased services and heightened benefits to those among our people who may need them most.

"The reform that Liberalism carries into effect today becomes the conviction of Tories five or ten years hence. Whenever a reform has been achieved and proved useful, Conservatism will adopt it. But Liberalism is always the pioneer of reform.

GREATEST LIBERAL

"Who is the greatest Liberal of the present age, the man who has caught the essence of the modern progressive Liberal doctrine and given it glowing expression? David Lloyd George.

"It was David Lloyd George, with his emphasis upon the unearned increment tax, who illustrated the difference between Liberals and Conservatives on this vital matter of the development of the people's natural resources and the money to be derived therefrom and its use.

"The Conservatives, who fought David Lloyd George on this question of the unearned increment were grudging throughout and most reluctant to admit that the people's resources should be used for the people's good.

"But Lloyd George, by this and similar crusades, has earned the right to be considered the founder and father of modern progressive Liberalism.

HEPBURN IN CANADA

"These principles are illustrated in Canada, in the provincial field, by the record of Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, especially in regard to his conduct on the issues of succession duties and inheritance tax.

"In 1934, he promised the people of Ontario that he would go into all the accounts that concerned the payment of succession duties.

"To show how successful that investigation and firm policy were, it is only necessary to cite one case. He took out of one case no less than three million dollars, despite the fact that it seemed that the succession duty was shown to have been paid in full.

"That was how, under Conservative rule, natural resources development was being used against the people's best interests.

"What was the result?

"Under the Conservatives, Ontario's expenditures were 80 millions, her revenue only 50 millions, leaving a deficit of 30 millions. When Premier Hepburn had been in power for three years revenue had risen to 80 million, and expenditure was only 71 millions, leaving a surplus of 9 millions, instead of a deficit of 30 millions.

"When opponents charged that this change had been effected by having Premier Hepburn tax the people of Ontario an extra thirty million dollars, he had a simple and convincing answer.

"In the election campaign which returned him to power with a great Liberal majority, Premier Hepburn would do this. He would point to the people sitting in the audience before him and ask each individual in a row. Did I take anything from you or you or you?

"The answer had to be, as it was, that he hadn't taken anything away from the people. 'Where then did I get it?' Premier Hepburn would ask. He got more of it from succession duties, from the inheritance tax, and from those people who had obtained it from the development of natural resources.

"And how was it spent? It was spent on education, on providing better services for mothers' allowances and widows' pensions, on securing better standards of relief, and used in general in benefitting the vast mass of the people.

"So that, when people tell you there is no place for Liberalism in provincial politics, though they may go so far as to admit that it has a place in the federal field, tell them to ponder the significance of Ontario and see what happened when the Liberal instead of the Conservative viewpoint was applied.

NEEDED IN PROVINCE

"Say to them that we are living under a federated form of government, and that since 1870 there have been certain defined areas of responsibility allotted to the federal and provincial authorities respectively.

"Whatever may be true elsewhere or in other countries, it is not true here that there is no room for the Liberal party in provincial affairs. There are some things which under our federated form of government can only be done within provinces themselves.

"But there are some who will tell you that the entire Liberal faith is summed up in its belief in low tariffs, that all Liberals ever talk about is the value of trade and the folly of high tariffs.

THE TARIFF POLICY

"The only reason that Liberals talk tariffs is because they are firmly persuaded that the keeping of tariffs low, of placing tariffs on a revenue basis if possible, is the real essence of our Liberalism and the best possible policy for the welfare of the nation in general.

"The benefits of a tariff for revenue, or a low tariff, instead of a tariff for protection, is that it enables the great masses of the people to get their goods and services as cheaply as possible, and enables a state revenue to be built up for the services of the people.

"Much has been made in recent months of the present set up of the Central Bank of Canada. It has been claimed that the policy of the Liberal party as set forth by Mr King prior to the election of 1935 has not been carried out since the Liberal party came into office.

HISTORY OF BANK

"What is the history of the establishment of a Central Bank in Canada? I want to say something about this subject.

"Let me make it perfectly plain, and clear beyond any prospect of dispute, that the first party leader to advocate a central bank to control the issue of credit and currency and to deal with the problems of international commerce and exchange was the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, when speaking in the South Huron by-election in the fall of 1932.

"Mr. King made a general statement, not going into details. Perhaps there was a reason for that. Mr. King was leader of the opposition then and knowing something about the government, he may have thought it best to confine himself to a general statement.

PLACED ON HANSARD

"On February 27, 1933, Mr. King, speaking as leader of the Liberal party from his place in the House of Commons, placed the proposal of a properly constructed national central bank on the pages of Hansard. It was put there before the people of Canada as the official declaration of the Liberal party.

"There was little discussion regarding the details of the set up or organization on either occasion.

"Then during the session of 1934, Mr. Bennett did what Mr. King expected him to do, he brought down a bill, and, as is the case in all bills, Mr. Bennett had to explain the principles upon which his measure rested.

"During this session Mr. Bennett decided to forestall the Liberals' announced intention by introducing a measure himself to provide for the setting up of a central bank. But note this significant fact.

PRIVATELY OWNED BANK

"He provided for a privately owned bank, the shares to be owned by subscribers of capital.

"He provided for a privately controlled bank in that the Governor, the Deputy-Governor, and two directors were to be appointed by the government, while seven directors or a controlling majority of the board were to be appointed by the shareholders.

"In Mr. Bennett's proposal, the government had four representatives, the private shareholders had seven.

"Mr. King said, in speaking to an amendment moved by Col. J. L. Ralston, on behalf of the Liberals, that the government should be assured of being able to exercise bank control by appointing a majority of the board of directors.

"He therefore suggested that the shareholders should appoint four of the seven directors, the government should name the other three, and also appoint the Governor and Deputy-Governor.

Declined

LT.-COL. G. R. McLEOD

who declined nomination as East Edmonton Liberal candidate in favor of R. C. Marshall, at Thursday night's convention. He urged his supporters to endorse Mr. Marshall.

"In Mr. King's proposal, so distinct from Mr. Bennett's the government would have five directors, private shareholders four.

"The chief opposition put up to this, was that the element of political control might be over-emphasized to the detriment of business and industry.

"The Liberal party in the House of Commons took the position that ownership and administration should be controlled by the government and that if a check were necessary it should be private.

"In other words, Mr. Bennett wanted private control of the bank with a government check; Mr. King wanted government control of the bank with a private check.

SET OUT CLEARLY

"This was set out clearly in Mr King's statement on the floor of the House in 1934 when speaking to Col. Ralston's amendment.

"Mr. King said: 'The line of remedy will lie in the matter of control; the government ought certainly to have a very large measure of control over this institution and I would say "the" control of the institution. The question of ownership is, I think, debatable.'

"Speaking the following day, June 22, 1934, in the House of Commons, Mr. King stated:

"'I do think the directorate of the bank ought to be so formed that whether the pressure is upon the bank from the government on the one side, or upon the government from the financial interests and through the bank on the other, there should be on the board some one or more persons who will be quick to sense the situation, give the danger signals, and arouse the country to the pressure being brought to bear from one direction or another.'

QUESTION DEBATABLE

"Again he stated: 'As I said last night, I think the question of ownership is debatable.'

"That was the official position taken by the leader of the Liberal party prior to the election of 1935 with regard to details. It was never deviated from during the campaign.

"That Liberal position has been maintained in office.

"The Liberal party, during its first session, brought down legislation providing for a board elected exactly as advocated in opposition and giving contol of the bank to a government majority at all times.

"Mr. King stated in opposition that he had an open mind on ownership. When in charge of the government he took control of ownership by taking on behalf of the government 51 per cent. ownership of the shares of the Central Bank.

NOT A RETREAT

"If he departed from his previously occupied position, it was not a retreat from government control but an advance toward it.

"Five or six years ago, let me say, in turning from this question of the Bank of Canada to say a word about monetary cure-alls, someone conceived the idea that if someone did something or other with money all our troubles would be over.

"You tried something like that in your province with stamp money, when you found that if you applied 104 cents worth of stamps to a bit of scrip it then was worth a dollar, and that if you were working for the government you thus found you paid yourself 104 cents for doing a dollar's worth of work.

"Then you discover that money, which is sometimes supposed to solve everything, sometimes doesn't solve anything, but it is a very expensive way of discovering it, I must say.

NEVER GOT FAR

"I lived in Lincoln, Nebraska, home town of William Jennings Bryan, when the great crusader began his free silver campaign in the '90's. He never got very far with that campaign, yet between 1900 and 1912 you had an unexampled period of prosperity in the world, despite the fact that this monetary magic and cure-all had not been put into effect.

"It was trade and production and work and development that did this, not tinkering with money. If only people would ponder upon the significance of these things, they would not be so easily misled by new-fangled monetary fads.

"You had monetary crusades in 1890, in 1921, in 1931-36, whenever we had a depression. In 1890 there was talk of war as there is today. But with the turn of the century when trade developed and development began we had a spirit of peace that endured until the war clouds gathered in 1914.

"But I can sympathize with people who are talking about monetary reform and about the interests of the East, because before the war I did some talking like that myself.

"I did not know why people could not borrow, when I saw men idle on streets of Regina and knew that not all the homesteads even had been taken up. When I read the White Paper, however, on the outbreak of the war, I knew the answer.

CREDIT DRIED UP

"Credit was dried up. You remember how people said the war would be over in three weeks, that there was no credit before the war and would be no credit for the war, and so they would have to quit fighting.

"Well, people quit fighting not because of lack of credit but because of something much more important—the lack of food.

"All I am trying to do is rid your minds of this false obsession of the all-importance of money and to remind you that money is only a means to an end, is only a medium of exchange.

NOT PARTY ISSUE

"The Liberal party has never looked upon the granting of relief as a party issue. We have always maintained that any party in power municipally, provincially or federally, would recognize responsibility toward those who are experiencing difficulties, because of circumstances over which they personally have no control.

"I think that if the Social Credit government were in power it would do its best to deal with relief, that a Socialist or Conservative government would do the same. All we ask you to believe is that a Liberal government is also doing the same.

"The national government has assumed responsibility for giving assistance where need has arisen from any one of three causes.

"1—The Great War. Returned men and their families who are in need as a result of war service are properly the care of the national government, who should look after these prematurely burnt out men not yet ready for old age pensions but needing assistance.

"2—Then there are the persons who assisted in prosecuting the war, who undertook obligations which have resulted in difficulty, since those who broke marginal lands as a result of propaganda during the war are now living in the drought areas.

"There are some who now pretend to be wise after the event and say that these drought areas never should have been farmed. They were originally farmed as a great war measure.

FOOD CONTROL

"I remember that Mr. Bennett and Mr. Dunning and I and scores of others went up and down the country urging that these marginal lands be cultivated. Why? Because there was food control, talk of rationing, shortages of food supplies for the Allies.

"So, these additional lands were brought into service and they were of great assistance to Canada and Great Britain and the Allies. But when low prices and poor crops came, the problem of the drought areas developed.

WAR OBLIGATIONS

"We must not forget the original war obligation that made many settlers work these lands in the first place.

"There are men and their families in these drought regions where the breadwinner is working harder than ever before but because of the unbearable climatic conditions is receiving no return.

"3—Then there is the international fear of and preparation for war.

NATIONAL FEAST DAY

"A few weeks ago Italy held a National Feast Day to celebrate the fact that Italy was now able to feed itself out of foodstuffs grown within Italy itself.

"Mussolini pinned a medal on the breasts of leading farmers who had taken part in the drive for self-sufficiency and were instrumental in seeing its success. Germany has been running her a close second.

"The three great democratic countries are France, Great Britain and the United States who are now arming for self-defence.

SPARSELY SETTLED

"Do you realize that Canada is one of the sparsely settled countries of the world, is really the last great west, and that the rich areas of western Canada form a nation richer than the nations dictator countries wish to conquer?

"The needs of the drouth area have been recognized by the Liberal government and has resulted in the blanket debt adjustment plan which has been applied to the drouth areas of Saskatchewan and also in that part of the rehabilitation program which is associated with reclamation and resettlement about community pastures.

"After it was clear that it was impossible for the farmers of these areas to meet their obligations, we went to the creditors from Winnipeg to Toronto and met at a meeting in Toronto.

"I want to emphasize these negotiations of 1934. The first suggestion was that we get around a round table. We believed that it was necessary to try the reasonable approach, try compromise and conciliation first.

RESORT TO LEGISLATION

"If that method failed, then it was time, and only then, to resort to legislation to grapple with the problem.

"Well, to cut a long story short, the creditors asked us what we thought the remedy should be and what they should do to deal with this ominous debt problem.

"I said, cancel all the interest charges from the time the farms lost their first crop.

"We were told that if that were done these companies and creditors would go insolvent themselves, because they could no longer meet their own obligations.

MORE CROP FAILURES

"Well, after temporary attempts at a settlement, there were two more crop failures in successive years and the bad situation grew even worse.

Presides

A. R. McLENNAN

president of the East Edmonton Liberal Association, who was chairman of the nominating convention Thursday night when R. C. Marshall was named party candidate.

"So the creditors and Saskatchewan officials came to me in Ottawa—I was no longer premier of Saskatchewan, but was now a member of the federal cabinet — and asked me again what should be done. I renewed my original offer —cancel interest, at least all back interest charges down to January 1, 1935, and put debts on a new basis.

"What would we at Ottawa not have given to have had a minister from Alberta to talk for Alberta, or even if it had asked Mr. MacKinnon or someone else to plead its case before the council and get similar treatment as Saskatchewan was to receive?

"But no, Alberta did not ask for such treatment, has still not asked for it.

"Well, I went down to the council chamber and pleaded for a settlement of Saskatchewan's problems and as you know it was granted. Inside of 12 months, more than 100 million dollars had been written off for farmers in the drouth stricken areas.

NO APPROACH MADE

"I have no hesitation in telling you that had Alberta appeared to ask for similar treatment, it would have received as friendly a hearing as did Saskatchewan.

"But no offer was made, no approach was made. If Alberta wants the Saskatchewan settlement, or one similar to it, all it has to do is ask for it and it can get it within 24 hours. But thus far no move in this direction has been made.

"In Saskatchewan, the farmers are starting anew, with fresh contracts, new obligations, without a dollar of debt burdening them, after 100 million dollars in debts has has been written off.

COMPARE SETTLEMENT

"Now compare that settlement with the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act, which has been working for 3½ years in Alberta and 3 years in Saskatchewan and wiped out in that period about 10-12 million dollars in debt settlements.

"In 12 months, I repeat, 100 million dollars was wiped out in the drouth areas by the Saskatchewan settlement.

"There are 40 million acres of occupied land suffering from drouth, with between 70 to 80 thousand farmers living in that region. Naturally not all can be satisfied by the government's policy of coping with continued climatic misfortunes, but the government has met with very little criticism indeed for its efforts.

"Some of the things the national government has accepted financial responsibility for is the supplying of clothing and fuel, free freight for shipping out of live stock, the purchase of 90,000 head of cattle at $3 a head. These cattle were shipped out of the country so we would not have to feed them here.

LET FARMER TAKE MONEY

"We paid for cattle at the Winnipeg price on the date of delivery and let the farmer take the money home with him.

"There were no restrictions as to how the money should be spent, except for a municipal clause which declared that farmers should not cut down stock to certain limits established by the province, not by the federal government.

POLICY SUCCESSFUL

"The policy has been very successful in all drouth areas, and it is only in the regions around the edge, which haven't quite reconciled themselves to the fact that they also are in the drouth area, that there has been some slight criticism.

"On this entire matter of livestock shipments and so forth, we have had fair co-operation from Alberta as from Saskatchewan and have no criticism at all to offer on that score. That work has been done and done well.

"We also have supplied 73,000 farmers and others in villages and towns in drouth areas with cheese, thereby helping mothers worrying along on a relief voucher to feed their families and at the same time popularize good old Eastern Canada cheese in the West, thereby building up a market for our own cheese products, whose sale has been falling badly since 1900, while New Zealand's has been going up.

WILL HAVE CHEESE

"We put 30 pounds of cheese in all those 73,000 homes, and now when they are hungry in the long winter months, they will have cheese which before they lacked.

"I received a letter from a mother of six children whose husband had died three years ago. When two boxes of apples were brought in, the children asked if they might eat them.

"You should have seen their faces, their mother said, when they ate the apples. It was the first time they had tasted an apple since their father died.

"I never felt so proud of being in public life as when I read that letter and felt that the heart of Canada was not hard or indifferent to the suffering of Canadians.

WORK OF PEOPLE

"I repeat, this work is not the work of the Canadian government but of the Canadian people. From Halifax to Vancouver, and even within the drouth area itself, people have rallied to aid those in want.

"The settlers out west have aunts and uncles, brothers and sisters, cousins and nieces in Eastern Canada and they hastened to prove that there are no boundaries in Canada when Canadians need help.

"One thousand carloads of food and clothing were shipped into the drouth area. We may well be proud of that record.

"Economic nationalism and political unrest are rampant in the world, boding danger to a world that will not bravely face up to its destiny and solve its problems by reason rather than sudden resort to force.

"Are we to meet such a situation by saying that we will become narrow nationalists? Are we to go further and contend that we can shut ourselves within the narrow bounds of Alberta and thus work out our salvation?

PEACEFUL WORLD NEEDED

"Aberhart cannot solve the depression, nor can the Canadian government solve the depression by itself. What is needed is a world at peace and enjoying the advantages of mutually advantageous and steadily expanding trade.

"I told the Toronto Board of Trade a short while ago some facts about the West which may be worth repeating.

"Do you know that 60 per cent of all the farm lands in Canada lie west of Winnipeg? Do you know that at present 27 per cent of the mineral wealth of Canada comes out of the west?

"Do you know that almost all the oil supplies and coal supplies also come from the west? Do you know, too, that there is more water power on both sides of the Rocky mountains than anywhere else in Canada?

"Do you know that there is a home for a nation in that part of Canada stretching from Winnipeg to the Peace River country, then to the American boundary and to the Pacific Coast?

ONLY POLICY

"The Liberal policy of production and trade, I must emphasize, is the only policy which will turn the wheels of industry and transportation.

"The Liberal policy of production and trade is the only policy which will give purchasing power.

"The Liberal party is the only party advocating and developing production and trade as a solution of your problems.

"We sold a 100 millions dollars more in goods to the United States in 1937 than in 1935, and increased our sales to Great Britain by the same figure.

MORE EMPLOYED

"There are 2,377,000 men and women employed in Canada now, more than ever before. There are only 381,000 unemployed in the Dominion now, the lowest figure since 1929.

"There is no longer any need of relief camps for boys as there was in the United States, no longer any need of stopping 2,000 hunger marchers at Regina who were on their way to Ottawa.

"Of course, they were not stopped until they got to Regina, because there was a Liberal government there.

"But after mingling with the boys, and trying to make them see the reasonable point of view, they consented to be sent back to the various places in western Canada from whence they had converged.

PAID TRANSPORTATION

"Of course, we paid their transportation costs. It cost Saskatchewan $40,000.

"When we sent the bill to Mr. Bennett, he refused to let the Conservative government honor it. When the Liberal government came in, it did pay the bill.

"For 25 years I have been taking part in elections in the province of Saskatchewan. There is nothing that could please me more than to have a part in the resurrection of the faith which will be experienced in this city on March 21.

"Twenty-five years ago last July I was a young school teacher serving my apprenticeship as a campaigner and I did so under the tutelage of the late Hon. Frank Oliver. The meeting was held in the town of Wolseley.

CURTAIN RAISER

"I was the curtain-raiser. From that meeting I went out to meet Conservative speakers in joint meetings. The Liberals swept the province, and I have been in every political campaign since held in Saskatchewan.

"It is a pleasure to come back to the home town of the late Hon. Frank Oliver, my western political leader of those days, to do what he would do were he alive—namely, boost for Liberalism and the west.

"I have been making an appeal for Liberalism. May I close, as the one member of the cabinet who actually lives in the West, with an appeal for Alberta and the West.

Supporter

ALD. F. C. CASSELMAN

who declined to stand for nomination in the Liberal convention to pick a candidate for the East Edmonton by-election, Thursday night. He offered full support to successful R. C. Marshall.

"I love the West. So do you. We love it because we came here young with nothing in our pockets and life all ahead of us. We accepted Liberalism, whatever our past had been, because we associated it with agriculture, the future of which required production and trade.

"I look upon the area from Winnipeg to Vancouver and from the American boundary to the Arctic as the future hope of Canada.

"When this area, with its great resources, is developed, do you realize that Alberta must be its throbbing industrial centre? Do you realize that it will be Edmonton and Calgary and cities yet unborn that will reap the benefit?

"Your oil, your coal, your water power, your very location between the mineral and agricultural areas render this not only possible but unavoidable.

ALBERTA MUST PRODUCE

"But to achieve that happy result, Alberta must not cut herself apart from the rest of Canada but must produce and produce and produce.

"Alberta must play its part in the national economy if Canada is to prosper and Alberta must realize that only if Canada prospers can she herself move forward to continued progress. There is no hope in isolation.

"Saskatchewan can never develop further until you do. British Columbia can never come into her own until we both develop. That is why Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of defence, and I are associating ourselves with you in this appeal.

ORGANIZE FOR ALBERTA

"Do you realize that you have been sitting apart in groups unknown outside of Alberta since 1921? We urge you to organize for Alberta, to organize for Canada.

"Get behind the Liberal party and sit with us in the council of Canada to urge the claims of the land of Oliver.

"There are some who say that Alberta does not care much for Liberals and Conservatives and has four times rejected them since 1921. Well, you see how Alberta has done without representation at Ottawa.

"But let me say this. In Canada the choice is made as to our national government not by what Alberta says but by what electors from Halifax to Vancouver say.

HELP CANADA FORWARD

"Their choice will be that Canada will be governed by Conservatives or by Liberals. I don't like it when we are governed by Conservatives, but I try my best to help Canada forward all the same and do my share as a citizen of the country.

"What will Alberta do? Will it stay out of step or will it instead get behind great national organizations—call them parties if you will —that are pledged to progress and dedicated to reform?

"The latter way is the solution. I hope the election on March 21 will endorse it. Let the electors of East Edmonton tell the dominion on that day that Alberta is again in line with policies that are working to the welfare of the majority of Canadian people from coast to coast."

Diversion Tax To Education Asked

SASKATOON, Feb. 18.—Because it was felt that the revenue received by school boards was inequitable and unsatisfactory, delegates to the annual convention of the Saskatchewan School Trustees' Association here Thursday passed a resolution asking that the government divert the money received from the public revenue tax to the education fund of the province. The public revenue tax could be earmarked for education, and increased grants to schools could then follow, it was felt.

Farmers Plow Snow Into Rows To Save Moisture

REGINA, Feb. 18.—Calculated to conserve moisture for next summer's crops from snow lying on fields, some Saskatchewan farmers have been plowing the snow into furrows.

Andrew MacBeth, prominent Reginan who owns farm lands in the Regina district, is taking advantage of the exceptionally heavy snowfall this winter.

He has plowed the snow in wind rows across his fields. Last summer he noticed the crops near fences, where snow drifts during winter, were greener than they were in mid-field, so this winter he had made artificial drifts through the fields to catch additional snow.

He plows the wind rows in a northeasterly direction, in order to catch the prevailing winds. He makes rows about four rods apart and from three to four feet high.

James Henderson, farmer of the Zealandia district, near Rosetown in west central Saskatchewan, uses an improvised snow plow dragged behind a tractor to pile the snow into banks on his wheat fields.

Beef Builds Better Bodies

Everyday Can Be "Sunday Dinner" With New Low Prices For Beef Prevailing Throughout Canada

Sino-Japanese relations, and the latest political developments may occupy the most prominent places in the chronicles of current events but if Canadian housewives were editors for a time, the fact that beef prices are falling would headline the news of the day.

Beef, one of the most nutritious and savory of foods, beef, the basis of the meals of Britishers the world over, beef, one of the best-nown sources of energy, is now available at very attractive prices. This, as a matter of fact, is "Eat More Beef" week, and in the next few months producers will be marketing the finest quality grain-fed beef.

Abundant in body building protein, minerals and essential vitamins, beef is also easily digested. No wonder it is a favorite with the entire family. No wonder it is listed by nutritional authorities as an important part of a normal, well-balanced diet.

Prices have gone down, and knowing housewives can even reduce the new low cost of beef, if they spend a little more time in preparation and employing correct methods of cooking, so that even economical cuts will be rendered tender and delicious.

ECONOMICAL CUTS

All good housewives value these methods of cooking economical cuts:

Braise—Steaks and roasts from round, rump and chuck; short ribs from plate and flank steak from flank.

Beef is seasoned with salt and pepper, quickly browned on both sides, then placed in a roasting pan with small quantitfy of water or meat stock. Cover tightly and cook in oven or on top of stove at a low temperature for several hours.

Simmer—Boiling beef from plate, brisket, shank, flank, and neck, corned beef from rump, plate and brisket.

Beef is entirely covered with warm water, seasoned with salt and pepper and allowed to cook just below boiling point until tender. Do not allow to boil, just simmer slowly.

Stew—Pieces from plate, round, chuck.

Cut Beef in 2-inch cubes. Season with salt and pepper. Quickly brown on both sides. Then cover with boiling water and cook slowly until done. Do not allow to boil.

If you're having beef for dinner tonight why not try this recipe for

STUFFED FLANK STEAK

One large or 2 small flank steaks, ¼ pound bulk sausage, 1 cup bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, ½ cup chopped celery, meat stock or water, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, lard for browning.

Have one large or two small flank steaks scored at the market. Fry the sausage with the onion and parsley, stirring constantly until the meat is cooked enough so it separates into particles. Add the crumbs and seasonings and enough liquid to make a moist dressing. Rub the steak with salt and pepper and spread with dressing. If one large steak, fasten the edges together with string or skewers so that it makes a long roll. If two small steaks, sew or skewer one on top of the other. Brown on all sides in a small amount of lard. Add a small amount of water, meat stock or tomato juice, and cook in a moderate oven or over a slow fire until done, about one and a half hours.

MEAT PIE

Old-fashioned meat pie is a perennial favorite too, especially if it is cooked according to this recipe:

Two cups cooked beef, 3 small onions, 2 cups meat stock, 3 cooked potatoes, 2 tablespoons lard, 2 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper, biscuits.

Cut the beef into small pieces. Dice potatoes and chop onions. Combine flour and melted fat and gradually add the meat stock. Heat, then add beef, onion and potatoes.

Three other interesting recipes are given below:

MEAT LOAF WITH HORSERADISH

Two pounds ground beef, 1 pound ground pork, ¼ pound grated onion, ½ cup horseradish, 1 teaspoon mustard, 2 eggs, 1 cup cracker crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup tomato catsup.

Mix all ingredients except the catsup. Pack into well-greased loaf an. Cover top with tomato catsup. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one hour.

HAMBURGER PATTIES WITH BACON AND ONION RINGS

One and a half pounds ground beef, 1 small onion, grated, 1 egg, slightly beaten, 6 long slices bacon, 2 large Spanish onions, salt and pepper, lard.

Season ground beef with salt, pepper, and grated onion. Moisten with slightly beaten egg and shape into cakes of the desired size. Wrap with bacon slices and fasten with skewers or toothpicks. Place in a hot slightly greased skillet and let brown on both sides, then cook at a lower temperature until done. Serve on fried onion circles.

OVEN STEW

One and a half pounds diced beef chuck, 2 slices salt pork, 1½ cups water, 1 large onion, chopped, 1 can tomato soup, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon Paprika, 6 medium-sized carrots, 6 medium-sized potatoes.

Cube pork and brown in skillet. Remove to baking dish, leaving fat in pan. Brown chopped onions, put with beef in baking dish. To remainder of fat add water, tomato soup, salt, pepper and paprika; thicken with flour mixed with a little cold water. Pour over beef and onions in baking dish. Add carrots and potatoes. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one and a half hours.

BEEF SHOULD TOP MENU AT EVERY DINNER

"Beef should top the menu," . . . extract from an article appearing in an eastern newspaper and written by one of Canada's outstanding home economists, Miss Jessie Read, who, wise in the arts of the kitchen and the pantry, places beef as a basis for home cooking.

Because of the fact that beef is now very inexpensive, many delicious dishes are at the disposal of all housewives for their planning.

What family does not remember the Sunday dinner roast of beef. Steaming hot and golden brown, with its happy attendant, rich flavorful gravy, assuming its major role on the Sunday board. There were dishes of vegetables and pickles, probably, and other main course dainties, but it was the roast that held the centre of the stage and determined the success or the failure of the meal.

Home economists now say that everyday should be a "Sunday dinner day," with the tempting cuts that beef has to offer, and with the more than reasonable price level beef has come to.

Housewives know, too, the value of roasts of beef both as a main course and a subsidiary. Wary home-makers know how to use the bits of beef that are left over . they prove the basis of little munchy meat cakes, they can be used cold with a fresh vegetable salad for a supper dish, they make perfect sandwiches for that "midnight snack" so inevitable in some homes.

What if your family does tire just a wee bit of England's good old roast beef? Why not tempt their appetites with a huge juicy steak? With fried potatoes they're pretty hard to beat, you can be sure of that, and with all the new modern ways of turning out beef steaks, why you'll be as popular as a queen if you give your family steaks for dinner. Waffled steaks, broiled sirloins, Swiss or Spanish steaks offer wide and interesting variety to the tired-of-cooking housewife.

So now, Mrs. Housewife, when Friend Hubby (as he does so often) phones at the last minute and tells you he's got company executives from the East coming home with him for dinner, be nonchalant and serve some of the "quick as a minute" dishes of roast beef and succulent steaks.

HOUSEWIVES REJOICING AS PRICES FALL

So it's not all wars and rumors of wars in the newspapers these days! Oh, no! Nor is the news chiefly concerned with the fact that bonspiels are being played and ice carnivals being planned and the weather is much too friendly with the "below zero" mark on the thermometer. There are other things in the news these days which are worth looking for and exclaiming over!

Some of this exciting news is about a very homely subject about eating. Now you're interested, we know, and we'll tell you.

"Throughout the next five or six months," says a bulletin on meat, "an abundance of finer quality grain-fed beef will be marketed in Canada. Prices will be at popular levels and prices should again reign supreme on every Canadian dinner table."

Then, as it goes on to say, the beef contains a moderate amount of fat and marbling, so essential for proper cooking and fine rich flavor, you'll know that is why cooks and housewives all over Canada are finding other interesting things in the newspapers.

And you can be sure it isn't only housewives that are interested in these kitchen hints. What does the curler want after a hard day at the rink? Or the skaters after they've practiced their intricate steps, or children who come romping in from healthy outdoor play. Of course, they want their dinners, and probably a dinner of beef steak, or of roast beef, moreover to give them that "filled up" feeling where they have something like a vacuum before.

STYLISH MEAT BALLS TASTY, AND ECONOMIC

Shopping pleases but tires, and you may find yourself, around about five-thirty, with not an earthly of what the supper table is going to produce for your "lord and master," or just what is going to appease the ravenous appetites of your eight-and nine-year-olds.

So, for a quick inspiration and a delicious hot dish, try Meat Balls.

One and a half pounds ground beef, ½ cup uncooked rice, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1 can tomato soup, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper.

Mix beef, rice and seasonings. Shape into small balls and drop into tomato soup, to which water, onion and green pepper have been added. Cook slowly for forty minutes. Serve on hot plate with tomato sauce over them.

SPANISH POT ROAST FORMS NOVEL FARE

Bridge club dinners are nice but a problem unless you've got an "idea" for a smart and new dish that will turn the tide of an otherwise dull and usual meal into an exciting and palatable adventure. Your guests will be so happy about the first course, if you serve this delightful Spanish pot roast, that they'll forget to hope for ice cream for dessert and content themselves with seeing how many helping they can ask for without offending your dignity as a hostess or without the supply running out.

Try it, the dish that's called Spanish pot roast,, and you make it this way:

Take 3 pounds beef chuck, 1 onion (minced), flour for dredging, lard for browning, 3 tablespoons lard, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 cup hot water, salt and pepper.

Rub the beef with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Brown on all sides in hot lard. Add the other ingredients, cover and cook slowly until the beef is tender, about three

EAT BEEF FOR VIM AND VIGOR

A Message to the Housewives of Alberta . . .

I am indeed very pleased to accede to the request of the sponsors of the "Eat-More-Beef-Campaign-Week," to send a message to the housewives of Alberta.

Beef has always been one of the chief elements in the diet of mankind. Long before man began to write a record of history, primitive man enjoyed his meat.

The pioneers who laid the foundation of our very fine province, derived much of their strength from the consumption of beef.

Beef contains the highest form of protein for human consumption in the most palatable, stimulating and digestible form. It is an energy producer, and a muscle builder, it supplies mineral salts and the three powerful groups of vitamins.

Combined with vegetables, it makes an ideal food as a mixed diet, the nutritive superiority of which long years of human history have demonstrated.

When purchasing beef, the best quality should be selected. The best is always the cheapest.

Your co-operation in the support of the "Eat-More-Beef-Campaign" will mean much to your families, and you will also help to build up one of our chief industries.

Minister of Agriculture.

Trustees Urged To Keep Sober Mind In Problems

SASKATOON, Feb. 18.—Dr. J. S. Thomson, president of the University of Saskatchewan, last night challenged school trustees to "keep a sober mind" in their dealings with child education.

They had been elected, he told delegates at the Saskatchewan School Trustees' Association annual convention, to "raise a crop of young men and young women equipped to solve the problems attending civilization."

The president urged the trustees to draw a distinct line between propaganda and education. Propaganda, he claimed, was "of the devil." Education was essential to train youth to overcome the difficulties attending a change in social structure which of itself provided more opportunity for progress than ever in the world's history.

Persons with small minds, poor vision and lack of faith in the future could find no place in the struggle to solve the questions now presented by the world, he asserted.

JAP INFLUX IS TOUCHY TOPIC HOUSE DEBATE

definitely an "exclusion" bill and would be deeply resented by Japan.

"There are people in Japan who are stirring up feeling against the British empire," he declared. "And what would be the situation in Japan tomorrow if it were known that one of the British dominions had passed an exclusion bill against Japanese."

The prime minister cited the furore which followed the United States exclusion bill in 1934. It had been met by protests throughout Japan and resolutions were passed by both houses of the Japanese diet.

"Would it make things any better in British Columbia," he asked. "British Columbia is facing one problem now but it might be facing another more menacing if we were to pass this bill. The government is taking steps to ensure the security of the province of British Columbia, but should be careful to give no offence."

DUCKED COUNTRY

Tom Reid (Lib.) declared that a few years ago the R.C.M.P. had discovered 600 Japanese illegally in British Columbia and immediately 900 Japanese had "ducked" the country.

Several members condemned the "gentleman's agreement" but Mr. King cited figures to show the agreement had been kept.

He pointed out however that there would be attempts at surreptitious entry whether there was a "gentlemen's agreement" or an exclusion bill.

"The departments concerned are giving this matter a closer scrutiny than ever before," he said. "Officials of immigration, fisheries, intelligence, defence, and external affairs have been working together.

"Strict regulations have been framed in Ottawa and out in British Columbia government officers are enforcing them.

"We intend to intensify that investigation into these illegal entries. Everything possible that can be done, will be done."

AFFECTS EMPIRE

The Prime Minister carefully explained why the government could not support the bill. The matter went deeper than British Columbia, than Canada; it affected the whole Empire.

He believed that much might be done by negotiation. He corrected the prevalent idea that China had been satisfied with the checks on Chinese immigration.

The first thing the new Chinese consul-general had done on arrival was to make protest against these checks.

Dr. Wellington Koo himself had made similar protests. The Prime Minister admitted that all Orientals should be on the same basis but on arriving at that basis British India had to be taken into account. They were British subjects.

Mr. King also foresaw difficulties if members of parliament were asked to go on record with respect to the bill "referring to the coming vote."

Most members would be in sympathy with it for Canadian reasons, but would feel obliged to oppose it for international reasons. He therefore moved the adjournment of the debate.

Mr. Neil, however, would not yield. He knew he would be outvoted, so when the motion to adjourn was called he vigorously shouted "No."

WAS SHELVED

The speaker again put the motion to adjourn. This time half a dozen others joined Mr. Neil and cried "Nay," but the rest all cried "Aye" and so the debate adjourned and the bill was shelved.

The shelving effectively disposes of the bill for this session at least, for the debate cannot be revived unless the government agrees, and this it will not do.

The entire debate was marked by a strong rêpression of language, every member being careful to say nothing which might be construed as giving affront to Japan.

The gravity of the situation brought strange happenings. It cut across party lines, it brought support from unexpected quarters.

The House heard the call; the sympathy was almost unanimous.

Japan also heard the call; throughout the debate a dark, silent, almost sinister figure sat in the gallery — the Japanese charge d'affaires, T. Kinoshito.

Mr. Neil made a masterly presentation of the case. He was seconded by Howard Green, a Conservative. Grant Macneill, (C.C.F.) rallied to the cause. There were others, all from British Columbia, all deadly in earnest. They asked that the Japanese be put on the same footing as the Chinese. Japan couldn't cavil at that.

Grote Stirling struck a quiet diplomatic note. He felt it important that nothing should be said that would give affront to any nation.

None the less he was definitely and unequivocally for the bill. His leader Mr. Bennett took an important stand in the debate.

Mr. Bennett's contribution was illuminating. Thirty-five years ago he had felt that the problem was not a serious one, but he had lived to find at first hand it was terribly serious.

Throughout his speech Mr. Bennett held himself in restraint. Time after time he checked and changed his words that he should give no affront to any nation.

OWN KNOWLEDGE

He left no doubts, however that of his own knowledge he knew what was going on at the coast; of the position with respect to the Japanese fishermen, with the knowledge the Japs were acquiring about Canada's dispositions and resources.

He left the impression that he knew a great deal more than he could say. It was not hearsay, but actual knowledge.

Mr. Bennett realized and appreciated the government's difficulty. He proposed that the bill be passed but should not come into effect save on proclamation or at a fixed future date such as July 1, 1939. The prime minister felt this would not meet the situation.

Orient Affairs Are Bad Enough: King

OTTAWA, Feb. 1—This is not the time for Canada to run the risk of offending Oriental pride and dignity by passing an exclusion law against the Japanese Prime Minister Mackenzie King warned the House of Commons last night.

International affairs, particularly in the Orient, were bad enough without Canada adding fuel to the fire that might strike back not only against the Dominion but the British Empire as a whole.

SAME AS ENDING

The prime minister made his statement before adjourning debate—a parliamentary manoeuvre tantamount to ending discussion for the session—on a bill sponsored by A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni), which would have amounted to an immigration exclusion against the Japanese, placing them on a parity with the Chinese.

The prime minister agreed with the British Columbia members who supported the Neill bill that a serious situation existed in the Pacific coast province because of Japanese immigration with consequent unfair competition against white Canadians resulting from conflicting standards of living.

At the same time, Mr. Mackenzie King noted that immigration from Japan under the present gentleman's agreement with that country was limited to 150 Japanese a year and had averaged 81 in the past five years.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

He promised an active campaign by every agency at the government's command against illegal entry of Japanese and a continuation of a check-up among the Japanese to weed out those who had come into Canada illegally.

The prime minister agreed with Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, and other members that an immigration parity should exist between Japan and China but he believed this could be created best by an agreement between the countries.

"When the United States passed its Japanese exclusion law in 1924, an acute international condition arose, Mr. Mackenzie King said. If that happened in 1924, when world conditions were comparatively peaceful, he asked what might be expected today, considering the Sino-Japanese conflict and the fact a section of the Japanese at home were active in formenting discontent against the British Empire.

WAIT FOR YEAR

Mr. Bennett agreed with the principle of the Neill bill but suggested it should not become operative for a year, allowing the government time to make representations to the Japanese.

It was incumbent upon Canada to take no sides in the Sino-Japanese conflict but Mr. Bennett believed ultimately China and Japan must be placed on an immigration parity.

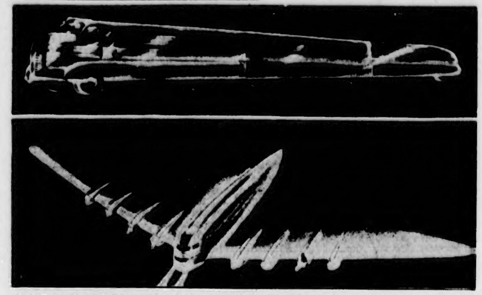
The situation in British Columbia was acute, Mr. Bennett said, "and it may manifest itself in very strange ways in the next few weeks." Action must be taken but, at the same time, Canada must maintain an even balance between China and Japan and take no action that might endanger its attitude of neutrality.

INDICATE TO JAPAN

It might be best, Mr. Bennett said, to indicate to Japan an immigration parity would be established and that "the end of our patience has been reached and we no longer wish to maintain a so-called gentleman's agreement founded on a false basis which has been an incentive to the improper entrance to this country of many people."

Supporting the Neill bill were eight British Columbia members who cut across party lines. They referred to the economic inroads of 30,000 Japanese in British Columbia, their alarming birth rate and their refusal to be assimilated.

Tomorrow's Transport



A high-speed truck-train and a faster, more powerful and safer plane, as envisioned by industrial designer Raymond Loewy, are pictured above. These new departures in the transportation scheme of the world of tomorrow will be on show in the focal exhibit on transportation at the New York world's fair in 1939. The streamlined truck-train, top, will replace the motor truck and trailer of today. The eight engined airliner, bottom, will be foolproof, with comfort and safety as the reigning features.

HARD TOP FOR ROAD BLOCKED BY DEBT COST would cease hampering the policy of enabling the people to utilize their natural resources, the minister added.

The complete discussion follows:

Mr. Aberhart: As I listened to the announcer tonight making that strikng statement, I could not help asking myself the question—"Is that true? Do the roads of a province reflect the character of the government and are they the barometer of real progress?"

I cannot deny these assertions but I submit that three other factors must be taken into consideration before a final judgment is given:

1—The kind of weather that is prevailing in the province. Heavy rains and severe frosts raise havoc on roads generally.

2—The type of the soil through which the road must run—boggy, swampy and hilly land make roads more difficult and more costly.

3—The skill and integrity of the men in charge of the administration of road construction.

If you ask me. it is largely in the sphere of this last factor that the politics of the roads come in.

ARE BAROMETER

If a province has a fairly good climate, an average amount of good roadbed, and an efficient honorable minister and staff in the public works department, then the roads of a province are a barometer of a progressive, sane government.

Mr. Low: I think, Mr. Aberhart, that this is all the more so when you consider that the department of public works is usually the largest spending department of the government. If there is real efficiency, it should be manifest in this department.

Mr. Aberhart: Well, Mr. Treasurer, that is your end of the problem, but the fact that this department of every government has always been the target of charges and counter charges shows us that it is in this corner of administration that the evil of politics festers.

ARE ESSENTIAL

Mr. Low: That is a generally recognized fact but, notwithstanding that sordid consideration, we do know that good roads are an essential to the satisfactory development of any province. They enable the citizen to market his product and to carry on his business expeditiously. They are a paramount necessity to the establishment of good homes and prosperous communities.

Mr. Aberhart: Especially is this the case in a rapidly expanding or newly settled section. But we must let the minister, Honorable Mr. Fallow, tell the people about it. Mr. Fallow has handled this department from the very beginning of our regime, and I think that he knows what he is about. He has certainly done good work. Here you are, Mr. Fallow, you take the microphone.

Mr. Fallow: Ladies and Gentlemen—I am very much interested in our department of public works. I have had some little pleasure in endeavoring to get it to the place where it will function as I think it ought to function. I feel certain that, in the near future, I shall be able to demonstrate the wisdom of the present government's policies with regard to roads.

When I accepted the responsibility of administering the department in September, 1935, I was faced with a lack of funds due to an impoverished condition of the treasury, which made it very difficult to make very definite plans. I also found many of our roads, yes, even some of our main highways in a horrifying condition, very badly run down and disintegrated. Hundreds of bridges and culverts were in a broken down, dilapidated and often dangerous state.

Mr. Aberhart: The previous governments had spent much money on the roads, had they not?

STILL PART DEBT

Mr. Fallow: Yes, Mr. Premier, they had, or at least the records show the figures. According to the books, $76,000,000 has been expended by previous governments on roads; $35,000,000 of this amount still remains as part of the provincial debt.

Mr. Low: Pardon me a moment! The average rate of interest at which these bonds were sold was 5.24 per cent. That would mean that we are still paying for the roads that were once gravelled but are today badly broken down.

Mr. Aberhart: Why, Mr. Low, if we did not have to pay that interest for a year, we could hard-surface a highway from Edmonton to Peace River or Grande Prairie.

Mr. Fallow: Yes, Mr. Premier, or to St. Paul and Lac La Biche. But that is not all. It is costing us about $800 a mile every year to keep these old gravel roads in passable shape.

Mr. Low: I am sure, Mr. Fallow, that the people are beginning to realize that a new policy of road construction and maintenance is long past due.

OVER 3,000 MILES

Mr. Fallow: I believe so, but let me start from the ground and outline this whole matter. In this province of Alberta, there are a little more than 3,000 miles of main highways, for which the government accepts full responsibility. In addition to that there are about 11,000 miles of district highways towards which the provincial government has made some financial advances to the municipalities.

Over and above all this, there are about 75,000 miles of local roads which are the sole responsibility of the municipalites.

It is estimated that the total of the government's responsibility for roads would cover about 7,000 miles.

Mr. Aberhart: Mr. Fallow, what would it cost to hard-surface with blotter treatment the whole 7,000 miles?

Mr. Fallow: I should estimate that it would cost around 18 million dollars.

Mr. Aberhart: And how much did you say was spent altogether on roads by the previous governments?

COVERS MAINTENANCE

Mr. Fallow: $76,000,000. Of course, that covers maintenance as well. Let me be a little more specific. During the years 1931 and 1932, the previous administration borrowed $8,000,000 for main and secondary construction and maintenance at a rate of interest slightly over 5 per cent.

You may ask me what was done with this $8,000,000 on which we are still paying interest. I am sorry I cannot tell you. It is difficult to find any evidence of what was done.

I should like to give you some idea of what might be done with that amount of money if properly expended.

With $8,000,000 we could hard-surface every main highway at present in this province. And the benefit would be cumulative, because, once hard-surfaced, the maintenance charges are so greatly reduced.

Mr. Low: How would the maintenance charges compare as between the old gravel roads and the hard surface highways?

Mr. Fallow: The old extravagant and hazardous system of highways cost the people of this province almost $1,000,000 a year for maintenance. Under a proper highway program such as we are inaugurating, this expense will be reduced to a mere fraction of that amount. Such a saving would enable us to build more and better roads for everyone.

Let me make this more simple if possible. The annual cost of maintenance of a gravelled main highway amounts to about $1,000 a mile, whereas the maintenance charge of a permanent road is as low as $50 per mile.

Mr. Aberhart: Mr. Fallow, I cannot help expressing my appreciation of your splendid work. Your definite enthusiasm convinces me that you are getting some place.

Mr. Fallow: Thank you, Mr. Aberhart. I have been greatly encouraged by the letters I have received expressing the delight of the travelling public with the roads that we have completed during the last two years.

QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE

It is my considered opinion that the construction of the main highways is wholly a governmental responsibility; that no private enterprise can claim that it is entitled to any preferred consideration; and that the proper function of the government is to provide the people of the province with an adequate system of highways as quickly and as efficiently as possible.

Mr. Low: When I think of the present financial system, your words "as quickly and efficiently as possible," puzzle me!

Mr. Fallow: I understand what you mean, but the people ought to know that this government could and would provide an adequate system of highways very rapidly if only Ottawa and the financiers would cease hampering its policy of enabling the people to utilize and enjoy their natural resources.

Mr. Aberhart: As I hear you tell of past borrowings and the increase of public debt with heavy interest charges, I have been wondering how many warnings the bankers and the party politicians gave the people? Were association and chain broadcasts put over at great cost to show them the shackles of the debts that were being created? Did the Bankers' Association have half-page advertisements in all the local weekly papers explaining to the people "sane and sound procedure"? And to caution them regarding the consequences?

NOT ONE WARNING

Mr. Fallow: Not one! Not a single warning was heard! The people were plunging into the economic chains of permanent debt charges and they were to be allowed to go ahead!

Mr. Low: This gives us some idea of the appalling waste of public funds during the former so-called "sane and stable administration."

Mr. Fallow, it should be known that you have introduced a different method of handling the finances so that we do not create debts in our road building.

Mr. Fallow: Yes, we have. For example during the years 1936 and 1937, we spent a total of $2,272,000 on main highway construction, all of which was paid out of current account and on which no future interest payments need be made. Under the old system of letting contracts to private individuals and corporations, the appropriation and expenditure of large sums of money depended much more upon the integrity of the individual or individuals getting the contract and those overseeing it than on expert accounting and engineering, to insure the proper distribution of the funds. Under the former system, it was impossible to escape the human element or as I call it, the politics of roadbuilding.

UNFORTUNATE EFFECT

Mr. Aberhart: Does the depression have any effect upon the full advantage of your new method of procedure?

Mr. Fallow: Unfortunately it does. In carrying out any extensive program of public works during a severe depression, such as has been created for us under the present monetary policy, a government's first consideration must be to afford as much opportunity as possible for our less fortunate citizens to fit themselves into the scheme of things and still feel that they are useful members of society.

Taking this policy into consideration, I say quite sincerely that I had no alternative but to recommend to the government the road building policy which it has adopted.

Following this idea out, the policy was extended to the purchase of lumber and bridge material from Alberta lumbermen. Millions of feet are used each year in this way and where it has been possible, we have procured this material in small quantities from the settlers in the timbered areas of the province. This has provided much needed employment and has eliminated the necessity on the part of some of making application for the cold, grudging charity of governments.

To give you an idea how this works out in practice, let me quote the following facts: In the Westlock district, in April, 1936, we had 409 families on relief, adding monthly cost of $2,840.20. In November, 1937, due to the inauguration of this policy, the number of families on relief had been reduced to 28, for which the Government is required to pay only $154.50 a month. The 28 families still on relief are for the most part unable to participate in this programme through physical or other disability.

DOUBLE MILEAGE

Were it not for the inhuman and insane monetary policy of the banks under which humanity suffers and groans, road building could be done largely by the use of modern power machinery. It is true that this machinery would eliminate a great deal of human labor but it would enable the government to build double the mileage of highway with the same amount of money. That, I take it, is the crying need of the people throughout the length and breadth of this province.

Time will not permit me to elaborate further at the present moment. On another broadcast I should like to tell you something of what the Department of Public Works has been able to do despite the hampering monetary restrictions imposed by the Banks. I thank you.

REDFERN HUNT PARTY REPORT MEMBER DIES

Other Members Are Safe In Inland Jungles Of British Guiana

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Feb. 18.—From British Guiana's inland jungles came word Thursday of the death of Dr. Fred T. Fox, Canadian-born Boston scientist, and the safety of other members of an expedition searching for Paul Redfern, long-missing United States aviator.

A terse message to the Colonial Secretary's office said Dr. Fox died on Devil's Hole Island while other members of the Redfern search party under J. T. Waldeck, hard-pressed for food, were making their way to Warwah, their destination.

The message eased fears for safety of the Waldeck group. It came by way of a rescue boat which reached Warwak with provisions three days before Waldeck and his party got there.

BURIED ON ISLAND

No details of the death of Dr. Fox were given in the message, relayed to Georgetown by the subwarden of Bartica. It said he had been buried on Devil's Hole Island.

The Waldeck group left Georgetown several weeks ago on the search for Redfern, who vanished in 1927 while flying from the United States to South America.

The Waldeck expedition was marooned on Devil's Hole Island Dec. 28, when the native porters deserted with the boats after a dispute over supplies. Since then, a rescue party has been trying to reach this rescue party.

EXPOSURE BELIEF

Belief here was that Dr. Fox, a native of Lucan, Ont., and a graduate of the University of Toronto, died of exposure.

The brief message from Bartica, jumping off place for expeditions bound up the Cuyuni river, to the colonial secretary at Georgetown, said Dr. Fox died Jan. 5.

First news of the tragedy that overcame the Waldeck party was brought by a boat which had gone up river to the expedition's assistance when porters and native boys deserted late in December, taking most of the food supplies and the boats. The rescue craft returned to Bartica Thursday.

REACH SAFETY

The three others in the group led by J. T. Waldeck, American explorer and big game hunter, had reached safety at Warwah Feb. 7, the relief craft reported. With Waldeck were his wife, and W. A. Chandler, New York sportsman.

JEAN BATTEN ADDS TROPHY TO HER LISTS

CANNES, France, Feb. 18—Clifford Harmon Thursday announced award of the annual international Harmon trophies for general aviation promotion to Jean Batten, New Zealand woman pilot who holds the Australia-England air record, and Dick Merrill, American trans-Atlantic flier.

Miss Batten established her Australia-England record when she landed at Lympne, England, last October 24, five days, 18 hours and 15 minutes after leaving Darwin, Australia. Merrill, who has flown the Atlantic four times, completed a round trip crossing with Jack Lambie May 14, 1937.

Attendnace At Exhibition Off Due To Polio

TORONTO, Feb. 18. — President Alfred Rogers of the Canadian National Exhibition told the C.N.E. directors Thursday the children's attendance at last year's fair dropped 45.7 per cent., automobile admissions dropped 45.4 per cent., and general attendance 19 per cent.

"This can be attributed mainly to reduction in tourist traffic from the United States where reports of the infantile paralysis epidemic were given widespread publicity," the official's report said.

British Tycoon Is Saved By Banker From Swindle

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 18—The Palm Beach Times Thursday reported a British multi-millionaire was saved from a $250,000 swindle by a Florida banker who refused to give the Briton that amount of the latter's own money.

The Englishman — described as a well-known British industrialist in this country on a "political mission"—related his story on condition his name be withheld.

On Feb. 7, the Briton related, he arrived here and became acquainted with men who tried to fleece him in the "horse race" confidence game, in which the victim is supposed to win an enormous sum, but must produce a large sum to prove he could have paid the bet had the horse lost the race.

He related he saved his money and made a profit of $968.75 on the deal through foreign exchange changes the day he had $50,000 transferred from London.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18

THE MAN FOR THE JOB

East Edmonton Liberals have been fortunate in securing as their candidate in the by-election a resident of the constituency of more than ten years' standing, who is familiar with the local conditions and well known to the residents. There are in fact few men who are better known or better liked throughout Edmonton than Mr. Marshall.

Associated with one of the large employing institutions in the city, he has yet found time to take very active parts in the work of the Chamber of Commerce, the Chamber of Mines, and other organizations concerned in promoting the business and social welfare of the community. He is not strange to public life, having served in both the municipal and the provincial fields, as mayor of Calgary and member of the legislature for the same city before coming to Edmbnton to reside.

Mr. Marshall is an interesting and forceful speaker, bears a good reputation, has positively progressive views, but no strain of partisan bitterness. Having spent his working lifetime in business, Mr. Marshall is essentially a man of action, with a realistic view-point and a tradition for getting things done and done well.

For all these reasons he is exceptionally well-fitted to represent East Edmonton in parliament with satisfaction to its residents and credit to himself. He will undoubtedly be given hearty support by many outside the ranks of the Liberal party, and his election may be expected with confidence.

SOMETHING ELSE TO AMEND

Mr. Bennett has not yet told parliament that he knows of any case in which a contractor has been "shaken down" for campaign funds or graft money, though ten days ago he made one of his characteristic, periodic, allegations that political corruption is rampant in the land, and said this was the particular kind of rascality in vogue. On the contrary, he explained, when "called" by Premier Hepburn, that he did not mean to say the Ontario Government or its agents had collected $200,000 from the Beauharnois crowd. Hansard, he said, had misreported him.

Mr. Bennett's failure to reduce gossip to definite statements is not for want of invitation to do so. Prime Minister King told the Opposition leader to say where and when any shaking-down had been done, and a house committee would look into the whole matter. The offer was not accepted, and is not likely to be.

This isn't Mr. Bennett's first appearance in the role of a mud-thrower. He has been doing it off and on for forty years, whenever his political ammunition pouch ran dry. The record of his hopeless failure in office, and the improvement in conditions that began as soon as he and his policies were discarded, have left him bankrupt of argument, as of public confidence. Hence the resort to scandal-talk which he does not want submitted to the test of investigation.

Mr. King says the election and franchise laws will be amended to make it less likely that corrupt practices can be carried on. The rules of the House might also be amended to make it more difficult for one member to question the honor of his fellow-members without taking the responsibility of levying a charge against them and asking for an inquiry.

RESTORATION DUE

While most taxpayers in Alberta are still working at depression-reduced incomes, they will not on that account, or should not, begrudge the moderately-paid civil servants of the province the restoration of their salaries. A government should lead, not follow, in establishing fair rates of pay and a full normal standard of living. To enforce, or try to enforce, minimum rates of pay in private employ while docking a per centage from the supposed pay of its own employees would put the Government of the province in a curious position, and likely interfere with the enforcement of the minimum wage law.

For seven years the civil servants have been making what was pleasantly called a "voluntary contribution" every month from their pay cheques, to help the province finance. It was never claimed they had been over-paid and should be paid less. The schedules were left intact. Theoretically they drew as much pay as before the depression; but in fact part of the money went back into the treasury, or never left it. This pretence at paying full rates was an admission that the salary schedule was not too high.

These deductions have amounted to $275,000 a year. Through this special type of class taxation, the civil servants have thus contributed over the seven years upwards of $2,000,000 to the funds of the province. If the legislature has not wasted that amount of money in the meantime, the provincial debt is $2,000,000 less because of the "voluntary" levy. As two thousand civil servants have been affected by the levy, they have contributed something like $1,000 each to help meet the cost of unemployment relief and the other depression burdens thrown upon Alberta—over and above their share of the general taxation levied upon the people of the province. Restoration of their salaries, or dropping of the pretence that they were being paid in full, is not an act of special grace but of plain justice.

DREAM CREDIT

Mr. Kemper, C.C.F. member of the legislature of Saskatchewan for Gull Lake, entertained his fellow-members the other day with some feats of imagination in the field of economics, of a kind that is fairly common just now. The Bank of Canada, he said, should be publicly-owned—which it is at present for all practical purposes, since the Government owns a majority of the stock and appoints a majority of the directors. The publicly-owned Bank, he continued, "could issue credit on the natural resources of the country." Of course it could. The commercial banks do that now, where the resources have been developed.

But that isn't the idea of the dream-builders, Mr. Kemper evidently included. They would have the Bank issue credit on resources which have not been developed. That also could be done. The trouble is that the credit certificates wouldn't be worth enough to pay for issuing them. The moment they were issued they would be subject to several discounts.

In the first place they would be worth less than face value by the probable cost of developing the raw resources, since only after development could there be real wealth behind the certificates. There would be a second discount because of uncertainty whether the product could be sold when the resources had been developed. And a third discount because people will not trade beef or wheat for a chance that sometime resources may be developed, that the development may be well managed, and that the product may be saleable at a profit over cost of production.

And if the credit certificates took the form of undistinguishable Bank bills, all the bills issued by the Bank would go down the chute together. Then we would know what Germany was like in the post-war years.

Natural resources have no value until they are developed. Other than the speculative value based on somebody's idea that they can be developed profitably. And that idea is quite as likely to be wrong as right. Ask the chap who put money into a coal mine that didn't pay, into a gold mine that didn't pan out, or into an oil well that didn't produce oil, or enough oil to pay dividends.

The only solid basis for money is wealth actually in being. And no other basis is needed if money and credit are managed in terms of common sense. Which kind of management the Bank of Canada is at this moment fully qualified and empowered to provide.

Current Comment

"BUSINESS STARTS WITH BUYING"

In an article written for Reader's Digest, Robert R. Updegraff focuses attention on a seldom-thought-of factor of everyday business. If, he states, the process were reversed and firms had to advertise for everything they buy instead of advertising what they sell, "the public would have an entirely different conception of what business means to the (national) life." He points out that "all business—in fact, all human enterprise—starts with buying, not selling."—Toronto Globe and Mail.

HERMIT STATES

It should not be necessary for United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull to have to defend his reciprocal trading policy as an instrument of "economic appeasement and security." No one can successfully dispute the realities of economic well-being obtained through international trade as a valuable aid to peace. If some nations were slow in warming up to the United States policy their hesitancy can be explained. Many had a natural doubt that it represented a "reversal" of the traditional American isolation, and was not merely an expedient to relieve the pressure of problems at home.

That the so-called "hermit States" remain unimpressed and continue to work out programs of self-sufficiency is explained by politics, not economics. It is the same condition which explains the armament race those States have set. Unfortunately that condition is not to be reasoned with from the point of view of what is or is not sound business. Yet Secretary Hull did not have to wait on the van Zeeland report to realize that "economic disarmament is inextricably bound up with the limitation of armaments." He has believed that for some time, and with him there are many who realize that stable world conditions cannot be had while so many national economies are lopsided from concentration on arms production.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

TRADE AND PEACE

Just now when negotiations for the proposed trade agreements between the United States and Britain and the United States and Canada are going on, it may be of interest to recall a speech given by H. Wickman Steel at London after his return from a visit to the United States and in which he said that the British government should learn "to think American." In that address he referred to Secretary Hull's anxiety to complete the trade agreements, not only because of the reciprocal benefits which would directly flow from them, but for a wider reason.

"You get Mr. Cordell Hull pleading for an Anglo-American trade agreement, and thinking that the restoration or promotion of better trade will turn the minds of the nations towards peace. . . . It is quite true that Mr. Cordell Hull attaches great importance to an Anglo-American trade agreement. He attaches importance to it because he believes, perhaps more fervently than some of us do, in the unifying and mollifying effects of trade. We heard so much of that in the years before 1914—that war could never come when the nations were bound together with links of gold and by economic ties—and I do not subscribe to his belief with an entire absence of qualification. Still Mr. Cordell Hull believes in it, very sincerely, and believes it because he thinks that the political consequences which will flow from this solidarity and goodwill will be highly important—and there I do agree with him."

Mr. Steed in his reference to 1914 would seem to be making reference to a misunderstood reading of Norma Angell's book, "The Great Illusion." He was represented as teaching that because of the closely woven economic ties of the modern world, war would be impossible. But this was not what Mr. Angell taught at all. What he did teach was that in a modern war the victor lost, that the beaten nation could not pay great indemnities, that the only way these could be paid was in goods and services, and this brought disaster upon the receiving country. All of which has worked out to the letter.

The widening and freeing of the area of trade makes for the betterment of the nations participating in it and only by trade can the totalitarian states better their condition. Restoring health to the body politic by so much makes for peace. It can't prevent a mad adventure by a military mad dictator, but it will strengthen the hands of democracy and make any such adventure by so much the more dangerous which is a weighty consideration.—Halifax Chronicle.

AMERICAN AID IN THE AIRWAYS

Hon. C. D. Howe says he is offering no apologies for the fact that Mr. Philip Johnson and four other Americans are, for the time being, holding key positions in the Trans-Canada Airways. He need offer none.

Trans-Canada Airways is a big project, and it is something new so far as Canada is concerned. Canada yields to no country in the world when it comes to air transport of one kind, the kind that is related to the development of the mining industry in the vast northern areas. We do so much of that that Canada ranks as one of the leading aeronautical countries of the world. But that kind of flying has very little relation to the business of operating huge fast transport planes on exact daily schedule across the Dominion. They are two totally different types of transport jobs.

Operating the Trans-Canada means radio stations every hundred miles or so across the country. It means the latest equipment in swift, steady planes. It means maintaining schedules to the minute. It means meteorological services Canada has never before possessed. It means a vast and intricate organization, constant vigilance, the elimination of every hazard of weather, equipment or personnel. Pilots with years of flying experience have to be trained all over again for the kind of flying required.

Facing the task of organizing such a service Mr. Howe first secured the Canadian with most experience in that type of transport, Mr. D. R. MacLaren. Then he went to the United States for further experience, and was most fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Philip Johnson. Mr. Johnson, a busy and prosperous manufacturer, was induced to leave his own business in other hands for a year or two to undertake the organization of the Trans-Canada service. Temporarily Mr. MacLaren is second in command. Four other American officials, each chosen for competence and experience in a particular phase of the organization, have also been secured. Mr. Johnson is a thoroughly competent chief. Canada is fortunate that he was available, and fortunate also that he was able to find competent assistants.

Trans-Canada Airways could have been operating months ago. It probably will not be operating for some months yet. The reason is Mr. Johnson's inflexible determination to avoid any unnecessary risk. Trans-Canada will not carry a single passenger or even airmail until there are thoroughly trained pilots to fly the planes, and the most complete and up-to-date equipment in the air and on the ground. In all equipment and in all personnel Mr. Johnson is building "for keeps." If care and vigilance can prevent them, there will be no mishaps on the Trans-Canada Airways.

Mr. Howe need offer no apologies for choosing such a man or proceeding in that manner to organize this newest of national enterprises. We can use American aid of that calibre.—Winnipeg Tribune.

ANOTHER LICENSER

Mr. Weir's advocacy of a licensing system for newspapers may suggest that there may be considerable in this talk about Fascism arising in Canada. Canada clearly would seem to have its repressionist school.

But if we are to have a licensing system for newspapers how about a licensing system for politicians? Mr. Weir in the very speech in which he demanded a licensing system for newspapers made a sharp attack on Dean Shaw, head of the marketing system under the Liberal Government at Ottawa. Now if we had a licensing system for politicians Mr. Weir might not have been able to "get away" with that attack. At any rate he might have had his politician's license revoked. And how would Mr. Weir like that?

Mr. Weir seems to like freedom in some directions but not in others. He appears to like freedom for himself.—Regina Leader-Post.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Miss Beryl W. inquires: "Could you help me? It has been necessary for me to nurse my invalid mother for the past four years and I have had very few pleasures. Now I notice that I am emotionally tense and I can't relax. I feel all the time as though there were an explosion inside of me, just ready to go off."

ANSWER: The best means of relieving emotional tension is to find an adequate outlet for your emotional energy. Probably you have been so restricted in your effort to care for your mother that you have been repressing your emotions. Find some wholesome activity which will give you an outlet for the stored-up energy within you. You will find that a pleasurable activity will do a great deal toward releasing the tension. See if you cannot find someone to stay with your mother, so that you will have a little time free for athletics or joining in the activities of others your own age. Unfortunately, modern life tends to build up emotional tension, and the sensation you describe is growing more common. You will find that physical activity, as enjoyed in games and sports, will bring you a pleasurable emotional reaction brought on through your satisfaction in your skill, your enjoyment of movement, and so on. Instead of waiting until you "blow up," work off some of that pent-up steam in action.

QUESTION: Rose writes: "I am thirty-two and my hair is just beginning to get curly. Could there be anything wrong with my scalp? Am feeling fine, but would just like to know the reason for the change in my hair."

ANSWER: Hair occasionally turns curly under various conditions; this is most likely to occur following a fever. However, I have seen the same change occur in several instances when the patient made a radical change in diet. The cause for the change has not been adequately explained, although there is no reason for you to believe that the fact that the hair has developed a tendency to curl means that there is anything wrong with your scalp.

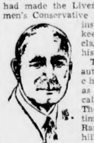
Old Country Letter

By J. E. NORCROSS

LONDON, Eng., (By Mail)—The death of Sir Thomas White at the age of 61 deprives Liverpool of one of its leading public men and also of the nearest approach to a political boss known in this country. In this latter capacity he succeeded Sir Archibald Savidge who had made the Liverpool Workingmen's Conservative Association his instrument for keeping working-class votes for his nominees.



J. E. Norcross

This party autocracy was challenged, as will be recalled, during Sir Thomas White's time, by young Randolph Churchill, who ran against the official candidate at Wavertree in a by-election. As a consequence of the vote splitting, Labor won a normally safe Conservative seat. Nothing much, however, has been heard of Winston Churchill's son since.

Sir Thomas had a remarkable career. He owed nothing to good fortune. He began as a boy by running off from home and stowing away on a sailing vessel. Later he became ship's steward and then successively a paper merchant, an estate agent and a bar-tender. Eventually he achieved ownership of several public houses and an interest in a brewery. He was a life-long teetotaller and non-smoker.

In after life, known throughout the north of England as "the man who ran Liverpool," Sir Thomas became a member of the Liverpool City Council, head of the civic finance committee, chairman of the Mersey Tunnel committee (in which capacity he brought that great enterprise to completion) and chairman of the National Conference of Assessment Committees and of the Central Valuation Committee of England and Wales. A Day in Canadian History

By FRED WILLIAMS

In the early days of the Dominion there was, perhaps naturally, considerabe uncertainty concerning titles of lieutenant-governors, senators and legislative councillors. Some of the provincial lieutenant-governors insisted that as representatives of the crown they had the right to the same form of address as the governor-general, but on this date, February 18, 1873, Hon. Joseph Howe, then secretary of state, received from Sir John Macdonald a letter in which it was stated:

"The attention of the governor-general has been called to the fact that all governors of the provinces of the Dominion are still addressed by the title of 'Your Excellency'. As this is contrary to her majesty's regulations, which order that a lieutenant-governor, since 1st July, 1867, shall be addressed as 'His Honor,' it is his excellency's desire that this regulation be adhered to in all official correspondence."

Lord Dufferin was very punctilious about such matters and wanted to abolish the "Honorable" before the name of legislative councillors, but Sir John A. Macdonald, with his ear to the ground as usual, suggested that it might be just as well to leave the matter in abeyance for the time (he evidently saw that the time would come when Manitoba and New Brunswick, and many years later Nova Scotia, would abolish their upper houses) not only because its enforcement at that time "might cause unpleasant feeling in the provinces," but "because the legislative councillors in Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland enjoy the title and would not like to lose it, and a fear of taking a step downwards might disincline them to vote for confederation."

Thirty-eight years ago today (February 18, 1900) the Canadians fought in the first battle of Paardeberg in the South African war. The news created great excitement in Canada, the more especially as there were several casualties among our boys. The battle really continued for 10 days, when it culminated in the surrender of Cronje and his commando.

A GOOD IDEA

Editor, Bulletin: I was much interested in the section of the Old Country Letter in your issue of Saturday last, dealing with the generosity of Mr. W. H. Rhodes of Bradford.

The writer was in touch with Mr. Rhodes during the initial stages of the scheme to send secondary (high) school boys to Canada on visits.

It was urged that they would obtain a much broader view of the Dominion by coming west of the Great Lakes, if possible.

Mr. Rhodes' comment may be of interest: " . . . As you say, we shall hope that they will realize in some measure the vastness of the country and its potentialities, but I felt that, apart from the time factor, I should like to send as many boys as possible to at least get some idea of Canada."

ADVICE NEEDED

Editor, Bulletin: I noticed in your valuable paper recently a letter written by H. King, fox rancher of Big Bay, in regard to the muskrat season which opened February 1.

I have worked for the Hudson's Bay Company mostly all my life, and have bought fur all over Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and am sure I never heard of anything like that before.

The few rats that are left will be destroyed. Does the game commissioner know that if anybody opens the rat houses and runs they will all die off?

If the commissioner does not know I will certainly be glad to advise him for nothing.

EGG PRICES

Editor, Bulletin: Farmers never had to sell fresh eggs for 4½ cents per dozen before this grading act come into force in Alberta. And farmers have never been paid 50 cents a dozen since the grading act. I have been in business in Alberta country points for over 30 years and can prove these assertions. We would be getting 50 cents for eggs right now if we had no egg grading law. All these grading laws are a curse and we never will have prosperity while the producers are victimized by these insane acts. These acts are all working in the interests of the consumers, consequently the farmers cannot hire help and the result is the city has to keep on relief men who would or should be hired on farms. Probably you will publish this in your correspondence column.

Sunshine Shafts

The conjuror was announcing his act.

"I have had letters of appreciation," he said, "from England, Ireland and Wales, and a post-card from Scotland."

Nellie, aged 4, was gazing intently at the visitor's new bonnet.

"Well, dear," asked the lady at last, "what do you think of it?"

"Oh," replied the small observer, "I think it's all right. Aunt Mary told mama it was a perfect fright, but it doesn't frighten me any."

"Pardon me for walking on your feet," said the polite passer-by.

"Oh, don't mention it," returned the equally polite victim, "I often walk on them myself."

The fellow who said "Everything that goes up must come down" didn't know anything about taxes—says a burdened ratepayer.

Accused (just acquitted, to counsel)—Thanks awfully, old man. What on earth should I have done without you?

Counsel—Oh, about five years.

C. I. O. LEADER MAKES DEFENCE OF COMMUNISM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Joseph Curran, husky leader of the Committee for Industrial Organization Maritime Union, told a United States senate committee Thursday the Communist party had done more for industrial workers "than any of the so-called and self-appointed liberal agencies existent to date."

Curran appeared before the senate commerce and labor committees to deny charges of Joseph P. Ryan, of the rival American Federation of Labor Union, that Curran and other leaders of the C.I.O. National Maritime Union were Communists.

"I am not a Communist now and I do not believe that I ever intend to be a Communist," Curran told the committee in a bristling statement.

The C.I.O. leader said he believed senators would agree that with "13,000,000 people on relief, there is something wrong in the country."

Curran denounced what he termed cries of "red" and "radical" against union leaders "for having the courage to demand decent living conditions."

Mr. and Mrs. Hornett (respectively, West and East); Mrs. Blank, North, and Mr. Meek, South. Also, Mr. Bert Insky, kibitzer-at-large.

Mr. Hornett (to Mr. Insky): We're starting a new system to apply to kibitzers. The kibitzer's names goes on the back score, along with the players' names. Every time the kibitzer makes a mistake in his analysis or criticism he is debited one hundred points.

Mr. Bert Insky: But how can I win anything?

Mr. Hornett: You can't! That's the beautiful part of the system. But, on the other hand, you can't lose so long as you don't say anything.

Mr. Insky: Well, it's some system, if you ask me! How about the bill of rights and free speech? Why, it's unconstitutional!

Mr. Hornett: No such thing! You don't think that the framers of the constitution could foresee any such things as a kibitzer, do you? Your deal, pet. (To Mrs. Hornett.)

Pass	3 diamonds	Pass	3 hearts
Pass	4 hearts	Double	Pass

Mr. Hornett had been none too confident about his own double. When he heard Mr. Meek, of all players, redouble, he felt that doom was just around the corner. He opened his singleton spade. Mr. Meek won, cashed the diamond ace, ruffed a low diamond, and led the spade king, discarding a club. Mr. Hornett ruffed and returned the deuce of clubs. Mrs. Hornett won and blithely returned another spade. Mr. Meek chucked his remaining club while Mr. Hornett, gnashing his teeth, wasted a sure trump trick in ruffing. He returned a diamond, which dummy ruffed. Mr. Meek then captured the denuded heart king and spread his hand. Four hearts, doubled and redoubled, made!

Mr. Hornett (to Mrs. Hornett): I know you've had a hard day changing your dress and making up, and all that, but would you mind trying to count up to four? Use your fingers, if you must. I led you the DEUCE of clubs, the fourth best, to be more explicit. YOU had four. Dummy had two. Now, think hard! With how many did that leave declarer? You saw me ruff the spade with the heart ten. Your EYESIGHT is all right. Didn't it occur to you that if you made me ruff another spade it would cost me a sure trump trick and that Meek could get rid of his last club.

Mrs. Hornett: Don't use that superior tone on ME! You opened a spade, didn't you? Well, why open it if you didn't want to ruff?

Mr. Hornett: Well, that's about as reasonable as an observation you ever made! I suppose I could make a blind opening lead as easily as you could defend after seeing the dummy and the fall of cards! You win!

Mrs. Hornett (sweetly): Oh, no. Our OPPONENTS win, as usual!

Two-fold Job

It's a two-fold job that Hilda Yen, Chinese aviatrix, has to do. She received her pilot's license in Rome, and came to America to study child welfare. She says "there is a need for it at home. But she's also willing to help her country against Japan in a more material way, behind a chattering machine gun, or at the throttle of a bombing airplane. If necessary, she says she will use her knowledge of aviation in the way that it will do her homeland the most good. She was official hostess at the Chinese embassy at Moscow for two years when her uncle, Dr. W. W. Yen, was the envoy.

This is hard to understand, because so many of the thrillers put on by our local stations are manufactured in the U.S.A. and are distinctly American in flavor. And it is also hard to understand how anybody can feel upset when our local stations try everything in their power to aid our health and happiness. I am afraid that none of those who are against the policy at present adopted by our local stations can have tried the remedies they daily offer for all the ailments known to man. Perhaps they would never have written the letters if they had followed the oft-repeated advice to take a dose of—"which starts the flow of one of your most vital digestive juices, and when this vital digestive juice flows at the rate of two pints per day then most folk feel that happy days are here again." But, of course, they may not have followed the advice to "stubbornly refuse anything else."

DEPLORES ATTITUDE

Editor, Bulletin: I have been a patient at the Sanatorium for many months now and it may surprise Mrs. Drewry, whom you quoted in your "Enquiring Reporter" column, to know that I expect to leave here in the very near future "cured." I also suggest that Mrs. Drewry take a week off sometime and visit the Sanatorium. She would find the patients there happy, contented and looking far more healthy than the average person one sees on the street, and yet she advocates "merciful killing."

Who ever heard of mercifully killing; anyone because they were unfortunate enough to break down through the presence of a germ which about ninety per cent of the people unknowingly have? How would Mrs. Drewry like to have a doctor pronounce sentence on her. "You have T.B. You must die!" I hope that in the future the Inquiring Reporter will be a little more discreet in publishing the answers to his various questions. If he happens to come across any more Mrs. Drewrys in his travels, my advice would be to pass them up entirely.

SOLDIER SETTLERS

Editor, Bulletin: Would you grant me the favor of space for a reply to the letter in your issue dated the 8th inst. from Mr. Thompson, secretary of the Soldier Settlers' Union, at Lloydminster.

His statement, to the effect that I have only told half the truth, etc., needs substantiation by him, also he does not dispute, in any degree, the great concessions and re-establishment, that have already been granted Soldier Settlers, so these, at least, are accepted as a "whole truth."

Mr. Thompson, referring to soldier settlers, uses the word "parasites." Such a word certainly does not appear, neither can such be inferred from my letter.

His letter states, "the strength of our demands lies in the fact, that we are working under government contracts etc., etc." The only contract that I am aware of, to which he refers, is an agreement, signed by both parties, calling for the repayment of a loan, in full, at 5 per cent interest, which in view of the numerous concessions already made, has exceeded in leniency and business contract and surely the government have done their share and played their part.

He further states "that large numbers of those still on the land are handicapped by this same lack of adequate assistance in the early days of establishment and therefore we claim, with perfect justice, that there should be still further re-adjustments in accordance with the position, as it is today."

In reference to this I most emphatically say, that I have given the matter some serious consideration and, request that some similar concessions are given to those returned comrades, now in distress, some in the bread line, who left Canada to serve; who were the "real" pioneers and did their share in developing the land, these have not yet received any assistance toward their re-establishment, since their return.

Soldier settlers have no "claim" for any further consideration or help. Their attitude is like that of a precocious, spoiled child, who has been fussed over and petted, until it has lost all sense of justice, consideration or fair dealing. They give no thought for their other comrades, but rather are putting into practice, "Unto him that hath, shall be given".

He refers to settlers being "forced" off their land. I have yet to know of any soldier settler being thus treated by the government. If there are, why not cite one case and let it be dealt with on its merits? On the other hand, I do not know of cases, where the settlers have sold the livestock and machinery bought by the government, kept the proceeds and no legal action taken against them.

At Vancouver General Ross told the Legion convention, that he could not consider furtherance of any claims of the S.S.U. as they—soldier settlers—had been very favorably treated, at the expense of 97 per cent of the other returned soldiers, but he would take up any individual case of harsh treatment, or hardship imposed on the settler by the government department brought to his notice. The fact that apparently no such case has been brought forward speaks well for the attitude of the department towards the settlers.

Land re-sold by the government is seldom left by the settler in other than a weedy condition;—hence, how can a high figure be expected for such land?

ONTARIO WILL CLAIM RIGHT TO INCOME TAXES

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced today that Ontario in its brief to the Rowell Commission on dominion-provincial relations will claim for the provinces the right to income taxation now "usurped by the dominion."

The dominion's invasion of this field of direct taxation constituted "a violation of the spirit and the letter of the confederation agreement," Mr. Hepburn said. He added belief British Columbia, Quebec and New Brunswick would associate themselves with Ontario on the stand regarding income taxation.

Power Dismiss Teacher Asked

SASKATOON, Feb. 18—Power to dismiss unsatisfactory teachers on 30 days' notice without having the dismissal subject to a board of reference was asked here Wednesday at the annual convention of the Saskatchewan School Trustees' association.

POLITICS and religion are almost interchangeable terms in Liverpool. The Protestantism of its Protestants is of no milk-and-water kind. It was there that the Kensitites and the Church of England ritualists fought matters out a quarter of a century ago.

Owing to the many Irish people in the city, the Protestants are confronted with a large body of Roman Catholics and a great gulf is set between them. Sir Thomas would allow no Roman Catholics in his Conservative associations. As lately as the last civic election the religious question flared up. The Catholics wanted grants for building schools. Sir Thomas issued what amounted to a manifesto against this and won at the polls.

By his own desire Sir Thomas was buried in the storm-tossed waters off the coast of Wales. There was a heavy sea, driving rain and a westerly gale when the steamer bearing his body put out from the landing stage. Thousands of people saw her leave. "We shall meet beyond the river," they sang as the boat headed out into Liverpool Bay, past the lightships, all flying flags at half-mast, to a wild and lonely spot off the Great Orme.

It was left to one of his bitterest opponents, the leader of the Liverpool Labor Party, to pay the greatest tribute to Sir Thomas White.

"In my view he was the most able administrator in the country," said Alderman Luke Hogan. "I don't think his gifts were ever realized in London."

THE naval estimates must be presented within the next five weeks but unless some authentic information is forthcoming very soon as to what Japan is doing in the way of new battleships it is probable that there will be no provision in them for battleships at all.

Not that there will be no battleships. The Admiralty, however, must know whether Japan is really building ships in excess of the 35-000-ton limit before the British programme can be decided. Britain was going to build two battleships, anyway. The question is, are they to be 35,000-tonners mounting 14-inch guns, or 42,000-tonners mounting 16-inch or even bigger guns.

For the taxpayer the difference means $20,000,000 added to the cost of each ship, at present $40,000,000.

Before, however, a beginning can be made on larger vessels three months' notice would have to be given to the naval powers on which the tonnage limitation is still binding that Britain proposed to take advantage of what is called the "escalator" clause. This means that the ships would be provided for in a supplementary estimate.

But it must first be established that Japan has actually started to build warships larger than the limit agreed on among the other powers.

It is suggested, by the way, that Japan would like to drive the United States into building vessels too big to pass through the Panama Canal.

Drama Festival Adjudicator Finds Entries Of A High Order And Very Entertaining

CALGARY, Feb. 18 — "Canada's greatest cultural need today is for a professional theatre of its own," said Malcolm Morley, English producer and dramatic critic of note, who is in Calgary this week-end adjudicating the entries in the Alberta Drama Festival, which is being held in the southern city. "A city without a theatre is like an unclothed person," said the adjudicator.

Although his job is "finding fault," as he puts it, he really detected improvement in the general tone of the entries from their appearance when he adjudged the entries in the same festival three years ago.

FIRST NIGHT

Entries in the opening night of the festival were "Birds of Passage," a comedy of errors by Hining Lenfrang, presented by the Calgary Theatre Guild; "Hand of Siva," by Ben Hecht-Kenneth Goodman, presented by the Calgary Elks Dramatic Club, and "One Evening at Nero's," by A. J. Talbot, and presented by the Banff Literary Dramatic Club.

"Birds of Passage" was a very "slick performance," said the adjudicator in review, the players giving "an easy, natural performance."

A GOOD JOB

"It was a very good job," said he, commenting on the "Hand of Siva," and the quality of suspense, so necessary to good mystery stories, well brought out.

The historical satire, "One Evening at Nero's," was a careful and considered production, well deserving of praise, but lacking in dramatic interest as it came to a close.

"All three plays were worth doing," he remarked in conclusion, "and well done, and proved an extremely entertaining evening."

City Artists To Be Heard On Saturday

MISS EVA BLASDELL, L.T.C.M., AND MISS HAZEL TAYLOR, L.T.C.M.

whose two-piano recital on Saturday afternoon in the Masonic Temple under the auspices of the Edmonton Women's Musical Club is centreing the interest of many of their friends, both in musical and social circles throughout the city. Carrying out the high quality of program that has characterized each of the fortnightly recitals held by the club during the winter season, the program they have selected is wide-embracing and colorful, and includes many lovely pieces of the modern and older schools of music.

Speakers Will Discuss Social Influences Of "Delinquency And Crime"

Problems of the youthful offender, just what causes him to commit his delinquencies and ways and means of prevention will be the intriguing subject of discussion at the next meeting of the Women's Forum, at which "Delinquency and Crime as Social Problems" is the topic with which speakers will deal.

The meeting is to be held in the Talmad Torah hall on Monday evening commencing at eight o'clock.

Introduction to the pertinent subject will be given by Mrs. H. E. Smith and later speakers will deal with various phases of the subject. Mrs. E. W. S. Kane will speak on the "Youthful Offender In the Juvenile Court," while Miss Gretchen Eckle, third speaker of the evening, will discuss his problems while on probation. "Where Probation Fails" will be thoroughly taken up by Mrs. A. S. Tuttle and during her discourse she will touch on aspects of the Borstal System in England.

Mrs. M. W. Cormack will conclude the discussion with an account of the youthful offender in our Penal Institutions.

Mrs. D. S. Mackenzie will preside at the meeting.

the social round . . . . .

EVERYTHING all right at the office since I've been on the sick list? Oh, yes! Everything running along smoothly, eh? Yep, everything well in hand. Well, that's just fine—ah, who's doing MY work? Your work?—oh, nobody. The oft-repeated joke has a profound suggestion in it. Whatever you're doing, you should make yourself a necessity in your particular position. That's why women haven't really succeeded as politicians. Women today have made themselves a necessity in the home, in business, in educational and professional fields, but as yet they have not become a necessity in the realm of governments—whether municipal, provincial or federal. Thus spoke Senator Iva C. Fallis, Conservative woman member of the Upper House, in a recent address to a women's service club in Ottawa. "This is the task set before the women of Canada," she continued. "They must try and make themselves a necessity in the public life of the country."

SILENCES

Edith A. Vassie, in Chambers' Journal

Away in shadowed depths of Summer woods,
Where through the noon of day no sound is heard,
A hush that throbs amongst the flagrant flowers
Soft wings the air, and mutes each singing bird.
And o'er the sleeping purple-breasted moor
A heat-haze quivers far across, and tells
How bees drop down, with honey sweetness cloyed,
And breezes shake the heather's soundless bells,
And in the secret places of my soul,
Where no man enters, thoughts go dreaming by;
I stretch beyond this world of time and space,
And find in silence there—that God is nigh.

Family Parties Mark Golden Wedding Day

Wed a half a century ago in Stanley, York County, New Brunswick, in 1888, the year that is remembered by residents of Stanley as the year of the "deep snow," when, indeed eighteen inches of snow fell on their very wedding day, Mr. and Mrs. James Johnston marked one day this week their fiftieth anniversary, surrounded happily by their children and by their "children's children."

LIVED IN U.S.

Mrs. Johnston was before her marriage on that snowy day so long ago Miss Martha V. Gilmore, and for twenty-five years she and her husband made their home in Milford, Massachusetts, with the exception of only one year which was spent in Waltham, Mass.

Mr. Johnston was for more than twenty years the proprietor of a flourishing coal and wood company.

Coming to Western Canada in 1913, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston have made their home here since that date and now boast a host of friends throughout the city.

Reception to their many friends was held one day this week at the home of their eldest son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Johnston of 10565 104 street.

FAMILY PARTY

Dinner was served to members of the family at noon-time when twenty-five guests were present to honor Mr. and Mrs. Johnston.

Besides the honored couple and their hosts present at the affair were the two sons of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Johnston, George Johnston and Bobby Johnston; Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Bainbridge of Medicine Hat and their daughters Ruth Bainbridge and Doris Bainbridge; Mrs. L. P. Woodhams, of Camrose; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford A. Johnston of Edmonton with their small daughter Gwen Johnston; Mr. Albert Johnston, brother of Mr. Johnston who was his best man at the wedding fifty years ago and his daughter Helen Johnston; and two sisters of Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Ludlow Estabrooks of Waltham, Massachusetts and Mrs. Laura Sansom of Edmonton with her daughter Laura Sansom.

RECEPTION

During the afternoon and evening when upwards of one hundred guests called to pay their respects to Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Ludlow Estabrooks and Mrs. Laura Sansom presided at the daintily arranged tea table. Mrs. J. W. Bainbridge and Mrs. L. P. Woodnams shared honors at tea in the evening.

Miss Helen Johnston assisted Mrs. George A. Johnston in passing tea.

Bounds will perform the crowning, and later in the evening a draw will be made. Fancy dress costumes will be adjudged by Mrs. E. H. Gowan, Mrs. Daniel Sullivan and Mrs. A. J. Eighty Children Have Parts In Plays To Be Given This Week-End

Creating a great deal of interest and attention is the novel children's entertainment to be held under the auspices of the Women's Guild of Christ Church in the Parish hall on Friday and Saturday evening, when eighty children, ranging from three to eleven years of age, will be featured in four plays.

The plays are under the direction of Mrs. Harry M. Williams, Mrs. H. Gutteridge and Mrs. Allan Gillies. Mrs. Norma Lee will act as accompanist and chairman for Friday evening's performance is Rev. Mr. Gower, while Mr. R. H. Cautley is acting as chairman on Saturday evening.

First play of the evening entitled "Sing a Song of Sixpence," is all in costume, as are the other plays, and takes place in a king's palace. "In a Palace Garden," a fairy phantasie, has a beautiful flower [illegible]tting and different scenes are [illegible]ted during the daytime and at midnight.

"Westward Ho," a rollicking sea picture, takes place on board the good ship Matthew in 1497, while other scenes are in the court of Henry VIII. It is the story of the coming of the Cabots and all characters are historical. Members of the Pimlott School of Dancing will dance the "Hornpipe" in this play.

Final play of the evening, "The Land of the Silver Chief," is an historical play of the Selkirk Settlement, and covers a period of time from 1810 until 1831. First scenes take place in Montreal, while later scenes are enacted in Alexander Matheson's log cabin in Kildonan, Manitoba. Plot keeps close to history and old-time dancing is featured.

During intermissions musical selections will be given by members of Christ Church choir under the direction of Mr. H. G. Turner.

Musical Club To Hear Two Piano Recital

Well-known musicians in the city, whose progress has been watched with the keenest of interest and happiness by music lovers and musical experts, Eva Blasdell, and Hazel Taylor will be heard by members of the Women's Musical Club when they meet in the Masonic Temple on Saturday afternoon, in a two-piano recital at once varied and interesting.

Drawing from the works of the better known of composers both of today and yester-year, the pianists have selected a comprehensive and representative program.

Included on the program are the following selections:

I—Sicilienne (from the Suite for Flute and Harpsichord), J. S. Back; Solfeggietto, Ph. E. Bach; Chorale: "Humble Us By Thy Goodness" (from Church Cantata No. 2[illegible]), J. S. Bach; Andante: Concerto No. 3 in C. Minor (Transcribed for two pianos by Siloti), J. S. Bach.

II. — Enbateau, Cortege, Minuet, Ballet, (Transcription for two pianos by Henri Busser), Claude Debussey.

III.—Gavotte and Musette: (from Suite, Op 200, revised by Harold Bauer), Joachim Raff; [illegible] Minuet a L'Antico (arranged for two pianos by L. V. Saar), W. C. E. Seeboeck. Caprice Viennois (Freely transcribed for two pianos by Jacques Miller), Fritz Kreisler.

Have your bolero match the polka dots in your blouse. A smart Fifth Avenue shop is now featuring soft blouses with colored polka dots with boleros and wide sashes matching the color of the tiny dots. A black blouse with pink spots would have a pink bolero and sash. They are seen in many color combinations.

National Art Exhibit Opens In Capital City

OTTAWA, Feb. 16. — Seventy paintings and two drawings by 48 artists are displayed in the third annual exhibit by the Canadian group of painters which opened Wednesday in the National Gallery of Canada.

Lawren Harris, who has formerly shown a definite modernistic trend to his art, achieves true modernism in his unnamed abstraction of white shading to black. "Spring Foliage," by his son, Lawren Harris, Jr., shows also a decided modernistic treatment, although in more rounded expression.

Speed is the keynote of Fritz Brandtner's "Hockey," wherein bright reds and blues of the diagonally-drawn skaters striving to score a goal create an impression of tremendous power and swiftness.

IN THE HYGIENE COURT OF JUSTICE

Girl of 19
Accused of Bad Complexion
(Before Mr. Justice Kruschen)

JUDGE: Jane Smith, you have had a fair trial and you have been found guilty of the charge made against you.

PRISONER: Y-y-yes, my lord.

JUDGE: Very well, then. Your crime may not have been deliberate, but it was one of serious neglect. You admit that though you do not get enough time for adequate open-air exercise you have never troubled to take steps to prevent constipation. Your complexion inevitably suffered.

COUNSEL FOR THE DEFENCE: My lord, I protest that there are other causes.

JUDGE: I said that constipation inevitably causes bad complexions; your client admits to the cause and plainly suffers from the effect.

PRISONER: It isn't my fault, my lord. I couldn't help it.

JUDGE: You could help it and you shall help it. This is the first time a charge has been made against you; let it be a lesson to you that young women may not neglect and spoil the good looks that Nature gave them. Your duty to your parents, to your friends, to your future husband is to make the most you possibly can of yourself.

(Here the prisoner covered her face with her handkerchief and was handed a glass of water.)

JUDGE: (continuing): You will be placed on probation for 3 months and I order that you drink one cup of coffee or tea, or a glass of water at breakfast every morning—

PRISONER: But I always do!

JUDGE: (sternly): Don't interrupt! One cup of coffee or tea or a glass of water every morning into which you shall put as much Kruschen Salts as will lie on a 10c piece. You will get rid of constipation and when you do you will never find yourself in your present predicament again.

After consultation with counsel, the judge announced that costs to the extent of less than 1c a day should be borne by the defence. "I believe I am right in saying," said his lordship, "that a 75c bottle of Kruschen contains 96 doses. That is much less than 1c a day." The prisoner left the court smiling.

KRUSCHEN SALTS
relieve constipation and rheumatism

Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which your body must get, in some way, to keep the blood pure, the inside clean, and the system generally toned up, but which you can't get in Nature's own way without abundant exercise and fresh air. You should have those salts every day: hence the importance of the "little daily dose". Every drug counter sells Kruschen in 25c, 45c and 75c bottles. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Ten Easy Rules For Personal Smartness

By ALICIA HART

You'd be a more attractive person if you would:

Try to get eight hours sleep every night. And when you simply cannot, figure out a system whereby you pay back the sleep you owe yourself as promptly as does any honest debtor. Say to yourself, "I lost two hours last night, so I'll sleep ten instead of eight tonight."

Do limbering and stretching exercises for five minutes every morning.

Decide right now how much weight you want to lose before Easter, then plan sensible diet and exercise schedules. This way, you won't be tempted to try to lose pounds and pounds during the week just before you plan to buy spring clothes.

Have a shampoo once a week, and brush your hair every night.

Eat more green salads and more fresh vegetables. Drink more fruit juice.

Change your coiffure once a year.

Devise ways and means to keep fingernails from splitting, cracking, chipping, breaking. (More milk and orange juice in the diet, more gentle manicures, more appreciation of special cuticle oils and creams are suggestions that may help you with your plans.)

Refuse ever to buy a dress or an accessory you aren't sure you like or can combine successfully with other items in your wardrobe. Don't let a high-pressure sales person talk you into ordering anything you aren't perfectly convinced you want.

Realize that it's smarter to economize on the dress than on the accessories.

Carry your head high, chest up, stomach in. And keep your backbone straight.

DOROTHY LAMOUR is the latest glamor girl of the cinema. An unknown as far as motion pictures were concerned, she was signed up because of her beauty and her ability to wear clothes well. Her voice has been heard on the radio a great deal, but "Hurricane" was her first picture. Miss Lamour's long, dark hair is arranged simply in loose waves, back from her face. She has gorgeous captivating eyes— enhanced by lashes that sweep up—almost to her brows. Her full, nicely shaped mouth lends a touch of the exotic.

GIRLS WHO HAVE NO BOY FRIENDS

Quick Easy Way to Get Charm

Girls who don't attract boy friends wonder why. Beautiful, perfect features are not the reason. Cleopatra and famous women were often ugly. Have nice skin, plenty of animation, and watch out for your figure—you'll be surprised how popular you are. So many girls have poor complexions—no life—their figure slipping, and don't realize it. Take "Fruit-a-tives" and you'll soon be amazed how different and how attractive you've become. It purifies your blood, makes the skin pores work, gets rid of waste and poisons, gives you new energy, prevents flabby tissue from forming. "Fruit-a-tives" gives you new charm. 25c., 50c.

FRUIT-A-TIVES LIVER TABLETS

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from Merrick Drug Stores, or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use, may be had at such a reasonable cost.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

DOROTHY DIX Says:

WOMEN are the plaintiffs in most of the divorce cases yet, strangely enough, girls are far more eager to marry than are boys. They enter into marriage more recklessly and with much less sense of responsibility than boys do. Women meet the inevitable trials and tribulations of marriage with less courage and philosophy than men do, and when a home is broken up it is nearly always the wife and not the husband who does it. And that is another strange thing.

Of course, all adolescent boys and girls get a kick out of playing at being in love, just as all children do out of playing with fire, but the most callow lad, if he is even a grade above a moron, is content to regard his romancing as just a game. He does not take it seriously. He is not thinking of marriage except in some vague far-off time that seems almost as remote as death to him. Maybe when he is as old as his father he might get married. After he has seen the world and had a good time. And when he has made a fortune. But gosh! Not NOW!

Not so, however, do the little 16 or 17 or 18-year-old flappers take calf love. Apparently every girl is born with a wedding ring in her mouth, and by the time she has cut her second teeth she has decided on what sort of a bridal gown she will have; whether she will be married at the church or at home under a floral bell, and whether she will have her bridesmaids in pink or blue. And the picture is so alluring that she conjures up that she can't wait to be grown to make it come true.

She is too much of a child and too utterly lacking in all worldly wisdom to know what it is all about, but she is determined to be married right away—immediately! She can't stand it until she is a doddering old woman of 20. Hence when a couple of kids in their teens run off and get married, it is a safe bet that the girl originated the plan and begged, persuaded, cajoled and shanghaied the boy into doing it.

It is the girls who rush into marriage without apparently giving one glance at the future, one thought to the consequences of what they are doing, or one-tenth of the consideration to its suitability that they would give to the selection of a new hat. They treat getting married as lightly as they do going to an afternoon tea, yet they are bound to know that it is the most important step they ever take in their whole lives and that it settles their fate for good or ill.

Perhaps it is because men have the fear of alimony before their eyes if a marriage turns out disastrously, and because men know that the husband always pays and pays and pays that makes boys look upon marriage more seriously than girls do. That they do there is no denying. It is the bride who sails triumphantly and smiling to the altar, while the frightened bridegroom, pale as a ghost, stumbles to it on frozen feet.

Very few young men who are in college, or studying professions, or who are out of work and not even able to support themselves want to marry until they are in a position to take care of a wife, but thousands of them are dragged into premature marriages by girls who give no thought to the morrow, how they shall be fed or wherewithal shall they be clothed.

And after marriage there is the same difference in the attitude of the sexes toward the holy estate. Probably there are just as many disappointed, disillusioned husbands as there are wives, but it is a rare thing to hear a man complaining of his wife, while wives' favorite indoor amusement is harping upon their husbands' faults. If a man doesn't like his wife he waits to tell it to the Judge and not to their acquaintances, but she regales her friends with all his shortcomings

Furthermore, if a man is unhappy in his home life, if his wife proves uncongenial and unsympathetic, he does not let it wreck his whole life, as so many women do if their marriages are failures. He does not dwell on his misfortune until it blots out all the sunshine of the world. He finds consolation in his business and his ambition, and thinks that it is a pretty good old world even if his house of dreams has gone to smash.

And he seldom breaks up his home of his own accord. Many a man endures patiently for a lifetime domestic conditions that would have sent a woman to Reno on the first train. Rum business, anyway, marriage, isn't it?

DOROTHY DIX.

What To Do

I have read somewhere about a progressive dinner party—having different courses at different homes, but I do not remember the details or just how it is done. A class of high-school seniors wish to have such a party. Will appreciate it if you will write and tell me just how it is managed. They wish to wind up with a dance at the last place.

MRS. N. M. K.

Answer—Progressive dinners are merry affairs. The group generally meet at the home of some member whose place is centrally located, and either have the first course here or go on to the home of another member. After the first course every one piles into cars and goes on to the next home for the second course, which is either soup or the main hot course. And so on and so on for the salad and dessert courses. The dance may be held at the dessert stop-off or it may be held at still another member's home. It is a good idea to call the next hostess when leaving, so she can have everything in readiness when the group arrives.

Quick Criss Cross Stitches Make Appealing Pillow or Picture

PATTERN 5789.

Hard to believe that just simple 6-to-the-inch crosses and a bit of outline stitch can make a kitten that looks so real you want to stroke his soft, fluffy fur. But here's proof—embroider him on a pillow or picture. Make him in beautifully blended shades of wool, silk or cotton floss!

In pattern 5789 you will find a transfer pattern of a kitten 10½ x 11¼ inches; a color chart and key; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches used.

Fruit Juices Peaches For Using In Mixing

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

North America may yet become known as the home of wonderful fruit juice combinations, just as France is called the land of fine wines.

Ladies with tummies that kept them from slipping into the modern silhouette dresses started the "drink fruit juice" movement. In one very swanky New York beauty salon along Fifth Avenue, there is a room set aside for drinking these juices. It's a modern bar, with all the fixings, except alcohol. Ladies of fashion saunter in and ask for a beauty "cocktail." And believe it or not, many men have picked up the habit. They, too, realize that a wide girth isn't all it once was supposed to be.

PROPORTIONS TO SUIT TASTE

It is difficult to give exact proportions, because tastes vary. So combine the juices in amounts that please you most. How about a crystal goblet filled with a softly tinted mixture of apricot juice and the milk from a fresh cocoanut? Or the juice from a fresh or quick frozen raspberries, pineapple juice and a bracer of grapefruit juice? Fresh pineapple juice, with a little orange juice and a few squeezes of fresh lime is a delight, and likewise a delight is the clear green juice pressed from honeydew melon combined with a little grapefruit juice and a little fresh lime.

All the juices used at the beauty salon bar are, of course, freshly pressed. But if you go in for this healthful and vitamin-mineral-rich habit at home, you may prefer to use a few canned or bottled juices to save the trouble of squeezing. There is a new brand of pasteurized fresh fruit juice in glass bottles which will amaze you with its fresh taste. It costs just a little more, but you will understand why. Not a drop of water, sugar or any preservative. The so-called "pasteurizing" keeps it in perfect state for an indefinite period.

Then, too, there are a lot of new juices, including pear, nectarine, plum and peach. These fruit nectars are milder than citrus nectars and combine very well with them. To those women and men who have allergies for citrus fruit, these milder nectars are a blessing.

WHOLE DAY OF LIQUIDS

If you have never tried going on "a liquid day" for the sake of your health or your fingers, try it now. After the Christmas overeating and over-excitement, your system will welcome it. Begin early in the morning with a glass of grapefruit juice. About ten, take at least five ounces of another juice. Then at one, try a glass of skim milk. At four in the afternoon, try still another fruit juice combination. For dinner have no more than a raw vegetable salad and a glass of grapefruit juice. Before retiring, take one more glass of fruit juice. In the morning you will feel delightfully peppy and ready to spring out of bed. And there is a large possibility that your liquid day may have cut your poundage.

Raising A Family -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

I don't give a snap for the child who pussy-foots around saying, "Yes, mother," or "No, mother."

Something is wrong. Either he has no spirit or he is afraid. Very probably the latter is the case.

O R Barton

Maybe he hasn't too much of which to be afraid but he thinks he has, and it amounts to the same thing. If he is not afraid of his parent, then he is afraid of something else, perhaps of himself.

I am not averse to a good, wholesome fear of consequences in a child, because this is normal and to be expected. But every child should have enough moral courage to try himself out at times, behaving as best he may without a bugaboo, real or imagined, trailing him. Only the child with a broken will and a broken spirit needs the spur of fear.

LEARN SELF-DISCIPLINE

Here, perhaps, is a good time to talk about parents themselves, regarding this matter of discipline, and their methods of applying it.

I think that many of us are AFRAID we won't be obeyed, and this makes us bear down harder than necessary. There is a satisfying magic in our KNOWING that the children are going to mind. We have to have the qualities of leadership, if we are to be leaders, and the real leader never gets jittery about others doing as he says. He takes that for granted.

Some parents, on the contrary, have an overdose of authority, and believe themselves invincible. This is a bad extreme, too. But no child respects a door-mat.

Then there is still another matter that prevents us from being good leaders. We take responsibility too hard.

The mother and father who give too many orders, expect too much perfection and get a set look about the mouth, are not slave drivers intentionally, but they worry too much about their jobs of running the family. They take it too seriously.

KEEP SENSE OF PROPORTION

We have to take it seriously, to be sure, but why be habitually worried? Children grow up and do well. Many things come out in the rinse anyway.

Tomorrow is tomorrow and today is today. It is the time to enjoy our families, not make an unbearable burden of them. The real leader has his bad moments, but he won't make mountains out of mole hills, or stacks out of straws. He never overplays little things.

Then, too, the good executive takes it for granted that God gave brains to his men as well as to himself. He knows what authority is, but he tempers his authority and issues commands that he knows CAN be obeyed, and will. He does not expect more than the traffic will bear. Never should we expect our children to do the impossible.

SCORPIONS DO NOT COMMIT SUICIDE BY STINGING THEMSELVES

The popular idea that scorpions, when captured, sometimes sting themselves to death, is nonsense. Scientists have proved that the poison of a scorpion cannot hurt the scorpion, even if he should sting himself. Scorpions, when captured, often curl their tails around, and this led people to believe they sting themselves. In tropical Africa I have seen scorpions six to eight inches long, and have known people who had been bitten or stung by them several times with no ill effects. They have seldom been known to kill people, as commonly believed; although their poison is strong enough to make you sick.

Frogs don't mind the sting of a bee and will wait beside a hive for their prey. Should they manage to get inside the hive, however, the bees quickly embalm the invader in wax.

Marshall Promises To Fight For Youth

Convention Gives Solid Support to Party's Nominee

ingly deprived of opportunities to develop and lead normal lives. "Our young people are dazed and wondering what they must do to develop normally," he said.

"If elected on March 21, I promise to wage an unceasing battle that the policies at Ottawa will be designed to see that the youth of the Dominion have the opportunity to develop and live normal lives. The fate of these young people must give their parents grave concern, and we must govern ourselves that the future may give them and their children proper security," continued Mr. Marshall amid ringing applause.

Pointing out that he would be the party standard bearer in a fight which could not be regarded as a "walkover in any sense of the word" the Liberal nominee asked for the support of all Liberals.

PLEDGES BEST EFFORTS

"I had thought I was out of active politics, but now that I am in again I am in to fight the battles of the people of East Edmonton and I want their assistance and support," he said.

"I want to make a special appeal to you as workers in this election. I am your candidate and without you cannot get very far as being human I have human limitations. I pledge myself to do my part every way I can and I want to ask you to realize that a lot of work must be done in an election of this kind. I cannot spend a lot of time with each of you as my time will be taxed to the limit but if we each do our part there isn't any doubt about the result of this election," he said.

A CLEAN CAMPAIGN

"Another thing I wish to impress upon you is that I will have opponents in the election who have as much right to run as I have. They are my fellow Edmontonians and I want, after this fight is over, to number them among my friends and no matter how spirted the campaign may get it will be what my opponents stand for and not personalities that I propose to discuss.

"I think it is up to us to do our part to so conduct this election that we shall make friends for the Liberal party, and I will not thank anyone to do anything on my beh If that would hurt the personal feelings of my opponents or their supporters. As far as I am concerned the electors of East Edmonton are going to be given the fullest opportunity to express their will on the issues of the day and not on personalities," continued the Liberal candidate.

EDMONTON'S FUTURE

Dealing with Edmonton's particular problems briefly Mr. Marshall pointed out that there were many ways in which progress could be aided.

"This city has the brightest future of any city on this continent of equal size. Even though the rest of the country cannot have compete prosperity, I firmly believe that Edmonton is sitting in the singular position at the present moment that if wise direction is given most of our major difficulties will disappear," he said.

"We are surrounded for long distances with the finest belt of rich black soil that exists anywhere, with tremendous deposits of coal right at our doors, with the Peace River country operating through here, with great oil possibilities at Wainwright, with great natural gas deposits close by and last but not least, what looks like one of the greatest mining developments in Canada just to the north of us, with the natural route to it all right through Edmonton, by rail to Waterways and from there for distribution by 1,500 miles of rivers and lakes to the whole mining districts of the north," he continued.

MUST SEIZE OPPORTUNITY

"At a meeting in this city about a month ago I said that the solution of our burdensome tax rates, the heavy burden of our home owners, business men, and all others, could only be successfully solved by seizing our great opportunity and seeing to it that we make the best of it, and by the normal and steady consequent growth, place the burden on more shoulders to the great benefit of all.

"I still think so and there are only two things that can stop it. First, a world catastrophe; secondly, a continuation of the blight that is ours by the destruction of our credit and confidence of other people to bring their money in here for development work.

CAN BE DONE

"The first we can do little to prevent; the second we have the great opportunity to say on March 21 next to all the world and to the other parts of Canada that now and here we call a halt. No more of these weird experiments, no more of this system of government by excuse, excuse that someone else, some mysterious monster is preventing them from doing what they claimed was so simple.

"No more of this cruel victimizing. We are through with it all—all we want is a fair and even chance with the rest of Canada to enjoy the full fruits of Confederation, and we as a virile people with the blood of the pioneers in our veins will take care of ourselves and in addition make a real contribution to the successful development of our country side by side with our fellow Canadians in every part of the country. We can, by our vote on March 21, say this is Canada and that the isolationist propaganda and movements must cease.

BEHIND TRADE POLICIES

"You have honored me tonight by making me the standard bearer of the Liberal party. I want to say right here that I believe the policies of that party are bringing about a steady growth in our prosperity. I believe the trade policies of the Liberal party are really getting us somewhere.

"I am glad that one of the first acts of the King Government, after coming into power, was the doing away with the system of concentration camps for single men. Our young people are dazed and wondering what they must do to develop normally. Theirs is the greatest tragedy of all and if I am elected, if I do nothing else, I propose to wage an unceasing battle that the policies at Ottawa shall be designed to see that they have opportunity to develop and live a normal life. The fate of these young people must give their parents concern and we must so govern ourselves that the future may give them and their children proper security.

A BUILDING PROGRAM

"In this city of wide open spaces, people are living in crowded rooms, shacks and insanitary conditions. There is an average of 1,260 marriages in Edmonton each year, but allowing for those who go elsewhere to live and for deaths, it is reasonable to assume there are 500 newly-weds each year. Where do they go? There is only an average of 144 new homes built per year so they must either live with their parents, double up with other people, go into crowded rooms or some such make-shifts.

"This is not normal or good. The normal development in new homes should be several hundred each year and this in turn will give employment to our carpenters, plumbers, electrical workers, plasterers, brick layers, painters and so on. But lack of confidence destroys our chances. We are suffering from our own mistakes.

"I want to repeat that we have got to have practical solutions to our problems, we must get back to a condition where people will have confidence in us and I hope that the people of east Edmonton will take this opportunity on March 21 to say that they will have no more of this lack of cooperation with the rest of Canada."

FOUR NOMINATED

Four names were placed in nomination at the convention: Lt.-Col. George B. McLeod, unsuccessful candidate in 1935; A. R. McLennan, Alderman F. C. Casselman and Mr. Marshall. Col. McLeod asked for his name to be withdrawn on the ground of ill-health, promising his full support of Mr. Marshall. The other two nominated also asked permission to withdraw, pledging their support to the nominee of the convention. Col. McLeod was given a reception as he took the platform to ask permission to have his name withdrawn. He thanked his supporters for their loyal assistance, and urged them to give the same measure of support to Mr. Marshall as they had accorded him in the 1935 election.

LOYALTY TO PRIME MINISTER

Loyalty to the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, P.C., C.M.G., LL.D., and confidence in his government and policies was unanimously adopted by the meeting. The text of the resolution, moved by Mrs. A. H. Gardiner, president of the Edmonton Women's Liberal Association, is as follows:

"That the East Edmonton Federal Liberal delegates in convention declare their loyalty to the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, P.C., C.M.G., LL.D., and express their confidence in him, his government and his policies with the hope that he will continue to be Premier of Canada and the leader of the Liberal party.

"We express the confidence that so long as he is premier of Canada he will continue to initiate and carry out policies that will result beneficially to this great dominion."

CHEERS FOR MINISTER

Prolonged cheering followed the unanimous adoption of another resolution of confidence in Hon. James G. Gardiner, Federal minister of agriculture and principal speaker of the meeting. The resolution was moved by H. H. Parlee, K.C., past president of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association, and was as follows:

"The East Edmonton Liberal delegates in convention express their complete confidence in the Hon. James G. Gardiner, B.A., LL.D. We particularly desire to commend him for his efforts to rehabilitate the drouth area in this and the neighboring province of Saskatchewan. We read with great interest Mr. Gardiner's address on this problem in the House of Commons in the 1937 session. The information contained therin and that knowledge which he acquired by personal investigation in the summer of 193[illegible], we feel sure, will result in successfully solving this problem.

"This convention further notes with approval Mr. Gardiner's remarks at the annual meeting of the Board of Trade in Toronto on February 14 instant, notably where he observes,—

"'Canada would not reach its true destiny until the credit of western Canada 'is so re-established that capital will flow into it freely and gladly to build up a greater and richer Dominion.' The future of the western drought area 'will be found in the experience gained by living in it under dry conditions.'

"And again,—

"'The west has a wonderful future if certain difficulties are worked out as they should be. From Winnipeg to the Pacific it is still the land of opportunity for those with vision enough to see it.'"

JASPER-BANFF HIGHWAY

The convention unanimously adopted a resolution requesting the federal government to appropriate sufficient money at the present session of parliament for the specific purpose of completing construction of the Jasper-Banff highway during 1938.

It was urged in the resolution that such construction would provide needed employment and would tend to the improvement of tourist traffic in Alberta. The resolution was proposed by Jack Marshall, and seconded by John G. Suss.

A resolution sponsored by Nate Campbell expressed whole-hearted confidence in James A. MacKinnon, Liberal member for West Edmonton, and thanked him for his never-failing patience and courtesy towards residents in East Edmonton riding.

HOUSING RESOLUTION

In this resolution the need for additional housing accommodation in East Edmonton was stressed. It was pointed out that the Dominion Housing Act failed in Alberta because it depends on its success upon the willingness of private capital taking part in the scheme, and lending companies will not come into Alberta because provincial government policies are not only uncertain, but appear to be antagonistic to such institutions.

The hope was expressed that the Dominion government would appreciate the prevailing circumstances and conditions existing in the province, and make adequate provision that some housing scheme would be adopted that could be made successful in Alberta.

member of parliament for West Edmonton, who was accorded a vote of approbation at the East Edmonton nominating convention Thursday night for his work in Ottawa.

JAPAN MARKS HUGE SUM TO WAR PURPOSE

Military and Naval Expense Account Supplement to Budget

TOKYO, Feb. 18.—The Japanese government earmarked $1,392,000,000 for the army and navy today to continue the war in China.

The new military expense account, as completed by the finance ministry, brought the bill for the seven months of conflict to $2,146,000,000.

SPECIAL ACCOUNT

The 4,800,000,000 yen ($1,392,000,000) "special account for extraordinary military expenditure" is a supplement to the ordinary budget. The finance ministry's figures will be submitted to the cabinet for approval next week.

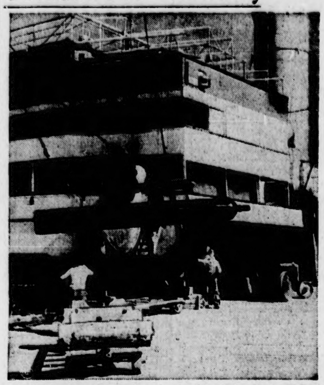
The sum already spent on the conflict is more than four times as much as the total for the Chinese-Japanese war of 1894-95 and the Russian-Japanese war of 1904-05 combined.

REPORTS SPEECH

The Japanese press reported at length President Roosevelt's declaration at a press conference that the purpose of American naval building is to have fleets on both oceans at the same time.

The newspaper Chugai said editorially "Britain and the United States are intending to expand their navies with future hostilities in the Far East as their objective. In other words, both countries are expanding their navies with Japan as their mark."

Helium For Germany



First shipment of helium ever to leave the United States, this big steel bottle of gas from the Amarillo, Texas, fields is consigned to Germany. It is part of the 17,900,000 cubic feet to be used in the new LZ-130, sister ship of the ill-fated Hindenburg. The gas is transported in 468 of these bottles aboard the German steamer Dessau, shown here at the dock in Houston.

Church Against Gambles As Means Raising Funds

CALGARY, Feb. 18—The committee on the bishop's charge recommended against raffles and other "chance" methods of raising church funds, at the Thursday session of the Calgary diocesan synod, Church of England.

The synod endorsed recommendations which included expressions of opposition to war and the need for minor adjustments in pension levy routine.

The charge was delivered the previous day by Rt. Rev. L. Ralph Sherman, bishop of Calgary.

Raffles and lotteries drew wide discussion.

Hugh C. Farthing, K.C., registrar of the diocese, said the church was a spiritual organization, while the law was not based on moral grounds but was for the protection of people and property.

The criminal code, he said, was "delightfully inconsistant" on gambling and the exception that allows the church to hold raffles up to $50 was one of them. If gambling is prohibited, no exceptions should be made.

He urged direct giving to the church—a system other than "incessant teas and bridges for the purpose of raising money" which "are a nuisance."

Ice-Breaker To Crack Niagara

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 18. — The ice-breaker Salvage Prince fought its way through the ice of Kingston harbor Thursday in an attempt to reach open water, and then lay a course by way of Oswego for Niagara Falls where it will attempt to smash the ice jam in the Niagara river. In four hours the tug travelled two miles.

Perley Estate Is Two Million

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley, veteran Conservative member of parliament for Argenteuil and former cabinet minister, who died Jan. 4, left an estate valued at $1,929,295, according to his will filed for probate Thursday.

DUGGAN AND LOW CLASH ON QUERIES

believed Mr. Low was quite in order in making the statements he did.

SHOULD BE ANSWERED

Mr. Speaker Peter Dawson stated that he felt that when questions were asked by members on the floor of the house they should be answered.

Thanks were tendered Mr. Speaker by Mr. Duggan and Mr. Low rose in his place and read Mr. Duggan's questions and his answers.

The text of the questions and answers follows:

1—How much have the Social Credit Board broadcasts cost the public treasury of Alberta?

(a) Before any sponsorship? Answer: $572.07.

(b) Since the sponsorships? Answer: Nothing.

2—To what extent have ministers in the Alberta government accepted the offer of the Social Credit board for "the assistance of the commissioners in interpolating into their speeches and writings the reconciliation of the departmental facts which they publish with the philosophy of life which the Aberhart government has adopted? Answer: The implication in this question is insolent and profoundly foolish.

3—Are not the legislature and the public entitled to know what are "departmental facts" and what are "interpolations"? Answer: That must be left to the intelligence of the listener.

SAYS IMPERTINENT

4—Should not ministers write what they sign and should not the Social Credit Board sign what it writes, so the public may not be misinformed as to authorship? Answer: This contains an impertinent insinuation.

5—Was advantage taken of Major Douglas' offer of assistance in preparing briefs for the supreme court references and, if so, what are the expense to the public treasury? Answer: No.

6—Distribution of printed material outside Alberta:

(a) What distribution was made outside of Alberta by the King's Printer before receipt of the ruling by the attorney general's department that such distribution was illegal. Answer: None.

(b) Before discontinuance what was the total cost to the province? None.

(c) Has this illegal expenditure been recovered by the province, and if so, from whom? Answer: See answer to 6A.

IS INCORPORATED

(d) Does the Social Credit Board give instructions to the unofficial organization known as the Social Credit League to do anything which the Social Credit Board itself could not do? Answer: The questioner is misinformed. The Social Credit League is an officially incorporated body.

(e) As part of the time of the Social Credit Board has been spent on propaganda outside the province, which was held to be illegal, should not a corresponding part of the salaries and general expenses of the board be charged to such propaganda and refunded to the treasury of Alberta? Answer: See answer to 6A.

(f) Was any expense to the treasury of Alberta involved in the preparation and printing of 10,000 copies of each of three different Social Credit pamphlets which were sent recently to the federal Social Credit M. P. for Kindersley, Sask.? Answer: The board knows nothing about this.

SILLY QUESTION

7—What action, if any, was taken by the Social Credit Board or the government as a result of the recommendation that the Central Social Credit Club of Calgary be helped out by appointing Robert Leach, "the moving spirit of the club," assistant director of public relations, at a small salary, and "that he be allowed some small amount" to rent an office and that this office would undoubtedly be in the Central Social Credit club? This is a silly question, to which there can be no answer.

Mr. Duggan: I am indebted for the answers.

Also on the order paper were other questions by Mr. Duggan about the cost to the province for technical and legal assistance in connection with the preparation of the brief covering financial relations between the Dominion government and the province.

Preparation of the brief was started with expectation it would be submitted to the Rowell commission on Dominion-provincial relations. At the special session of the legislature last September, however, the house passed a resolution saying it should not be presented to the commission.

A return on the questions will be tabled later.

CITY MAY YET FIELD LEAGUE RUGBY SQUAD

Union Will Give Consideration to Edmonton's Application

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18.—Frank Hannibal, western interprovincial football union president, said today if Edmonton could field a team capable of furnishing adequate competition for other union clubs he believed their application for admittance to the union would receive the executive's "sympathetic consideration."

Mr. Hannibal said his earlier statement that Edmonton would have to wait another year for admittance was based on the assumption the northern Alberta city had insufficient material. He said, however, later information indicated Edmonton was prepared to field a capable team.

FOURTH TEAM DESIRABLE

Manager Joe Ryan of Winnipeg Blue Bombers said a fourth team in the conference would be desirable but that inclusion of Edmonton would place a much heavier transportation burden on the Winnipeg club compared with Calgary and Regina.

"Our club is already under contract for three exhibition games with United States colleges this fall and it will be difficult for that reason to alter our schedule to include Edmonton," he said.

EVERYTHING WITHIN REASON

"However, we will do everything within reason to further the game in any western city, Edmonton included. Our understanding that the W.I.F.U. meeting in Regina was that in event of Edmonton building up a team this year all three conference teams would endeavor to provide them with exhibition games and the union winner would meet them for the western Canada championship.

"Then if they had proven themselves we would admit them to the league and drop our American exhibition games the next year. On that basis we booked Concordia, North Dakota and North Dakota State."

Tax To Be Imposed On Mineral Rights In Province

ALBERTA PAID 50 PER CENT. OF INTEREST

$256,795 Paid On Lethbridge Northern District Debentures

In the year ended on March 31, 1937, interest payments on account of the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation district debentures, guaranteed by the province, cost the province $256,795, according to a report prepared by C. M. Lang, provincial auditor, and tabled in the legislature by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer.

The report shows that the interest was paid to the bondholders at only 50 per cent of the contractual rate, in accordance with an Order-in-Council passed on May 31, 1936

NO PAYMENT TO I.O.F.

The total includes no payment in respect to interest owing the Independent Order of Foresters, which organization instituted legal proceedings to establish right of the provincial government to cut interest.

Assistance was given by the government to the United Irrigation District, with interest and sinking fund charges to the amount of $33,113 paid and with $16,569 paid to the New West Irrigation district in respect of the same charges.

Of these amounts, $17,000 has been repaid.

$23,976 IN LOANS

Other irrigation districts obtained loans from the government totalling $23,976 with $20,762 repaid to date.

The province, in addition, paid other guarantees during the year, including $113,466 on co-operative credit societies guaranteed loans; $109,682 on municipal and school district loans; $72 on binder twine loans, while amounts recovered from these items totalled $36,770.

The Iris of the Human Eye

By Jackson Bros. Eyesight Specialist

The word iris means a rainbow, and it receives this name from its various colors in different individuals. It is this structure which gives to the eye its special color, and upon which a large part of its beauty depends. When we speak of a blue black or brown eye we mean the color of the iris of that particular eye, and it is usually in accord with the general coloring of the individual; blondes generally having blue and gray eyes, and brunettes brown or black eyes.

It is an interesting fact that the eyes of new born babies are always blue, and they do not begin to assume their permanent color until the sixth or eighth week of life, being then formed by the addition of a greater or less amount of dark pigment.

The iris is a thin, circular shaped, contractible membrane, suspended in what is called the aqueous humor behind the cornea and in front of the crystalline lens. It is perforated slightly to the nasal side of its centre by a circular aperture, called the pupil, for the transmission of light, thus forming a curtain stretched across the interior of the eye. There is a popular notion that dark eyes are stronger than light ones; the only foundation for this idea is the fact that they are better protected against excessive light. Hence light eyes prevail among northern nations, and dark eyes among the races who live in the glare of a tropical sun.

Through the action of two sets of muscles, the pupil has the property of changing its size thus regulating the amount of light admitted to the retina.

The chief disease of the iris is what is called iritis. It is sometimes very painful, and people affected with it have to wear dark glasses on account of their inability to withstand light.

Visit our Optical Parlor if you are in any way affected by eyestrain. You will receive a thorough eyesight examination by our eyesight specialist, who has at his disposal the very latest instruments known to science.

To reliable people we extend our easy payment plan, enabling them to wear their glasses while paying for them.

2 CENTS PER ACRE TAX ON WILD LANDS

Bill is Brought Into House After Minister Obtains Approval

Under provisions of a bill respecting Taxation of Wild Lands, introduced into the legislature on Thursday by Hon. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs, there will be a tax of two cents per acre levied on such lands "or at such lesser rate as may be fixed."

The bill was brought into the house after the minister had obtained approval of a resolution permitting same.

Purpose of the bill is set forth as follows: "For the purpose of adding to or supplementing revenue, there is to be annually assessed, levied and collected on all lands in the province not exempt from taxation under the Act, a tax to be called the Wild Lands Tax at the rate of two cents per acre or at such lesser rate as may be fixed."

FURTHER PROVISION

It is further provided in respect to the levy of the tax that "provided always that where any tax on any lot or any fraction of a quarter section of land would apart from this proviso be less than 25 cents, the tax on any such lot or fraction shall be 25 cents."

Exemptions from the tax are many and include: land held by the crown, land held in trust for the use of any tribe of Indians; land to the extent of three acres held by or for the use of any church and occupied by a building used for church purposes; land in use as a public cemetery not exceeding 25 acres; land for which homestead entry has been made under the provisions of the Dominion Lands Act or of any Act substituted therefor; all land held under grazing lease from the government of Canada or the province for grazing purposes and in accordance with terms and provisions of the grazing regulations as from time to time in force.

COLLECTED BY COUNCIL

It is further provided that the Wild Lands Tax shall be levied and collected in every municipal district by the council and in every improvement district by the minister as if the same were a tax upon land duly levied under provisions of the municipal districts.

Appeal from the tax is provided to secretaries of municipalities.

Asked to explain provisions of the bill, the minister said that it was much the same as the Wild Lands Tax that had been in force prior to the 1936 session, when it was repealed and abolished. The new bill would provide a flat rate of so much per acre—two cents—on the wild lands.

A. E. MacLellan, S.C., Innisfail, asked what difficulties had been encountered in collecting the tax in the past.

BENEFITS SEEN

H. J. Ash, S.C., Olds, contended that restoration of the tax would be beneficial when it was recalled that the C.P.R. and Hudson's Bay Company had benefitted through the act being repealed to the extent of $43,000.

Mr. MacLellan returned to the discussion with a question as to the cost of collecting the tax and the amount collected.

Mr. Maynard, in reply declared that "I will have full detail on how much it cost to collect the tax and the difficulties encountered in the last two years, when the bill reaches second reading."

The bill was then given first reading.

Three Cent Levy Per Acre Is Set In Proposed Act

Province To Make Charge Which Has Been Waived Since Taking Over Natural Resources From Dominion

Annual tax of three cents an acre on all mineral rights in the province is provided for in a bill "to impose a tax on minerals" introduced into the legislature on Thursday by Hon. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs.

In effect this bill is identical with the bill with somewhat similar provisions, passed by the legislature in 1923, but later disallowed by the Dominion government as an invasion of its field of jurisdiction.

The bill is not yet printed.

In 1930 control of its natural resources were returned to the province by the Dominion and it is now felt by the province that, in view of this, it can make the levy where it did not have jurisdiction before.

HELD BY OWNERS

It is stated that one half of the present mineral production in Alberta, which is made up chiefly of oil and coal, is being drawn from lands on which mineral rights are held by the owners.

Among the largest land areas held privately and not by the crown, are those of the Hudson's Bay Company, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Calgary and Edmonton Corporation.

All homesteads taken up prior to 50 years ago carried with them mineral rights as well as surface grants and it is believed that except in cases where changes in title have been made since, these lands will come within the new tax.

It is provided that every mine owner is taxable and shall pay to the minister three cents an acre.

The tax is payable by August 1 of the year in which it is due.

MAKE STATEMENTS

Owners must forward before September 1 in each year, a statement of parcels of land in respect of which they are taxable under the act.

In case of failure to forward the tax payable in [illegible] the minister shall add 10 per cent to the amount owing and payable.

If no payment is made within three months the minister may direct the registrar of lands of the district, to make a memorandum

The Inquiring Reporter

In the legislature last Tuesday, E. L. Gray, Alberta Liberal leader, pleaded for a program of regrassing, reforestation and watering from the international boundary to the Rocky mountains to prevent spread of drought. The M.L.A. believed the day would come when $50,000,000 would have to be spent in the region north of Red Deer to fight drought.

This program, he urged, should be carried out by the federal and provincial governments.

Here are a few comments on the question gleaned by The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter:

MRS. MARION CONROY, regional vice-president of the Alberta Liberal Association: Mr. Gray has sounded a warning to governments—a warning they should heed if the Alberta wheatlands are to be protected. Gradually, clearance of land is slowly resulting in the spread of the drought condition, and action should be taken now to fight this menace before it is too late. Mr. Gray's chief interest has been agriculture, as the most important industry in Alberta, and the ideas he expresses are typical of his attitude as leader of the Liberal party in Alberta.

W. J. A. MUSTARD, barrister: The United States is carrying out a big program of reforestation and watering to alleviate drought conditions, and it's time the western provinces realized fully the creeping menace which is destroying the crops more and more every year. It's easier to do some preventive work from year to year, than to ignore the situation until it's too late.

ART PICKERING, bread delivery service: What is happening in southern Saskatchewan and Alberta, as well as in the dust-bowl of the United States—Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas—should be a lesson to us. Drought is coming north little by little every year as more and more brush is cut down and farmlands are exposed to the sweeping winds. Reforestation and watering should be done immediately before any more land goes to desert.

Advices have reached Edmonton that Sir Hubert Wilkins, famed explorer, accompanied by Archie McMullen, flying a Ma[illegible] service plane, has reached Aklavik with a new Wasp engine to take the place of the one damaged in a flight a month ago.

Two or three days must elapse ere the new engine can be installed, when the search for Sigismund Levanesky and his five Russian colleagues will be resumed. The men were lost on an attempted flight from Russia to the United States via the North Pole.

An acre of ground contains 43,560 square feet. A 1-inch rain on the acre would amount to 3,630 cubic feet of water and, since each cubic foot of pure water weighs approximately 62.4 pounds, the weight of this amount of water would be about 113 tons.

WHEAT PRICES TAKE TUMBLE

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18.—Lack of buying power to counteract fair selling sent wheat futures about two cents lower on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Forecast of heavy snow in the United States winter wheat belt and lower Chicago prices were chief influences as prices ended the session ⅜-1½ cents lower, May $1.26⅞; July $1.17⅜ and October 96⅞ cents.

King George Calls On Britons To Make Selves Fit

Exhausted Seamen Battle Fierce Storm on Atlantic

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—Sluggish under a mass of ice, the battered Gloucester fishing schooner Raymonde put in at fish pier Wednesday, her half-masted flag mutely telling of her flirtation with death and disaster on St. Peter's bank, off Newfoundland.

Wind of gale force caught the little fishing vessel at anchor last Friday, and waves "as high as a house" came crashing down on her decks, carrying Albany Mulse, of Yarmouth, N.S., a crew member, to his death.

Barely escaping a similar fate, Charles Deveau, 50, of Gloucester, at the helm of the ship when the storm struck, was carried overboard by a wave which tore loose the pilot house. Clad in oilskins and hip boots, he struggled to the surface, clutched at a trailing rope and was hauled to safety.

Except for the action of John Sheehan, of Gloucester, said members of the crew, the Raymonde would have gone down. Seaman Sheehan, barefooted, climbed along the teetering, slippery deck and cut loose the trailing anchor cable. Then she righted herself.

FAUST

Wolves Invade Town Of Faust

Alarm has spread through Faust with the arrival of wolves, on the forenoon of Saturday, February 12. In broad daylight, a pack of six was on the edge of the village, first seen near McRae's sawmill.

Armed with guns, two of the townsmen, George Turner and William Bannister, gave chase by auto as the animals retreated onto the lake. One of the pack was bagged but further success was prevented by a crack in the ice too wide for the car to cross.

Packs of wolves, growing steadily in size, have been preying upon livestock and endangering human lives on the north shore of Lesser Slave Lake and in adjacent settlements for a number of years. Big game, a great boon to the Indians and back settlers, is also being rapidly depleted by these brutes.

His Majesty Addresses Audience of 1,000 in Fitness Campaign

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The King, in one of his rare speeches, last night called on Britons to make themselves physically fit as "a duty to ourselves and our generation."

The King thus gave royal impetus to the campaign for regular physical exercises — popularly known as "physical jerks."

He urged opportunity be provided for all to take regular exercise and declared "This cause lies very near my heart. . . . If we all do our share success is assured and greater well-being of our people will be the supreme reward."

SPOKE SLOWLY

The King spoke slowly but with less hesitation than has marked his previous addresses. The speech was at a meeting of 1,000 representatives of public and private groups, called at the Guildhall to increase interest in the government's £10,000,000 ($50,000,000) "National Fitness" campaign launched last year. From the money many grants have been made to help build swimming pools, gymnasiums and sports fields.

"No one need take part in any organized training unless he wishes to do so," the King declared. He thus emphasized Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration in the House of Commons earlier in the day against all forms of peace-time compulsory service, military as well as physical training of civilians.

REGULAR EXERCISE

"Our bodies are instruments with which we have to work," the King said. We must all have an opportunity for regular exercise. . . . The movement will fail in its purpose if it does not provide a variety of facilities to attract the adult and middle-aged.

"The good will and co-operation of all who may be in a position to help is also vital."

Queen Elizabeth accompanied the King to the Guildhall reception organized by the City of London Corporation. A British Broadcasting Corporation hookup carried the King's voice throughout the country.

FITTER BRITAIN

The "fitter Britain" campaign was launched in 1937 when the government appointed a national advisory council on physical fitness, headed by Lord Aberdare, 52-year-old athlete. Other members were Lord Dawson of Penn, physician to the King, and Dorothy Round, noted tennis player.

Prime Minister Chamberlain inaugurated the campaign in September with a speech that launched a six-month publicity campaign.

Observers agree the campaign needs speeding up and Thursday's reception was held for that purpose. The government desires "a vigorous crusade of publicity and practical demonstration to intensify interest and participation in national fitness."

Merchants and manufacturers are using the fitness plea to advertise many products. Newspapers, taking up the "keep fit" slogan, have produced special supplements with articles and advertisements pointing the way to new and quicker health.

Starvation and Exposure Take Wife North Trapper

MOOSE FACTORY, Ont., Feb. 18.—A story of illness and near-starvation among a group of Moose Factory Indians was related last night by 69-year-old Charles McCauley, husband of a woman said to have died of starvation and exposure on the Moose river four miles from this James Bay port.

"We have been out of food for a week and we have nothing we can call our own," said McCauley.

Mrs. McCauley was found dying yesterday by her son, Sinclair McCauley. The woman was said to have left her home in 30 below zero weather to see if any game had been trapped in snares set along the river bank.

The woman was half-frozen, the son related, "and I was not able to move her. He said he took off most of his clothes to cover his mother who "spoke to me and said she was tired and kissed me." Sinclair returned to his home for help. Mrs. McCauley's unconscious form was placed on a sleigh but Sinclair said "she died on the way back home."

Thirteen Indians have died in this James Bay district in the past two months. It was believed an unusually severe winter was partially the cause of their deaths.

PLEA IS MADE BY SPEAKER IN SYNOD PARLEY

Time Is Ripe For Reasonable Terms Of Understanding, Claim

CALGARY, Feb. 18.—Closer co-operation between the Church of England in Canada and the United Church of Canada was urged by Rev. Robert Laird of Toronto when he addressed the 27th Synod of the Anglican Diocese of Calgary here Thursday.

Dr Laird, treasurer of the United Church of Canada, declared:

"The time is ripe for the Church of England in Canada and the United Church of Canada to come to reasonable terms of understanding one with the other. There is no task greater than the sovereign task of reconciling men to God and reconciling them one with another."

ASKS CO-OPERATION

He made a plea for co-operation especially in the far-flung mission fields.

"I make a plea for better understanding between the churches," said the Toronto churchman.

"I am convinced that this is the sterling moment for such a movement in Canada's religious life, when there are so many groups springing up with panaceas for the many problems of the day.

"I believe that a larger union is before us for I have been at close quarters with the missions of many churches in many lands and find them working together in close co-operation."

WOULD REJOICE

Dr. Laird said he was convinced that hundreds of communities would rejoice if their spiritual needs could be ministered to by the churches working hand in hand.

Returning from a world tour, Dr. Laird, who recently landed at Vancouver, left for Toronto last night.

FARM CONTROL MEASURE NOW IS IN MOTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The United States administration set in motion last night machinery to carry out the gigantic crop control program signed into law by President Roosevelt.

Declaring the measure for regulation of farm production and marketing was "historic legislation," Mr. Roosevelt added it represented "the winning of one more battle for an underlying farm policy that will endure."

The new program uses the present soil conservation act as its foundation. To induce farmers to keep production in line with market needs and to conserve soil-building practices, the government will continue to pay cash benefits for which an expenditure of $500,000,000 annually is authorized

Coupled with the marketing controls are provisions for commodity loans to farmers who hold surpluses off the market. The act also authorizes crop insurance to protect wheat growers

Price Fixing Of Coal Enjoined By Court Of Appeals

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—The United States Circuit Coort of Appeals enjoined the National Bituminous Coal Commission Thursday from enforcing certain parts of its price fixing order on railroad locomotive fuel.

The temporary injunction was asked by seven coal companies claiming to have an investment of $23,100,000 in Illinois and Indiana. They attacked the price schedules as "confiscatory," and asked that general price schedules be vacated or that section applying to Illinois and Indiana prices on locomotive fuel be set aside.

In asking relief, the six Illinois and one Indiana coal company termed the prices discriminatory especially since no allowance had been made for differentials in the grades of coal mined in southern Illinois and other Illinois and Indiana districts

CAST OF CHARACTERS

JUDITH IRVING, heroine, America's best dressed woman.

PHILIP IRVING, Judith's estranged husband

MARTA ROGERS, Judith's rival

BRUCE KNIGHT, author, Judith's old classmate.

MILLICENT BAYNE, Bruce's protege.

Yesterday: Judith and Millicent leave by plane for Reno. They encounter severe storms over the Rockies, the ship lowers, they are ordered to "Prepare to land."

CHAPTER VIII

THE mountain and the airship were coming together, Judith sensed, while her thoughts crowded together until they beat against her brain. Together—but they didn't meet—they were taking a long, long time to crash. If only it would be swift—

The crash that broke the mountain's storm came then. It was sharp and definite but it did not reverberate as she had expected. The ship shook itself with a tremendous spasm and then lay still Judith, thrown to the floor, felt her head bump something and knew that it hurt. Voices were raised. Someone screamed. Somebody flashed a light. People were standing up. She realized that she wasn't hurt.

"Millicent," she called

"Judith! Are you all right?" the girl answered. "The ship stood the shock. Oh Judith, we're alive!"

We're alive! It was good to hear. She would see Phil again, she told herself simply. Maybe the pattern would change to the old familiar one. Then she hurried to the pilot's side. "I can make bandages," she said

In the end there were two broken arms and many minor bruises among the passengers. The pilot had made a landing that would go down in air chronicles as one of the most dexterous feats of aviation. The ship was disabled for further service until repairs were made, however. Not until automobiles had come from the nearest small town in Colorado, to take the passengers into the village, did Judith begin to wonder if Phil would learn about the crash tonight. If so, had he suffered because she was in danger in the sky?

She thought then of Millicent who was thinking about Bruce and wondering at his reaction.

"He will be relieved and happy to know you're safe," Judith said, forgetting that she used an antecedent instead of Bruce's name

"Yes, he has his own ship and knows the dangers," Millicent said "Funny, when he'll turn any kind of a somersault that he gets all goofy about anyone else flying, isn't it? He tried to advise me last night"

"Bruce flies?" Judith asked

"Bruce?" Millicent laughed. "No, not Bruce, Ronnie." Her face grew serious and rather tired. "Bruce doesn't know that we came." The night was cold, the hills were high and the stars were gone. A few moments before they had glimpsed death in a lonely land. Millicent drew nearer Judith. "Judy, doesn't it hurt like the devil to love someone who doesn't want to love you. I wonder if Bruce will follow me"

They bumped along the hill road until they reached the town where wooden houses clustered at the approach to the mines and the ranches back in the higher ranges. Judith stretched her slim body as she alighted from the car. She looked around for her bags, found they were jammed in the plane, would be sent on later.

Rooms at the little inn were at a premium. A rancher, standing in front of the hotel, who was starting on a trip to his home 30 miles beyond, tipped his hat and offered hospitality. Faded blue eyes smiled from a face that had weathered sun and wind and storms for 40 years. He was a man whom one could trust, Judith decided at once

"Do you take boarders?" she asked

"Well, not exactly. We have one young fellow there and a couple more comin' in a week or so. But you're welcome to the beds and the grub, ma'am"

There was time enough to go to Reno later. She had all of her life to reach Reno. Gray eyes shining now, Judith turned to Millicent.

"Milly, shall we? We can proceed to Nevada any time"

"I'd adore it! I'm not very keen on gossiping with expectant divorcees anyway. And neither are you. You want a divorce about as much as I want rheumatism but you're being game. Too game, my darling! I vote for the ranch house."

They went into the general store, which was still open, and asked to see clothes. Judith turned away from the rack of cheap cotton dresses. Then she saw the overall counter. There were white denim overalls on display.

"Have you cotton blouses in bright colors?" she asked. The store had. She chose a turkey red, a vivid green, a navy blue, and yellow, and smiled as she paid the little amount charged for them as she remembered the beaded jackets—four of the lovely six—that reposed in the damaged plane. She bought three pairs of white overalls, too, some white sneakers, and a dozen handkerchiefs

Millicent, after a timorous look around, selected dark blue overalls and white blouses. Judith realized that the girl was trying not to copy her ideas. To her, Judith Irving, best dressed woman in America, Millicent gave full choice of selection

They took their packages and climbed into an ancient car that wheezed as it moved through fields that sloped gently upward as the road began to narrow. Very late they came to the ranch house It was low and sprawling. Rough hewn chairs and tables, upholstered with deep cushions that spelled comfort, a piece or two of good brass stood around

An old Indian woman set out food—roast chicken, half a ham, a large portion of cold roast beef, rolls and butter and honey, a fruit pie and coffee. It was a man's house, a man's table, a man's welcome. And Judith responded to the new virility and strength of the scene with deepened enthusiasm

Judith and Millicent were ravenously hungry. They were sleepy, too. It was 11 o'clock the next day when they appeared. A tall man with a lean, wind-darkened face and a quick smile that played around [illegible] eyes, rose to meet them

"I hear you're the new part of the household," he said. "I'm Mark Price, also a boarder"

Mark Price—where had she heard that name, Judith wondered. Mrs. Irving, as a name, meant nothing to the man. Apparently women's clothes didn't either. He appeared scarcely to notice Judith's white denim trousers, turkey red shirt and low-heeled brogues. Millicent in her blue and white, got no better attention

Clothes horses admired for her frocks—well, here was a man who was concentrating on her voice and eyes, Judith realized with a sense of pleasure. Phil had dared to suggest that it was her clothes for which she was sought. Phil had been wrong

Judith made no apologies for her ensembles

Nor did she mention them in the half dozen days that followed. Mark Price was friendly and kind and companionable. He, Judith and a good-looking cowboy who had had a year at Colgate went horseback riding, had picnic lunches in the gorge, sat by an open fire at night and listened to the wind in the higher hills, or danced to the radio, chairs pushed back against the wall, while the rest of the cowboys gathered and vied for favors

Judith varied the blouses, turkey red, emerald green, the dark navy and the yellow. The men liked her best in the outfit that had cost less than $5. Clothes didn't matter. She wished again that Phil—the old Phil with whom she had laughed and talked and walked—would come

She thought about it as she danced one night. Outside a full golden moon spilled yellow wine down the mountains and it dripped through the door onto the bare, polished floor. A thousand miles away an orchestra gathered the song that made the musical pattern to which the low-heeled brogues and the cowboys' heavy boots kept time. Maybe Phil and Marta were listening to that music, somewhere, way off. Maybe they were dancing to it And she, Judith Irving, was on her way to Reno—dancing her way to Reno

Mark Price was steering her to the door. She wondered if all her life now, little loves and little flatteries would have to make up to her for the important thing that she had missed

Now, on the verandah of the farmhouse, with the sweet smell of the earth and the vines and the bushes on the evening air, Mark Price turned to her.

"Mrs. Irving, I want to ask you something and well, to be honest, I'm frightened out of my wits."

"Yes, Mark?" Other men had begun their talk of romance in this vein, too. It was a little amusing, after all, to be thus approached when she was bound for Reno.

"I'm not so formidable," she answered. "But what in the world do you want?" Her matter-of-fact tone tried to discourage any romantic tendencies.

He began to laugh, wholeheartedly, without further embarrassment. "Not at all what you think," he said. "Something quite different!"

Union Jack Canada Flag, Old Letter Information

OTTAWA, Feb. 18—Described by Prime Minister Mackenzie King as the first official declaration that the Union Jack was the flag of Canada, a communication from Colonial Secretary L. Harcourt, dated April 12, 1911, was tabled in the house of commons.

Mr. Harcourt wrote the then governor general of Canada asking him to advise J. Stedman, school teacher of Ebenezer, Sask., that "The Union Jack is the national flag of Canada as of all other parts of His Majesty's dominions." Mr Stedman had written the secretary to the King asking him what flag should be flown in Canada as the national flag.

During the flag debate in the house Monday the prime minister referred to Mr. Harcourt's communication as the first indication the Union Jack was to be considered officially as the flag of Canada.

The resolution of C. R. McIntosh (Lib., North Battleford), calling for a committee to establish a national flag will be debated further at a later date.

Newspapermen Find Something To Agree Upon

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, told the Inland Daily Press Association yesterday "the shaddiest educational ventures under respectable auspices are the schools of journalism."

He declared schools of journalism "exist in defiance of the obvious fact that the best preparation for journalism is a good education. Journalism itself can be learned, if at all, only by being a journalist."

North Passengers Are Flown Out To Peace River Town

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

PEACE RIVER, Feb. 18.—Pilot Herb Popson flying a Mackenzie Air Service plane dropped into town Wednesday afternoon, having left Yellowknife at 8.30 in the morning, stopping at Fort Smith for fuel and Fort Vermilion for lunch. He had five passengers aboard, four of whom will leave on Friday's train for Edmonton while Bud Devore, the other passenger, remains at his home here and will commence immediately to make preparations for a return to Yellowknife on the first open water this spring.

He will build a scow and carry back supplies to the trading post of Harry Weaver which opened up last spring.

NEW STRUGGLE SEEN FORMING IN INDIA RANKS

PATNA, India, Feb. 18.—The congress party's working committee meeting at Haripura last night girded itself for a new struggle as neither the past nor the viceroy made any move towards compromise in the dispute over political prisoners.

"We may have to keep our knapsacks on our backs and be ready to march at a moment's notice," declared Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, president of the party. "We did not think of this a fortnight ago. We now meet in an atmosphere of conflict with British imperialism. What may come I cannot say, but that is what we are heading for."

Following the resignation of congress ministries in Bihar and United Provinces after the refusal of the provincial governors to consent to the immediate release of all political prisoners, it was learned last night that the cabinets in the four other provinces controlled by the congress party—Bombay, Central Province, Madras and Orissa—will resign, probably today, making the issue all-India in scope.

Beats Rose Rink 9-8 In Curling Classic: Defeats Olson 8-6

Dominion Champions of 1937 Advance to Meet Southern Alberta Finalists Here On Saturday—Two Out of Three Series

By JACK KELLY

SKIPPER CLIFF MANAHAN and his Royal Club rink that won the Dominion curling championship in 1937 are again northern Alberta's hopes for the Macdonald Brier.

The Manahans passed their first milepost toward the Toronto classic here Thursday afternoon when they won the right to advance against the southern champions in the Alberta final by defeating Billy Rose of Sedgewick 9-8 and "Ole" Olson of the Royal 8-6.

Cliff and his three aces play Herb Black of Calgary here Saturday for the British Consols trophy and the honor of representing Alberta in the Brier finals. These games will be a two-out-of-three series at 10:00 a.m., 3:00 p.m., and 8:00 p.m. at the Royal club.

The clash between Manahan and Rose was by long odds the highlight of the Consols competition to date. Right up to the last rock the result was in doubt. Shots that the average curler can only dream of making were pulled off time after time while a gallery of four or five hundred fans held its collective breath.

BREAKS DEADLOCK

Thursdays decisive play started at 9:00 a.m. with two games. Manahan and Ritchie had to play off to break a tie for section supremacy in the round-robin draw and Manahan won 12-10. At the same time, Rose was handing Olson a 12-3 defeat in their inter-sectional playoff

Then in the afternoon the two curling kings of central and northern Alberta locked horns when Manahan and Rose met. A victory for Rose would have ended the playdown and sent him against the southern champions since it would have been two out of three possible wins. Manahans win, however, made a third game necessary with Olson. Had Olson won, all three rinks would have had to play each other again, since each would have had one win.

Here are the end scores for the Rose-Manahan clash:

Manahan	121 101 003 000—9

It was the front end of the Rose rink that was off, George Crookes and Bobby Wells both running into a slump that they couldn't seem to break out of. Behind them Doc McBride and Skip Billy were forced to climb to sensational heights. Repeatedly the gallery burst into loud applause as the two stars came through with shots that were as daring as they were brilliant.

On the other hand, Manahan was getting marvelous shots from all his men, but was a bit off himself and threw four or five rocks right through the house without touching anything.

Four down on the fourth end, Rose attempted a shot that was typical of his daring game throughout. He was lying one when he went to the hack to throw the last stone of the end. Instead of being content with a certain one, he shot for two. He had to take out a Manahan rock biting the outer ring at the front of the house. His shot was light

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

Two Of The Best

Playoffs Start

No Enthusiasm

THE majority of the ice-wise who have watched the curling talent on display here during the past two weeks will agree that Cliff Manahan's rink is probably the best one to represent this section of the province in the Alberta final leading to the Macdonald Brier playoff at Toronto. There may be other rinks that are more sensational at times, but none that are any better bets when the chips are down and the boys have to deliver the goods under pressure. When Herb Black and his Calgarians come here Saturday they had better be good if they expect to stop the Manahan Clan.

But if the Manahans are tough and consistent curlers, Billy Rose of Sedgewick is my nominee as the most brilliant and sensational curler in central and northern Alberta. He plays the type of game that appeals to me. It also seems to appeal to the fans in general for whenever Rose is in action in an important game he draws capacity galleries.

Rose plays the sort of game that puts box-office punch into this business of pushing granite up and down the ice. He can hit the eye of an needle with a rock and he can just about stop a stane on any hairline you lay down for him. He'll gamble any day for extra points. The two birds in the bush are the ones Billy is after—not the one in his hand.

When Manahan beat him yesterday afternoon, it was Rose's second defeat in 25 games he has played here since Feb. 7 against the finest curlers in the province. Last year he won 21 straight games here. When a skip piles up a record like that you've got to rate him right up at the top of the heap. Two years running now he has missed out on the big curling plumbs—the Grand Challenge and the right to represent Alberta in the Macdonald Brier. But next year may be his year to win. All Edmonton will be glad to see you back again, Billy—and thousands of the citizens will be pulling for you to score your grand slam.

Dominions Face Barrier Tonight

TONIGHT down at Drumheller the Dominions go to the barrier for the first time in senior hockey playoffs this season. The team left by train at 8 a.m. today, will lunch in Calgary and then go to the Coal City by bus and arrive back in Edmonton early Saturday morning.

Manager Walter Hunter announced last night that all his regulars, with the exception of Jimmy Anderson, would make the trip. Coach Lefty Grove will lead the squad into action again tonight. Anderson however is not quite ready for the sort of hockey that is likely to be played in Drumheller, but he will be back on the ice with Grove and Purcell here Monday night.

Grid Outlook Gets No Better

YESTERDAY brought further comments from Western Conference centres on the suggestion that Edmonton enter big time football—none of it was favorable.

In Calgary J. M. Bannerman, first vice-president of the Western Conference, declared point blank that Edmonton did not have the playing field facilities to make a conference team pay its way. What he meant was facilities for seating paying customers. That is true. Renfrew Park is not adapted for football crowds and it is a bit short for a proper playing field. A couple thousand dollars at least will have to be spent in bleachers and dressing room facilities to get by.

N. L. Lance, president of the Regina club, was non-commital. He stated that the Edmonton suggestion would no doubt be considered at the annual meeting of the Roughriders on Sunday.

In Winnipeg E. L. Isard, president of the Bombers, passed the buck by saying his club would be guided by the governors of the Conference. Beyond that he would not go.

There would appear to be very little enthusiasm among present conference members over the prospects of Edmonton joining them.

E.A.C. MIDGETS DRUB SARACENS BY 15-1 SCORE

Lead by the dynamic playing of Bill Maher, the E.A.C. entry in the city Midget Hockey League let loose a barrage of goals on the Saracens at the Stadium rink last night to overwhelm them 15-1.

Seven times Maher, brilliant E.A.C. forward, cut loose with bullet drives that ended up back of the bewildered Saracen goalie, who saw enough pucks to start a fair-sized rubber factory.

Timbers with three, Maday with two, and Kinlock, Huffman and Kilburn were the other snipers for the clubmen. McKenzie scored the lone Saracen tally in the middle session.

Riverdale Wins Last Game, 2-1

Riverdale midgets wound up their schedule of games on their own ice last night as they squeezed through with a 2-1 win over the Maple Leaf "B" squad in the city Midget Hockey League.

Ward shot the Maple Leaf squad into the lead in the second period, but Baer came back for the Riverdale sextet in the final canto to rap in two quick goals. The win earned Riverdale the right to meet the E.A.C. entry in the playoffs.

U.S. BEATEN SECOND TIME WORLD HOCKEY

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 18.—While Great Britain's strong team continued undefeated, the United States entry was virtually eliminated from the world amateur hockey championships by losing its second straight game—a 1-0 defeat at the hands of Switzerland in the second round. Germany defeated Hungary 1-0 in the day's third game.

Britain, fortified by a group of players who learned their hockey in Canada, barely won 3-2 from a Swedish team.

Sweden dominated the early part of the match, scoring the only first period goal. Jack Stinchcombe tied it in the second period on a long shot. Then Britain forged ahead on goals by Alex Archer and Jimmy Kelly, both Winnipeg products. Anderson scored his second goal for Sweden near the finish.

The United States-Swiss match was close and hard-fought through the first two periods with the Americans crowding their opponents but always being stopped in front of the nets. In the final period the Swiss suddenly opened a hurricane attack, with Piz Cattini scoring in the 12th minute.

Canada's team, playing as the Sudbury Wolves and favored to battle later with Britain for the championship, was idle Thursday.

Cameron and Holden each found the net twice for the winners, while Boyer with two and McGuire and Faddick with singles finished the scoring for Calder. Edte and Nykipilo were the Alberta Avenue marksmen.

BRUINS BOLSTER LEAD SCUTTLING RANGERS, 3-2

16,091 Gothamites Watch Blueshirts Fail In Overtime

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Two overtime goals gave Boston Bruins a 3-2 win over New York Rangers last night and sent them into a five-point lead over the Gothamites at the head of the National Hockey League's American group.

A crowd of 16,091—largest of the current season—witnessed the overtime struggle.

Three of the five goals were scored in the extra play, the Bruins counting twice before Bryan Hextall scored for Rangers in the dying seconds. A goal by Dit Clapper as he broke away from a Ranger gang attack with Milt Schmidt and Woody Dumart settled the issue.

Schmidt sent the Bruins in front early in the second period. His goal was matched by Mac Colville shortly after the third session opened. Gordon Pettinger gave Boston a 2-1 lead in overtime but Clapper's marker with less than two minutes play remaining gave the Bruins their edge.

SUMMARY

First Period: No scoring. Penalties—None.

Second Period: 1—Boston, Schmidt (Hollett) 4:20. Penalties—None.

Third Period: 2—Rangers, M. Colville (Shibicky, Pratt) 1:08. Penalties—None.

Overtime Period: 3—Boston, Pettinger (Goldsworthy) 3:59; 4—Boston, Clapper (Schmidt, Dumart) 8:32; 5—Rangers, Hextall (Patrick, Dillon) 9:41. Penalties—Schmidt, Coulter, Hollett.

Leafs Jump Lead Beating Maroons

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—Toronto Maple Leafs extended their lead in the National Hockey League's Canadian division to eight points last night when Regis (Pep) Kelly shot a goal in the last five minutes to defeat Montreal Maroons 2-1.

The little Irish wingman put Maroons a step nearer elimination from a playoff chance when he came from nowhere to golf the puck home as Nick Metz's shot bounded from Goalie Bill Beveridge's chest. It broke up a game that lacked spark until the final period, when all three goals were scored.

TAKE GAME LIGHTLY

The size of the crowd, around 4,000 fans, helped dull the play. Unlike usual Maroon-Leaf battles, there wasn't a penalty until the last period. And Leafs regarded it so lightly Manager Conny Smythe stayed home, as did Bingo Kampman and Murray Armstrong of the Toronto club.

Toronto went ahead with seven minutes of the final period gone. Gordon Drillon stepped in to knock Syl Apps' passout past Beveridge. Maroons levelled the score shortly after Jimmy Ward sinking Bob Gracie's pass.

SUMMARY

First Period: Scoring—None. Penalties—None.

Second Period: Scoring—None. Penalties—None.

Third Period: 1—Toronto, Drillon (Apps, Davidson) 6:45; 2—Maroons, Ward (Gracie) 8:20; 3—Toronto, Kelly (Metz, Chamberlain) 15:13. Penalties—Davidson.

Chi-Hawks Battle Amerks 3-3 Draw

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—With 11 seconds to go, Chicago Black Hawks came from behind last night to tie New York Americans and force their National Hockey League game into a 3-3 overtime tie.

Johnny Gottselig's goal 11 seconds before the finish of regulation time gave the Black Hawks the tie. The Americans operated on a goal-a-period basis during regular time, but the Hawks had to come from behind in the third period.

Johnny Sorrell scored the first Amerk goal early in the opening session after Earl Siebert tied it up for Chicago in the second. Nels Stewart scored his 13th goal of the campaign and the 296th of his National League career, with Joe Jerwa getting his second assist.

TAKE GOOD LEAD

Sweeney Schriner, with Jerwa again on the play, gave the Americans a two-goal lead early in the third and the margin held up until midway of the session when a series of power plays enabled Jack Shill to score for Chicago.

Gottselig's goal came in 19:49 of the third period on another mass play, after 7,500 spectators in the Chicago Stadium had given up hope.

Schriner fell into the Hawk net shortly after scoring his goal, and suffered a painful cut on the back of the head. He did not play again.

SUMMARY

First Period: 1—Americans, Sorrell (Beattie, Jerwa) 4:48. Penalties—None.

Second Period: 2—Chicago, Seibert (McKenzie, Voss) 6:00; 3—Americans, Stewart (Jerwa) 19:18. Penalty—Jerwa.

Third Period: 4—Americans, Schriner (Jerwa) 2:42; 5—Chicago, Shill (Dahlstrom, Trudel) 8:10; 6—Chicago, Gottselig (Thompson, Romnes) 19:49. Penalty—Wiseman.

Overtime Period: Scoring—None. Penalties—None.

Adamick-Thomas May Meet Louis If Win Tonight

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Jimmy Adamick, youthful Detroit heavyweight, and Harry Thomas of Eagle Bend, Minn., meet over the 10-round route in Madison Square Garden tonight, with a "tuneup" shot at Champion Joe Louis promised the winner.

If Louis disposes of Nathan Mann in a 15-round title match booked for the Garden next Wednesday night, it is Promoter Mike Jacobs' plan to pit the Brown Bomber against the Adamick-Thomas winner April 8. The scene would be Detroit's Olympic Arena, if Adamick wins; Chicago, if Thomas emerges the victor.

Juvenile Final At Arena; Juniors Play On Saturday

Juvenile finals, between Edmonton Athletic Club and Maple Leafs will be the hockey program at the Arena tonight and the game will start at 8:00 p.m. On Saturday Edmonton Athletic Club and Safeways will battle in their fourth and possibly their final game of their best three-of-five series. E.A.C. need only one more win to clinch the series. Saturday's game will start at 9:00 p.m.

The juvenile game between E.A.C. and the Leafs should result in a bitter struggle. The teams are keen rivals in their league and with the stakes so high the chips will be down for both clubs. In league play the Leafs have shown a decided edge over the other teams and are favored to win out. However, a hockey game often brings forth surprising results and the Clubmen may surprise their more favored Leaf opposition.

Grande Prairie Girls Triumph

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

GRANDE PRAIRIE, Feb. 18.—The Grande Prairie ladies' hockey team came to the fore Wednesday afternoon to stop a losing streak of Grande Prairie sextets at the Grand Prairie winter carnival by defeating the Beaverlodge girls 5-3. Previously Hythe seniors trounced the Grande Prairie Red Devils 4-2 and then waloped another Grande Prairie club 6-2. The Beaverlodge school team almost completed the route by turning in a 4-1 victory over the Grande Prairie students.

Ski, dog and pony races have been drawing large crowds every afternoon. Wednesday night a big ice carnival and moccasin dance was held at the Wapiti rink. Finals in the hockey tournament will be finished Friday.

and he raised the Manahan stone in to make it a shot-rock.

The four-ender that Rose hung up on the fifth was the result of nice placing by his lead men, careful protecting and a shot by Cliff Manahan that failed to click. On the eighth end Rose pulled up even with Manahan at 6-6 when he counted two. Cliff missed by a hair and went through the house with his last rock.

However, Skip Manahan made up for it on the ninth end. Rose drew his first rock around a front guard to curl in and lie shot-rock at the back of the button, cutting out two Manahan biters. Cliff missed and went through the house with his first stone. Rose attempted to put a guard on his counter, but he was a trifle heavy and the rock came to rest right on the button. Manahan made no mistake this time. He came down under a full head of steam with his last stone. He got both of Rose's rocks and stuck to count three.

On the tenth end a fraction of an inch probably beat Rose out of the northern Alberta championship. He shot for a three-end with his rock—the last rock of the end. Manahan had a stone in the blue ring at the back of the house. Rose had the shot-rock near the button, protected by a counter at the front. To count three, Rose had to draw around the front counter, knock out the Manahan stone and stick himself.

While the gallery watched, hushed and pop-eyed, Billy played the sporting shot. With only four feet to go, the rock fell off just enough to tick the front counter and go through wide of its target. Rose counted two.

CLIFF SAVES GAME

On the 11th end, Cliff Manahan pulled victory out of the fire. Cliff missed and went through the house with his first. Rose was lying two—one in the red circle in front and one in the blue directly behind at the back of the house. With his last rock, Manahan came through perfectly to take out both Rose rocks for a dead end.

There wasn't a single rock in the house when the two skips went to the hack on the final end. Rose had one stone at centre ice a couple of feet inside the hog line. Roses's first came to rest beside this one. Manahan drew around the two and stopped in the blue ring. Rose took him out and stuck in the white. Cliff's last rock took Rose out and went to the boards for another dead end. It ended the greatest game of the entire competition.

In the final and deciding game for northern Alberta honors, Olson gave Manahan a stiff battle all the way. The dominion champions were unable to count more than one on any single end. It was good sound curling, but it lacked the sensationalism of the preceding classic. Following are the end scores:

YOU BIG PADDED-CHAIR WALRUS! DON'T TELL ME YOU DIDN'T OPEN YOUR MOUTH! I DISTINCTLY HEARD YOU SAY THAT I LOOKED LIKE A SQUATTER'S TENT IN THIS COAT AND TO GO CLIMB A ROPE, WHEN I ASKED YOU TO COME TO THE MARKET WITH ME!
THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT I SAID! I DON'T INTEND TO LUG GROCERIES FOR YOU OR ANY OTHER FAT WADDLING FEMALE — WIFE OR NO!
MY WORD, M'DEAR! THAT WAS NOT I SPEAKING! I WOULDN'T DARE, EVEN IF I — THAT IS, I MEAN I HEARD IT TOO, BUT — OH, ZOUNDS! THIS IS CERTAINLY MOST CONFUSING — THE HOUSE MUST BE HAUNTED! SPUT! SPUT!

MEMBER CHARGES COPYRIGHT GROUP WITH OPPRESSION

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—It was not too much to ask the Canadian Performing Right Society to furnish music users with a list of the works in which it claims copyright, W. Esling (Cons., Kootenay West) told the House of Commons last night.

He moved second reading of his bill to make this requirement and said the society collected fees on the basis of copyright on between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 titles and did not know what titles it owned.

The present law, said Mr. Esling gave the society authority to collect fees on all the music it claimed to own, without proving ownership. It had collected fees for music it did not own. It claimed copyright on American works under assignment from the American society and had gone on collecting on them after a number of large American music firms had withdrawn from the American society.

It had carried on its business in an oppressive and aggressive manner and had harassed small users of music.

The life span of a tortoise is about 100 years.

37 MEASURES NOW BEFORE LEGISLATURE

Right-of-Way Cleared For Introduction of 11 Private Bills

Speeding along the legislative highway, members of the house on Thursday found themselves confronted with no fewer than 37 government measures and the right-of-way cleared for introduction of 11 private bills, formal petitions on behalf of which were laid before the house.

After receiving introduction and first reading, these bills will then go before the private bills committee for approval and review and, if approved, will then come back to the house for discussion in committee.

Four new government measures were introduced on Thursday, Premier William Aberhart, who is also minister of education, brought in a bill to amend the School Districts Relief Act, while Hon. D. B. Mullen, minister of agriculture, brought in a bill dealing with irrigated lands and implementing recommendations of the Ewing commission.

MANNING SPONSORS TWO

Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry, introduced a bill amending the Hours of Work Act and which will deal with night and day shifts. He also sponsored a bill amending the trade and industry department act, stating the purpose of the bill was to provide for the setting up of advisory boards on industry, advising on different matters.

The private members had a field day in bringing in petitions for bills. First in the line was Fred C. Anderson, S.C., Calgary, who petitioned for a bill to establish the Edmonton Stock Exchange. I. M. McCune, S.C., Gleichen submitted six petitions dealing with the organization details of Hutterite Colonies.

John Irwin, Conservative, Calgary, petitioned for an amending bill to the Calgary city charter, while D. M. Duggan, Alberta Conservative leader similarly petitioned on behalf of the Edmonton charter.

Hon. D. B. Mullen, minister of agriculture, sponsored the petition affecting incorporation of the Alberta Motor Association and a petition for a bill to incorporate the Mutual Hail Insurance Company was submitted by E. P. Foster, S.C., Didsbury.

THIRD READING GIVEN

The house gave third reading to no fewer than six bills and these now stand ready for consideration of the committee of the whole assembly. These bills were an act to amend and consolidate the Tax Recovery Act; act to amend the Drainage Districts Act; an act to amend the Dairymen's Act; act to amend the Corporations Temporary Additional Taxation Act; act to amend the Stallion Enrolment Act; act to amend the Seizures Act, and act to amend and consolidate the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Hon. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs, when the Tax Recovery Act was up for second reading, declared that he was more and more convinced that the minister should have more power to give property holders protection against mortgage and other financial companies.

J. W. Hugill, K.C., Independent, urged that second reading of the Workmen's Compensation Act be deferred, in view of its great importance.

DELAY URGED

Gerald O'Connor, Liberal, Edmonton, also urged that discussion of the bill be delayed to give interested persons a chance to make representations.

S. A. G. Barnes, S.C., Edmonton, declared that the bill was too important to be rushed through the house. Second reading was given after which the house, in committee dealt with 27 of the 75 sections in the bill.

B.C. HOUSE HAS JUST ONE NATIVE SON

OTTAWA, Feb. 18—British Columbia has one native son in the house of commons and is represented by a cosmopolitan group of men born outside the province.

"I think I am the only real British Columbian in this house," said Howard Green (Cons., Vancouver South) in the house last night. "We have members born in Scotland, in Ireland, in England and one, of whom we are very proud, born in Sweden. We even have members born in Ontario and the Maritime Provinces."

"Perhaps it is an illustration of the saying a prophet is without honor in his own country."

MANY CLAUSES COMPENSATION BILL DEBATED

After giving second reading to the bill amending and consolidating the Workmen's Compensation Act, the legislature on Thursday discussed no fewer than 28 of the 75 clauses in the bill. It is expected the house will go through the rest of the Act on Friday and then hold it in committee of the whole for a week or so, pending further amendment, before third and final reading is given. Several of the sections discussed were held over by Rev. Roy C. Taylor, Deputy Speaker and chairman of the committee of the whole house.

The house agreed to suggestions that any section would be subject to further discussion provided any member desired to speak further to it after hearing representations from labor or other organizations.

The present bill revises and amends the revised Workmen's Compensation Act of 1932 and all amendments thereto.

Gerald O'Connor, Liberal, Edmonton, and J. W. Hugill, K.C., Independent, sought to have discussion shelved pending submission of representations from interested organizations, but as the act was revised following hearing by the special legislative committee, of representations from many interested persons and organizations, it is not expected that many will be made.

Fred Anderson, S.C., Calgary, and chairman of the special legislative committee that revised the bill, said that copies of the bill were available and any clauses which the house desired to amend, could be revised in the committee stage.

The game was watched by 5,000, believed a record curling crowd.

The Glenboro rink has been in semi-finals of the Consols in Manitoba bonspields, but this was its first victory in the event.

His rink consists of E. R. McNight, lead; W. D. McNight, second, and E. C. Cartmell, third.

New Commissioner Of Church Named

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The Scottish office Thursday announced appointment of Sir John Gilmour, former home secretary, as Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. The Lord High Commissioner, appointed annually, represents the King, titular head of the Church of Scotland, in church affairs. He is a grandson of David Gilmour of Quebec.

Through Window Rock

There are only 200 persons living in the tiny city of Window Rock, which may be seen through this natural bridge sentinel for which the town was named, but it is the capital of the vast 16,000,000-acre Navajo reservation in New Mexico and Arizona on which 50,000 Indians live. The reservation's administration buildings are in Window Rock, with Indians holding 93 per cent. of the official jobs under which education, health, farming, relief, tribal affairs or jobs are administered. The scenically beautiful community is in New Mexico, but less than a stone's throw from the Arizona state line. Window Rock itself rises 400 feet off the plains and is of rare and changing color formations.

Liberals Quit Party Ranks But Lose Vote

REGINA, Feb. 18—Two Liberal members left party ranks to support a Co-operative Commonwealth Federation resolution in the Saskatchewan legislature here Thursday opposing any form of assisted agricultural immigration into Saskatchewan until such time as farmers enjoy a reasonable economic security.

The two Liberals were Omers Demers (Shellbrook) and J. H. Laird (Moose Jaw).

The resolution was snowed under 39-7 as the big body of government members swung its vote behind the ideas propounded by Hon. C. M. Dunn, minister of highways.

FOREIGN POLICY BRITAIN DEBATED BY UPPER HOUSE

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The House of Lords Thursday continued debate on foreign policy with Lord Snell, leader of the Labor opposition, charging the government had "grossly mismanaged" foreign affairs.

Lord Snell demanded to know whether the government still stood by the Stresa declaration of 1935, in which Great Britain, France and Italy jointly proclaimed necessity of maintaining Austrian independence.

Lord Halifax, lord president of the council, declared the government's policy toward Austria was still "inspired by the joint resolution of the Stresa conference."

"But the efficacy of that resolution depends on the loyal collaboration of all parties to it," he added.

Red Deer Woman Hurt In Crash

RED DEER, Feb. 18.—Injured in an automobile collision last night, Mrs. D. Swarth was in hospital here today. She is the wife of Rev. D. Swarth, superintendent of the Red Deer Nazarine Bible College.

Coming over a hill near Innisfail, a car driven by A. Love of Edmonton, crashed into the college superintendent's car. Both drivers escaped injury. Mrs. Swarth's head crashed through the windshield and she suffered severe head and facial injuries. Her condition was reported as good by hospital officials Friday morning.

Labor Battle Said Inevitable

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—The Committee for Industrial Organization is "inevitable" in the opinion of Dr. Gordon Sisco, secretary of the general council of the United Church of Canada.

"It would be wrong to see John L. Lewis' movement as a revolutionary movement," he told University of Toronto students of Hart House. "It is evolutionary. It is the only way labor can stand up against mass production."

MINERAL TAX TO BE LEVIED BY PROVINCE

on the certificate of title that all mines and minerals thereon are the property of the province.

Parcels of land of less than 10 acres are exempted from the provisions of the bill while other exemptions, including homesteads, also are exempt.

Outside of the legislature it was stated that the intention is to tax only mineral lands and rights held in freehold tenure, namely, lands in which the province does not own the mineral rights.

OWNER DEFINED

It is said that the definition of "mineral owners" to whom the new bill is applicable, is the same as in the 1923 bill and reads: "Mineral owner shall mean a person with the right to search for, work, win or get any mineral, who derives such right by lease, grant, license or otherwise from the Dominion of Canada or the province and also every person who possesses the same by virtue of a reservation or exemption thereof as an incident or part of his ownership of land."

Hon. Mr. Maynard declared that he could not estimate the acreage to which the new bill would apply, or the total amount of revenue to be derived therefrom.

The policy in force both before and after the transfer to the province of its natural resources, is that the province holds possession of mineral rights in any transfers of crown lands. The buyer of the land obtained ownership and rights to the surface alone, with the Dominion and latterly the province retaining title to the underground wealth and privileges.

LEASING RIGHTS

Under this system the province has been leasing mineral rights to operating companies engaged in coal mining and oil production, with the province collecting royalties on the mineral output of those properties.

Any person can state at any time that he is surrendering mineral rights and the province then becomes owner of them, with the former owner relieved of liability for taxation of them.

Exempt also is a parcel of land in which the owner holds both surface and mineral rights by letters patent originally issued as a homestead and pre-emption and in which the owner has not leased the minerals or given anyone else the right to search for minerals.

At the same time the provincial government is empowered to extend other exemptions in cases of small parcels of land where pecuniary consideration is comparable to a homestead, providing that the papers given the exemption must hold an original patent or other grant, from the crown.

Speaker Says Votes Enemy Of Game, Fish

BALTIMORE, Feb. 18.—The National Wildlife Federation adjourned a stormy annual business meeting here Thursday after re-electing Jay N. (Ding) Darling, Des Moines, Ia., cartoonist, president, and voting down delegates' efforts to oppose pending national legislation.

Darling warned in his presidential address "the time has come to rescue conservation from the politicians."

He said indiscriminate construction of hydro-electric power dams while "a good vote getting proposition," may destroy "every biological thing in your river."

Is Acquitted

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18—Joe Gosselin, of Arnes, Man., was acquitted Thursday on a manslaughter charge arising from the death of his wife, Pauline, in an automobile accident Oct. 22, 1937. Their automobile overturned into a ditch and was burned.

MONEY UNION SAID PLAN OF DER FUEHRER

Economic Alliance of Germany and Austria is Predicted

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—A monetary union between Germany and Austria was predicted by enthusiastic Nazi spokesmen last night as they learned the import of talks between Chancellor Hitler and the Austrian pro-Nazi minister of the interior.

With the prompt visit of Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, the Austrian minister, to confer with Hitler and other German leaders after his elevation to the cabinet, Nazi spokesmen declared they expected many sweeping changes in the relations between the two countries.

Another cabinet shakeup was imminent in Vienna, they said with Seyss-Inquart as vice chancellor and Nazis controlling the economic and finance ministries.

CLOSEST UNION

Hitler, they asserted, was determined to bring about the closest possible economic union between the two countries.

First of all, they said, Hitler would tackle the Austrian unemployment problem by vast public works centring around road building.

A customs union was taken for granted.

The monetary union they envisaged would synchronize banking currencies.

Reports Hitler was making new demands such as Austrian withdrawal from the League of Nations and adherence to the anti-Communist pact, and that these demands had become a snag in the new alignment, brought derisive smiles in foreign office circles.

However, it was not denied Austria's withdrawal from the League might be announced later, perhaps when Hitler and Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg of Austria visit Premier Mussolini in Rome this spring.

JUST IN TIME

Julius Streicher, Nazi leader of the anti-Semitic movement, speaking informally to newspaper correspondents, declared the Nazis were taking hold of Austria just in time to prevent a complete collapse. This near collapse, he declared was due to the mingling of the races in Austria, and especially to domination by the Jews.

Austria will be "another Danzig" before many weeks, Nazi spokesmen jubilantly predicted.

Danzig, Baltic port, was a part of Prussia before the Great War but became the Free City of Danzig under protection of the League of Nations in 1920. Last October the Catholic Centrist Party, last parliamentary opposition to the Nazi party in Danzig, was dissolved. Shortly afterward Albert Forster, Danzig Nazi leader, predicted that soon "the flag of the third Reich will be the state flag also of the Free City of Danzig."

At one time, prime bacon was used to fire the boilers of Mississippi river steamers. Prices became so low after the panic of 1837 that farm products found no market and bacon was actually cheaper than cordwood.
